Queen Telephones Margaret From Balmoral; Aide Rushes With Message From Queen Mother

BINFIELD, Eng. (CP) — Queen Elizabeth talked to her younger sister today in a lengthy priority telephone call to the country mansion where Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Townsend are guests for the week-end.

Reliable sources said the Queen had telephoned from Balmoral, her Scottish summer residence, and that telephone lines from nearby Reading were cleared for the call.

In another development today, the Queen Mother left Clarence House, the London residence where she and the princess live, for the first time since the meeting there Thursday night between the princess and Townsend after his arrival from Brussels on home leave.

She drove to the royal lodge at Windsor, about 10 miles from where the princess and Townsend are staying, to spend the week-end.

(United Press reported from London that just before dusk the Queen Mother sent her secretary, Capt. Oliver Dawnay, to see the princess. What message he carried could not be learned. Capt. Dawnay stayed half an hour. Police escorted his car both ways.)

OFF FOR A GALLOP

Townsend got up early this morning and went for a gallop through Windsor forest. There was no sign of the princess.

After the ride Townsend returned to the estate, trailed by reporters who waited on the chance that he and the princess might leave the estate later in the day to visit friends in the district.

He was smiling but non-commital to the reporters, saying merely that he would be staying here until Monday, when he will return to London.

Townsend was wearing a sweater and riding breeches when he first emerged this morning. He called out a cheery "Good morning" to the newspaper men as he got into his car.

The 41-year-old war hero drove directly to a riding stable and took a brown mare named Juliet Jones out on exercise with the regular string from the stable.

Despite a royal plea on Friday for privacy, a crowd had gathered when Townsend emerged from the house. But he chatted with the grooms and jockeys at the stable, and met reporters.

SECRET MEETING

The princess and Townsend arrived separately Friday night at the nearby house of the princess' cousin, Mrs. John Lycet Wills. Mrs. Wills is a daughter of Lady Elphinstone, sister of the Queen Mother. The house, Allenby Hall, is a stately brick mansion some 10 miles from Windsor Castle and about 25 miles west of London.

The rendezvous set the seal on the mounting conviction that the only thing left to be fixed for the wedding is the date.

The Royal Family's press secretary Friday night issued from Clarence House, the London residence of the princess and Queen Mother, a plea for privacy.

Two of London's big morning newspapers say the 25-year-old sister of the Queen plans to marry the divorced father of two children and fighter-pilot hero of the Battle of Britain.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail declares flatly in a front-page article: "Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend plan to marry. That is the deduction drawn from the Clarence House statement."

Townsend arrived at Binfield early in the afternoon, and went for a ride with Mrs. Wills while waiting for Margaret.

Meanwhile, the princess had slipped out of Clarence House by a little-used side entrance. She drove off in her black Rolls-Royce, with the shades down, and arrived at Binfield about three hours after Townsend. With her was her lady-in-waiting, Iris Peake, who some sources say received Townsend's letters and passed them on to Margaret during the two years he has spent in "exile" as air attache in Brussels.

Court Conviction Seen Bar to Scott Candidacy

Indictable Offence Rules Out Eligibility for Mayor's Office

Municipal legal authorities said today that William A. Scott, an announced candidate for mayor of Victoria, may have become disqualified as a candidate through a conviction in Oak Bay police court Friday on a charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

The Municipal Act of B.C. provides that a person who has been convicted of an indictable offence which makes him liable for two years' imprisonment, cannot stand for office unless he is pardoned or a five-year period has passed after sentence is served.

Mr. Scott was fined only $40, but Oak Bay police said he was charged under section 231 of the Criminal Code under which a convicted person can be sent to prison for up to two years.

The question of disqualification will arise when and if Mr. Scott files his nomination papers. The returning officer will then have to make a ruling.

If Mr. Scott were to win an appeal in the meantime, he would automatically restore his status.

Told of the possibility today, Mr. Scott stated:

"I don't doubt it. They'll pull everything they can. I know this is a frame-up. I am writing a prepared statement to Magistrate (H. C.) Hall—a very serious statement too.

"Magistrate Hall is violating the United Nations declaration of human rights. I am standing on that as a defence. That is supreme to any Municipal Act or small-town magistrate, or any other public official of our courts.

"This rises supreme above the courts. If they disqualify me they are placing themselves higher than the UN."

Mr. Scott was convicted of assaulting electrical inspector Charles Waggett, Oct. 5.

When the $40 fine was imposed, he shouted charges of a corrupt court, frame up, vicious persecution. "The truth is never admissable in these courts," he shouted.

"I think this man is not responsible or I would not permit such language," said the magistrate.

Inspector Waggett said he and a deputy fire chief introduced themselves to Mr. Scott and went with him into his basement to inspect new wiring. He found work done without permit and work which Mr. Scott had been previously warned would have to be changed.

Mr. Scott allegedly lost his temper, called the inspector a liar and "pounded" him in the face, "at least two times." Mr. Waggett suffered a swollen jaw and cut lip.

Mr. Scott admitted striking the inspector but said he was struck first. "He punched me on the chest, then I walloped him."

Road Mishaps Take 2 Lives

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) —Raymond Thibault, 18, of North Vancouver, died early today when the car in which he was riding struck a telephone pole here and was completely wrecked.

One man was killed and three others injured Friday night in a crash on the road leading to the Vancouver International airport.

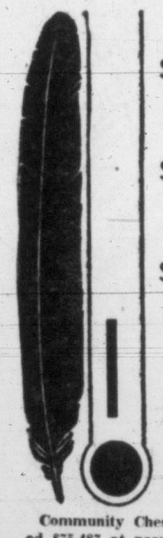
CHEST TOTAL TODAY $75,487



Community Chest total reached $75,487 at noon today as returns from neighborhood canvassers started to roll in. At this point last year the total was $69,842. Campaign continues next week.

PRINCESS ROYAL . . . arrives tonight

Goldstream, Elk Lake Offered to Province

Princess Flying Here For 5½-Day State Visit

People of Victoria, home of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), will be able to see the famous unit inspected by its colonel-in-chief at a mass ceremonial in Royal Athletic Park Sunday afternoon.

The Princess Royal will walk down ranks of the 500-man battalion shortly after 3 p.m. in a ceremony which will see both battalion and Queen's colors paraded together by the Scottish for the first time since 1946.

Princess Mary arrives at Patricia Bay airport today at 5.30 p.m., and after meeting military, civic and government dignitaries will proceed to Government House, her "home" in Victoria during the next five and one-half days.

BELLS TO RING

En route to the lieutenant-governor's residence, she will hear the bells of Christ Church Cathedral rung in special greeting as they were for the 1951 visit of the present queen, then Princess Elizabeth, and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Princess Royal's first appearance at a public function will be Sunday when she attends the morning service at Christ Church, when the cathedral bells again will peal.

Another first will be established at that time, since it will be the first service of worship at Christ Church attended by a member of the British royal family since consecration of the cathedral in 1929.

Service will be conducted by Very Rev. Brian Whitlow, new dean and rector, assisted by cathedral clergy. Sermon will be delivered by Archbishop Harold Sexton, who as curate of St. Margaret's, Westminster, from 1925-27, is himself a former Londoner.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, accompanied by Mrs. Bennett, will be present along with Mayor C. L. Harrison. In the princess' party will be Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, an honorary colonel of the Canadian Scottish.

Arriving at the west doors of the cathedral, after the short drive from Government House, the princess will be greeted by the archbishop.

Tickets have been issued to the regular members of the congregation to ensure they will have seats. All ticketholders must be in their places by 10.30 a.m. If any seats remain, the general public will be admitted.

Hon. Col. R. W. Mayhew, of the Scottish, and Lieut.-Col. Jack Faweett, commanding officer of the regiment, will be in the congregation, as will be other officers of the armed forces in Victoria.

As she leaves the cathedral the princess will be met at the main doors by Col. Mayhew and Lieut.-Col. Fawcett, who will accompany her to Pioneer Square, where she will lay a wreath on the Vimy Cross, Canadian Scottish memorial.

The Royal Salute will be first order given to the Scottish at the 3 o'clock ceremony at Royal Athletic Park, barring heavy rainfall, in which case the inspection will take place in Bay Street Armory.

Inspection of the regiment and cadet march-past follows, with the band playing Princess Mary's own march-past, "Daughter of the Regiment," in Royal Scots tradition.

The Princess will return to Government House after the inspection about 3.45 p.m., then go to Bay Street Armory for a reception in Scottish officers' and sergeants' messes.

Monday at 11.20 a.m. the royal party leaves Government House for Royal Roads Canadian Services College, where at noon she will open cadets' new barracks block.

Mayor Confirms Letter To Forests Minister

Mayor Claude Harrison has offered Goldstream and Elk Lake parks to the provincial government.

This offer was made in a letter to Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers within the past week, and was confirmed today by the mayor.

"I made the suggestion so that the salt-water park at the head of Goldstream will be developed," said the mayor. He said that several years ago, when the government was about to take over Goldstream, "they would not take in the foreshore."

SWIMMING BEACH?

Mayor Harrison said that if the provincial parks service wants Goldstream they will have to develop the foreshore as a saltwater swimming beach.

He said "it's the work of a bulldozer" to deepen the head of the inlet for swimming.

"Elk Lake? It's the same idea," said the mayor. "They would have to develop the beach."

Parks service officials are known to look with favor on the development of Goldstream as a provincial park. Several hundred acres, extending up the stream, are involved.

Elk Lake, on the Patricia Bay Highway, is popular as a summer recreation area.

Mathews Back; Blackpool in Stride Again

LONDON (Reuters) — Blackpool, with star winger Stanley Mathews back in the line-up after being sidelined with an injury, hit its stride again today to swamp Charlton Athletics 5-0 and take over the clear leadership of soccer's English League First Division.

After last week's games, Blackpool was tied with Manchester United and West Bromwich Albion on points but led on goal average. Manchester tied Aston Villa 4-4 and now trails by a single point as does Sunderland which defeated West Brom 2-1 and dropped Albion to fourth.

SWANSEA TOWN ON TOP

In the Second Division, Swansea Town nipped Bristol Rovers 2-1 to win the league lead from Fulham—downed 1-0 in a fiercely-fought battle with Nottingham Forest on the Woodsmen's home grounds.

Northampton Town, currently on top of the pile in Division III Southern, was blanked 2-0 by Southern United.

Gas Stations Found Guilty

VANCOUVER (BUP) — An assize court jury has found 26 lower mainland gas station operators guilty in a price-fixing charge but returned a strong recommendation for leniency.

The service station operators were remanded by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson on their own recognizance until Oct. 24 sentence.

Adenauer Abandoned

KASSEL, Germany (Reuters)—The Refugee party, fourth largest in the West German legislature, today officially quit the government coalition of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and declared itself to be in opposition.

UNACCOUNTABLE MISHAP

2 B.C. Forest Men Drown on Mainland

Two young B.C. Forest Service men were reported dead today, following a puzzling accident in isolated Knight Inlet, on the mainland coast.

Forest Service officials announced that Ranger W. H. Bell, 25, of Chatham Channel, and dispatcher Roy Neil, about 21, of Haney, died, "presumably by drowning, in the course of their duties."

Here is the story of the tragedy, as told by a Forest Service officer:

"Bell and Neil put off in a dinghy from the Forest Service launch Western Yew, to carry out timber cruising duties in the northwest arm of Knight Inlet on the northern mainland coast.

"They left the Western Yew on Thursday morning, and when they had not returned by 10 a.m. on Friday, the launch engineer of the Western Yew became seriously concerned and reported by radio to district headquarters in Vancouver.

PLANE SPOTS DINGHY

"Immediately a Forest Service charter aircraft, already working near Knight Inlet, commenced an air search, and spotted the dinghy at the north-west end of the inlet.

"It was still right-side up, and one pair of calked boots was still aboard. The air search party also found the body of Roy Neil. All forest service launches in the area, four in all, have now converged on the search area, and under the direction of D. B. Taylor, district forester at Vancouver, are carrying out an extensive search for Ranger Bell.

"We have no facts yet as to just how the tragedy occurred.

"However, those who know the area, brand it as very treacherous, and it is possible a storm blew up quickly, and funnelled right down the inlet, catching the small boat.

"One theory is that the boat's motor conked out, one of the men stood up to start it, and fell overboard in the high waves, and the other jumped in to help him."

A spokesman said Neil's body will be flown out to Vancouver. Ranger Bell was married, and had a son one and one-half years old.

HOT NEWS FROM THE TRYST'S MOUTH

Impish 7-Year-Old 'Wushes' To Peach on Her Princess

BINFIELD, England (AP)—A seven-year-old girl played an impish informant today to the romance of Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

She was Marilyn Wills, blonde and perky daughter of Maj. and Mrs. John Lycet Wills, owners of Allenby Hall, where Margaret and Townsend are week-end guests.

Skipping along the gravel driveway from her home to a picket fence, little Marilyn was bursting with news.

When she reached the fence, around which more than 100 reporters and photographers were massed, she winked and began to speak.

"What did the princess do this morning?" she was asked.

"I saw her wushing upstairs," said the girl.

Half a hundred pencils raced across half a hundred notebooks.

"Did you say washing upstairs?" asked a chorus of reporters.

"Yes wushing," she answered.

"With soap and water?"

"No, silly—wushing—to run fast," replied Marilyn.

"You mean rushing, not washing?"

"Yes," grinned the little girl.

"How did Princess Margaret look?"

"Okay."

"Was she happy?"

"Yes—very happy."

Having delivered this news, little Marilyn wushed back to the lodge.

CONSTRUCTION LAGS YEAR BEHIND

Highway Ministers to Discuss Slow Progress on Trans-Canada

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The trans-Canada highway, little more than one-quarter complete after five years' work, will be discussed at a conference here between federal officials and provincial highway ministers, probably next month.

Federal authorities are known to be concerned about slow progress with the 4,600-mile, coast-o-coast paved roadway begun in 1950 with the provinces doing the construction. The federal treasury foots half the cost, estimated five years ago at a total of some $300,000,000 but now expected to top that before the highway is a reality.

Works Minister Winters, it was learned Friday, is writing provincial highway ministers suggesting an Ottawa meeting in November. Primary consideration will be renewal of the federal-provincial highway agreement signed in 1949 and including all provinces except Quebec. It is due to expire in December, 1956.

Construction problems of the provinces and possible ways of speeding the work also are expected to be discussed.

The present agreement provides that the provinces construct allotted mileages of the highway within their boundaries. The federal government is committed to match provincial outlays up to a maximum total of $150,000,000 by December, 1956. It was hoped when the agreement was signed that the highway would be completed by that time.

YEAR OFF TARGET

That target now has gone by the board. Federal officials admit the highway won't even be nearly half finished by the time the agreement expires.

Latest available figures up to last Aug. 31 show 1,223 of the total 4,580 miles of highway completed to federal standards —a paved roadway 22 to 24 feet wide with 10-foot-wide graded shoulders on each side. Another 405 miles has been graded preparatory to paving.

HOSPITAL WORKERS ASK 'STAPH' COMPENSATION

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workmen's Compensation Board will be asked to recognize staphylococcal infection among hospital staffs as a compensative disability.

The British Columbia Hospitals Association annual meeting in Vancouver Friday passed a resolution directing the executive to approach the WCB on the matter.

At the same time a delegate from Kamloops took issue with a claim made by Dr. John C. Colbeck of Shaughnessy Hospital, that staphylococcal infection kills more patients than the annual traffic toll.

J. M. Morrison said: "We in Kamloops take exception to the doctor's remarks. We want to know from what statistical information he gets his findings."

Tories Jam Winnipeg For 200-Year Dinner

WINNIPEG (CP) — Progressive Conservatives from nine provinces streamed into Winnipeg today for the party's huge second century dinner, first of four such celebrations to be held in Canada in the next two months.

GEORGE DREW

The dinner, marking the start of the Conservatives' 101st year of organized participation in Canadian politics, will have representatives from all the provincial PC groups except Newfoudland.

National party leader George Drew, for a short while a doubtful speaker when a cold forced him to rest in hospital here, has recovered sufficiently to attend. He will leave the General Hospital, where he has been staying for the last four days, this afternoon.

Mr. Drew was forced to cancel the Manitoba section of his western tour in Brandon Tuesday when his temperature soared to 102 degrees. After an examination in Winnipeg, he was confined to the hospital.

MARITIME TRIP OFF

A party official said a scheduled two-day trip to the Maritimes next week by the party leader had also been postponed. He said Mr. Drew was expected to remain in Winnipeg "for a few days" before continuing on to Ottawa.

A special guest at the dinner will be Mrs. I. M. Gainsford of Winnipeg, only living direct descendent of Sir John A. Macdonald, founder of the Conservative party. She is a granddaughter.

Three other second century dinners are planned by the party: Charlottetown Nov. 5; Trois-Rivieres, Que., Nov. 19, and London, Ont., Dec. 5.

The dinners have been organized to remind the public and party workers "of the long past traditions and bright future of the party," an official said.

Drug Traffic Dragnet Men Given Praise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Acting police chief Alan Rossiter and city prosecutor Stewart McMorran Friday praised Det. Sgt. Archie Plummer and the members of the Vancouver police force who assisted in the recent mass round-up and prosecution of drug traffickers.

Acting chief constable Rossiter voiced his praise after reading a letter to the police commission from Mr. McMorran in which the prosecutor also commended the work of the police.

Mr. McMorran's letter suggested that the "bulk of the work was done by Vancouver police officers," and performed in some cases "at great personal risk to them."

The RCMP also took part in the round-up Aug. 9 which netted 32 suspected drug traffickers.

The acting chief pointed out that because of the long trials of the drug trafficking suspects, many drug squad officers have been away from their usual enforcement work. This may result in a lesser number of arrests than usual for that period he said.

Railway Man Dead

MONTREAL (CP)—A. C. Melanson, 62, chief of motive power and car equipment for the Canadian National Railways, died at his home here Thursday night. A native of Scoudouc, N.B., he joined the company as a machinist apprentice at Moncton, N.B., in 1911.

The odds are 17 to 1 that you'll be glad you gave to the Community Chest.

MILT FOR IKE?—U.S. political experts see more than a slim chance the Republicans will draft Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the President's youngest brother, if Ike's heart ailment keeps the President out of the 1956 election. President Eisenhower, 65 Friday, continues to "progress satisfactorily without complications," according to today's medical bulletin. But Republican politicians seem increasingly resigned that Ike won't accept re-nomination next year. "Milt for Ike" switch already is being quietly boomed in inner circles. Nine years younger than Ike, a noted educator (he's president of Pennsylvania State College), expert and diplomat in the Roosevelt government administration, Dr. Milton Eisenhower is said by his backers to be "a carbon copy of Ike" in almost every way, including vote-getting friendliness.

Optimistic Talk Follows Parley on Mill Dispute

Feeling of optimism arose out of a meeting Friday in Vancouver of International Union of Operating Engineers and coast lumber mill representatives who discussed settlement of a steam plant wage dispute.

Further talks are slated for next week, possibly Tuesday, under chairmanship of labor conciliator Fred Smelts of provincial labor relations board.

Operating engineers in 20 lumber and shingle mills have voted to strike if their wage demand of 10 per cent general increase is not granted, or a better offer than five cents an hour is not made by employers.

"While there's talk there's hope," Victoria engineers business agent Ed Callan said today. "Nothing has been said about a strike deadline, and we expect something from them (employers in further talks toward peaceful settlement)."

Government Operations Probe In Alberta Plodding Slowly

EDMONTON (CP) — The royal commission established to investigate six different criticisms of Alberta government operations got no further than the first in nine days of sittings.

The five-man commission headed by Mr. Justice Hugh John Macdonald of the Alberta Supreme Court heads into its third week of sittings Oct. 17 still hearing evidence on the highways department.

Since it started hearing witnesses Oct. 3, the investigating group has received testimony from four highways department officials and more than 100 documents have been submitted as evidence.

ELEVEN LISTED

Eleven firms indebted to the provincial savings and loan institutions who have held highway contracts have been listed in evidence presented to the commission.

Most of the attention has centred on Frank O'Sullivan, the O'Sullivan Construction Co. Ltd., Mannix-O'Sullivan Paving Co. Ltd., and Fred Mannix Ltd.

Highlights of evidence so far have been:

1. Government officials said they knew of only one case where provincial treasury branches were linked with the awarding of a highway contract.

2. Liberal Counsel J. V. H. Milvain said that in 57 contracts let to firms indebted to the treasury branches from 1946 to 1955, final payments by the government were greater than the amounts bid.

3. Work started on a highway contract negotiated with the O'Sullivan Construction Co. in 1948 for work between Edmonton and Morinville before the contract was legally complete.

4. A bonding company refused a bond to the O'Sullivan Construction Co. in 1947 on the grounds that it was tackling too much work for the amount of capital it had, and had been advanced $115,000 by the treasury branch.

BOY SCOUTS TO LAUNCH CONSERVATION DRIVE

OTTAWA (BUP) — Canada's 187,500 boy scouts will launch a national conservation campaign in 1956, Fred J. Finlay, chief executive commissioner, announced here today.

After completing a conservation pledge card every boy and leader will receive a conservation badge featuring a Canada goose in flight over the words "serve by conserving," Finlay said.

Finlay also announced that four new scout proficiency badges will be issued as part of the plan. He said the badges would be for forest, soil, water and wildlife conservation.

Future Role In Jeopardy France Warned

President Coty Tells Politicians To Look to Britain for Example

PARIS (UP)—President Rene Coty warned today that France may lose its seat among the Big Four if French politicians continue their game of toppling governments.

The French president made the warning in a speech at Dunkerque just three days before a National Assembly confidence vote that threatens to bring down the government of Premier Edgar Faure.

Coty bluntly told Frenchmen to look across the English Channel and inspire themselves by the "beautiful example" of Britain's solid regime.

He said that France "must yet put up a severe fight if she is to retain her rank of world power."

RECONVERSION

"To win," he said, "France first must accomplish the great task of reconversion of wartime patriotism, to face up to a civic spirit which will give France fresh energy."

Coty spoke as assembly opponents of Faure pondered a sober warning that a fall of the government over the Algerian crisis could mean the absence of France at the Geneva Big Four conference.

Premier Edgar Faure has staked the fate of his cabinet on a formal vote of confidence in the assembly Tuesday afternoon over his handling of the Algerian problem where demands for independence have touched off months of anti-French violence.

Faure's position was believed strengthened by a warning from former Premier Paul Reynaud that a new cabinet crisis might lead to new elections in November and the absence of France from the Geneva conference which begins Oct. 27.

Reynaud, a member of the right-wing and one of France's most influential politicians, accused the Gaullists, the Socialists and the Communists of ganging up on Faure for purely selfish reasons. He said their actions might weaken France internationally and cause even more bloodshed in North Africa.

All-Canada Gas Pipe 'Certain', Howe Declares

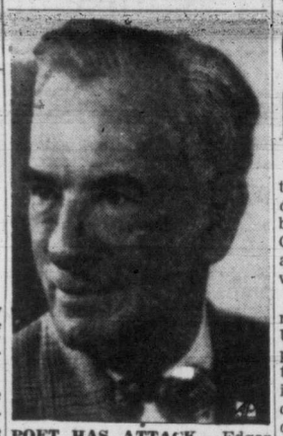
PORT ARTHUR (CP) — An all-Canadian natural gas pipeline now is a certainty and the approved route will make the fuel available to the Lakehead and all centres of population in northwestern Ontario, Trade Minister Howe said Friday night.

Addressing more than 500 persons at a dinner at the Exhibition Coliseum marking his 20th anniversary as Port Arthur's member of Parliament, Mr. Howe also predicted a "good" winter and spring movement of wheat and that the St. Lawrence seaway, scheduled for completion in late 1958, would greatly benefit the lakehead.

"I am happy to say that I see no cause for pessimism about the future of Canada," he said. "In fact, our economy seems stronger than ever before."

Terming the gas pipeline the project of the greatest local importance, Mr. Howe said the federal government had decided to finance the line from the Manitoba border to Kapuskasing, and Ontario had agreed to join in the financing. He added that only minor details now hindered construction and expressed the hope these could be ironed out during the winter.

Government financing of the section through northwestern Ontario would not take the form of a subsidy or public ownership, and within about five years after completion would be repaid and the line returned to the private company operating it, he said.



POET HAS ATTACK — Edgar A. Guest, the poet, has suffered a slight heart attack, his son, Bud, reported from his home in Detroit Friday. Poems by Guest have appeared daily in the Detroit Free Press and other newspapers for more than 40 years. He celebrated his 74th birthday Aug. 20. His condition is not considered critical.

Storm Kills 16 on U.S. East Coast

NEW YORK (AP)—A rampaging storm of near hurricane violence blew itself out today but left a trail of 16 deaths, flooded homes, wrecked utility lines and highway washouts along the U.S. east coast.

A second storm which had been feared in the making off the Carolina coast failed to materialize.

Ravages of the gale which swept northward Friday from Cape Hatteras, N.C., were severe. But much of northeastern U.S. was spared a repeat of the fearful beating it took from the Diana floods two months ago.

Labor Merger Criticized By Mine Workers

FLORENCE, N.S. (CP) — A top United Mine Workers official says the UMW has long been dissatisfied with the parent Canadian Congress of Labor and withholding dues was one way of showing it.

John Delaney, district 26 international board member, told the UMW's Florence local that the proposed merger of the CCL and the Trades and Labor Congress is "a retrogressive action that could spell the liquidation of industrial unions in Canada."

Canadian locals of the UMW were unable to take their seats at the CCL's convention at Toronto this week because the international headquarters withheld the percapita tax which must be paid to the Congress each year. Mr. Delaney's statement was the first indication of how the Canadian membership stood in the matter.

Mr. Delaney said there has been "a running dispute" between the UMW ~~and the~~ CCL for several years. He said international headquarters headed by John L. Lewis, wanted to lend emphasis to its dissatisfaction by holding back the dues enabling its Canadian locals to be represented at the convention.

He said the dispute arose because the CCL did not protect the jurisdiction of the UMW's many-sided District 50 in the chemical construction industry of western Canada.

ABBOTT'S DECISION CHALLENGED

Cabinet Asks Supreme Court For Direction on Coffin Appeal

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet Friday asked the Supreme Court of Canada for a recommendation on what action it should take in the case of convicted murderer Wilbert Coffin.

The 44-year-old prospector had been scheduled to be hanged for murder Oct. 21 at Montreal. Officials said a stay of execution will be granted by the Quebec authorities.

It was disclosed in the order-in-council asking for a Supreme Court review that some of the Supreme Court judges disagreed with the Sept. 2 decision of Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott refusing Coffin's application to appeal his conviction to the court.

The order-in-council said at one point:

". . . The chief justice of Canada, Hon. Patrick Kerwin, advised the minister (Justice Minister Garson) that he had been requested by some of his colleagues to state to the minister that if the application by Wilbert Coffin for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada had been made to them . . . they would have been inclined to grant leave on one or more of the points of law raised on behalf of Wilbert Coffin."

It was considered a highly unusual procedure for the justices to disagree in such a way with a decision of Mr. Justice Abbott, former finance minister appointed to the bench July 1, 1954.

Counsel for Coffin appealed Mr. Justice Abbott's ruling to the other eight justices. They ruled only that they had no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal on Mr. Justice Abbott's decision.

It was after this, apparently, that the eight other justices, through Chief Justice Kerwin, informed Mr. Garson that they would have been inclined to hear Coffin's appeal.

The nine-man Supreme Court, after a review of Coffin's case, could recommend to the government that Coffin's conviction be quashed, that he be granted a new trial or that his appeal be dismissed.

Coffin was sentenced to death Aug. 5, 1954, for the murder of Richard Lindsey, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., one of three American bear hunters found dead in the Gaspe Peninsula in 1953.

MILITARY COURT TO TRY JUAN PERON IN ABSENTIA

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Juan Peron, former lictator-presilent of Argentina, will be tried in absentia by a military court, Army Minister Leon Bengoa said today.

The government said investigators have uncovered evidence of barbarous police torture of men and women, priests, students, workers and members of the armed forces during ex-president Juan Peron's regime.

Provisional president Eduardo Lonardi's press secretariat said that in many cases the tortures caused death. The press statement added that an intensive investigation is under way to identify the torturers and bring them to trial.

Gas Price Cut Six Cents By North Star in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—A reduction of six cents a gallon in the price of gasoline went into effect Friday at about 60 North Star Oil Co. service stations in the Greater Winnipeg area.

A company official said the move was aimed at giving customers a true discount of six cents on gasoline. A survey had shown that 71 other service stations were advertising greater discounts than they were actually giving.

One oil company source said that some dealers were advertising five and six cents a gallon "off" but actually were giving less than four cents.

The Automotive Trades Association recommends a price of 37.7 cents for No. 2 gasoline and 41.3 for premium.

North Star's new prices are 37.6 and 35.3 respectively.

No immediate action on prices was indicated by other oil companies.

Imperial Oil Limited recently announced an increase of one-half cent in its wholesale gasoline price. Imperial dealers determine their own retail price.

An official of the McColl Frontenac Oil Co., which produces Texaco gasoline, said in Calgary no price change was planned for the time being. He said its dealers set their own retail price.

Soldiers Due Home

OTTAWA (CP) — The first large contingent of Canadian soldiers returning from service with the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade in Germany will arrive in Canada next month, army headquarters announced Friday. The draft of 650 officers and men, from every province in Canada, will reach Quebec City, Oct. 20 aboard the Ss. Columbia. They will travel by train to personnel depots across the country.

NON-OPERATING RAILMEN ALSO ASK 25% HIKE

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—Rail union official Frank Hall said Friday night Canada's non-operating railway employees will seek a 25-per-cent wage increase when they enter negotiations with the railways later this month.

He said the unions will also seek a health and welfare plan and will ask that all non-operating trades be given eight paid statutory holidays a year.

Henry Parr-Davies, Song Writer, Dead

LONDON (Reuters) — Composer Harry Parr-Davies, who wrote many of the songs made popular by British comedienne Gracie Fields, was found dead Friday in his apartment here. He was 41. Among his song hits for Miss Fields were "Wish Me Luck," "My Lucky Day," "Smile When You Say Goodbye," and "Sing as We Go."

GIFTS IN DARK OF NIGHT

Publicity-Shy Victorian Gives 200 Valuable Books to Library

A mysterious benefactor has discovered the perfect way to donate to Victoria Public Library under a cloak of anonymity—in the dark of night he drops bundles of valuable books into the book-return chute.

In the last few months he has contributed almost 200 books, some of them quite valuable.

City librarian John Lort told the Library Board Friday the only clue to the donor's identity is a quaintly decorated card.

Each card has carried a picture of an Atlas-like figure standing on the surface of the world but towering almost to a new moon.

Typed in red on the reverse is is this message, "Gentlemen: This book is a gift to the library from a citizen of Victoria, who prefers to withhold his name. Sincerely."

The books all pointed to a collector who is interested in illustration, the librarian said.

The book chute has yielded other gifts previously, but not of the sort the library wanted, Mr. Lort said. At one time school children made quite a game of dropping foreign objects into the chute.

"It will be closed Hallowe'en," he added.

Board was informed of another book gift from a person who did not want his name revealed either. It is a French volume, published in Paris about 1909, and richly bound.

Valued at nearly $400, it is a history of aeronautics up to 1930, and deals primarily with early experiments with balloons.

The board expressed thanks to both donors.

Two Ten-Year Terms For Drug Traffickers

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Malgren, 28, and William Slosson, 34, were each sentenced Friday to 10 years for trafficking in narcotics.

Also sentenced by Mr. Justice H. S. Wood was Hirbnt Singh, 20, who was given a two-year term for breaking and entering. The charge arose from an attempted safecracking at a suburban drive-in theatre.

WHEN did SCIENCE Begin...?
Science began the first day man asked "why?" This search for facts sprang from the dark days of magic, superstition and demonology. The laws of nature were known. It was the task of science to understand them. In the middle-ages the average life span was 25 years. Today you have have a life expectancy of sixty-five years. This is a direct result of medical progress.

The Chance for Tax Cuts

MR. BENNETT'S MOST REmarkable statement of many in the last few days is that his financial formula "would not cost the federal treasury a cent more than it costs now, considering the new income from this expanding economy."

Thus Mr. Bennett applies to national finance the interesting mathematics which he applied a few months ago to the Kelowna court house. That structure, he said, would really cost nothing because the money to build it had been accumulated by reducing the public debt and thus saving the interest charges. By the same sort of reasoning it will cost the Federal Government nothing to hand over huge sums to the provinces because federal revenues are growing.

Mr. Bennett is actually saying that if federal revenues grow they should not be used to reduce the present high taxes paid by all Canadians. They should be handed over to the provinces.

The provinces would then spend them and there would be no reduction in total taxes; or else the provinces could reduce provincial taxes and enjoy the resulting political benefit. In British Columbia's case undoubtedly the extra windfall would be promptly spent since the Bennett Government can never get enough money for its purposes.

At the moment the federal treasury is operating on a deficit, estimated at $160 millions for the current year. A rapid expansion of business is increasing federal revenues, but since most of the taxes on this year's business will not be collected until next year, Mr. Harris' budget will probably fail to balance by about $120 millions.

Mr. Bennett's budget is heavily in surplus. He has on hand, he says, some $22 millions which he will not use to reduce taxes but to build roads.

He is quite right in believing that Ottawa's revenues will grow next year, if business continues buoyant, and Mr. Harris may well be in a position to reduce federal taxes modestly in his spring budget. But if Ottawa yielded to the demands of Mr. Bennett and the other provincial governments there could be no federal tax reduction. The extra revenues of the business boom would go to the provinces and most, or all of it, would be spent.

Is this what the taxpayers of the nation desire? Are they willing to postpone indefinitely the chance of an income tax reduction in order to satisfy Mr. Bennett and other provincial premiers? Are the people of British Columbia in particular prepared to pay, through federal taxes, the large extra amounts which Mr. Bennett demands even though he already enjoys a handsome revenue surplus?

The people must answer these questions for themselves. They are temporarily confused, and no wonder, by many conflicting sets of figures and complex calculations which only an auditor can unravel. But any taxpayer should be able to understand that if more money is to be spent by the federal or the provincial governments he will pay it; and that if increasing federal revenues are handed over to the provinces taxes generally must continue at their present level.

The taxpayers should easily grasp another point in Mr. Bennett's statement. He says that Ottawa can afford to give the provinces more money because its income is rising on the rising tide of business. He forgets to say that British Columbia's share of those federal revenues will automatically rise also under the Federal Government's recent proposals.

He says British Columbia is asked to accept a loss of $7 millions a year when in fact it is specifically guaranteed against any fall in the grants from Ottawa. True, Mr. Bennett will not get all he wants, but if business continues prosperous he will get a corresponding rise in grants from the national treasury.

In short, Ottawa is willing to put a floor under the finances of the provinces, to protect them from falling revenues in bad times. It proposes no ceiling on provincial revenues.

Macfadden—Question of Balance

BERNARR MACFADDEN IS dead and a special cult of physical fitness and body worship has lost its high priest.

Whether or not his life could have been prolonged by earlier medical attention, which he shunned, is beside the point. Bernarr Macfadden lived to be 87, and a vigorous 87, on a regimen of muscle building and diet which he spread with convincing salesmanship throughout the United States and beyond.

Unquestionably the Macfadden story was a success story of its kind. He drew fame and fortune from the style of physical development he championed and from the publications which he produced.

How beneficial his influence was on his fellow men remains a matter for debate. Certainly some of the antics of his later years were not calculated to establish him as the perfect example of mens sana in corpore sano. His ability to balance on his head at 75 was scarcely proof positive of that equilibrium which is an essential in the well-rounded man.

The pattern he set is worth thought today. Particularly on this continent, concern is being expressed over the degree of fitness, or lack of it, found in this generation's youth. Bernarr Macfadden, over a period of four score years, achieved a high degree of fitness physically, and made a lot of money. Yet it will seem to thoughtful people, even those who want a higher physical standard for youth, that the Macfadden technique leaves something to be desired. The body, after all, is only the vehicle.

Keep It Under Your Hat

VICTORIANS HAVE JUST BEEN introduced to an innovation in hair tinting. They have seen, or read about, the attractive young lady whose coiffure was pink-toned to match her dress.

The ramifications of the style are intriguing. Shall it be black hair for the funeral, white for the wedding and perhaps something in royal purple for the visit of Princess Mary?

Or can the mode be adapted to mood? A cerise for the jam session, a green for the freshness and charm of the spring sprite and aquamarine for a time of happiness?

Can the men play, too? Or are they already in the act by virtue of that man of ultimate mystery whose hair is invisible?

As Our Readers See It

ALCOHOL

A few weeks ago a letter-writer gave the figures of American publications, newspapers, magazines, etc., which would not accept liquor advertisements. For this information I thank him. I would like to know where I can get similar information re Canadian publications.

In the same letter he wrote "Is it not about time we took stock?" which made me think. Then I wrote cancelling my subscription to a well-known Toronto magazine. Fortunately, I can still buy Canada's most famous weekly (also of Toronto) which does not accept liquor advertisements.

The American Journal of Psychiatry states "We can say with certainty that alcohol causes infinitely more murders, rapes and crimes of violence than do morphine, heroin, cocain, marihuana and all other drugs combined." See Science Digest issue July, 1952, pp 38-39. Also its issues of May, 1953, p 48, Jan., 1955, p 30, and especially the issue of Oct., 1955, pp 10 to 14, which is a factually true and shocking account of the ravages of alcohol.

DO YOU CARE?

The Victoria Daily Times has readers beyond what is humorously called Greater Victoria. The editor is known and read with pleasure where "the language" is spoken. It is a gift that used wisely can stir much progress and the ability to write well can guide Canada onward.

An interesting practical topic to place squarely before its many readers would be: Do you want a national health scheme similar to those in progressive parts of Europe? Why?

Those blest by unlimited wealth or the sure knowledge they can never be sick could furnish us with priceless views on the subject. Medical men with several receptionists and long queues of wealthy patients could enlighten us on the evils of socialist medicines.

Above all let us hear how Mr. and Mrs. Canuck and their Jack and Jill fare when sick.

The many who have spent all and begged trying to regain or capture happy normal health in a bitter and unending struggle by raising loans on this and that etc., etc., might also give their views.

From the silent religious leaders who do seem only interested in the life hereafter we may hear a new note on Christian duty in 1955. The United Church of Canada has made great contributions to positive Christianity in Canada. I applaud a church that is so interested in mundane matters like national health and not in "Sundays Only" type of Christianity.

Dare you answer: "What would Jesus do?

Would He favor national health?

DOGS, GOOD AND BAD

There were, of late, a few letters in the Times about the nuisance of some dogs which damage other people's gardens in and around Victoria; while those dogs' owners simply let them and do nothing to control their pets.

That nuisance and owners' irresponsibility does not apply to Victoria alone. Out here in the country—if you want to call it that—there are also lots of dogs which roam the streets and adjacent gardens the whole day long.

Besides damaging the garden, some of them destroy other valuable property. Every years I have some valuable birds —Rhode Island Reds—destroyed by such dogs, which may be pets to their irresponsible owners but are pests to me. Such owners don't care a damn, though they may sit in their "Christian" churches on Sunday. (There are now four of such in Langford.)

I have had a few dogs myself in my time—when I could afford to feed them —and so appreciate the pleasure they may give their owners. October 5 Times mentions that the SPCA in Victoria has received quite a sum to help them in their work. It would be a good thing if they applied part of that money to educate the irresponsible dog owners — to educate them to the fact that others put as much value, if not more, on their animals—birds, goats, sheep, etc.—as they do on their ferocious dogs. In the end, we might then get some law which compels such owners to keep their dogs in a proper kennel; and if they have to take them out, on an unbreakable leash.

To my way of thinking, to keep stealing hoodlums—every year a considerable part of my fruit is being stolen and it costs me a lot of fertilizer, irrigation water and hard work to produce that fruit—mad dogs, etc., under control is more necessary than proclaiming all kinds of other restrictions.

How To Be Quaint

CELEBRATING its fiftieth anniversary, Maclean's Magazine, with a gleam of nostalgia and mischief in its eye, reprints a broad cross-section of a forgotten life in Canada. As Mr. Pierre Berton remarks, in presenting this strange cavalcade, things change fast these days. The Canada of Mr. Berton's youth, though he is still a young man, is almost unrecognizable. It is, indeed, already dated and quaint. One smiles to see in print and picture the follies, illusions and wild hopes of our youth only half a century ago.

Hutchison

But Mr. Berton, being gifted with an exceedingly tough mind, is not much deceived by the present. He suspects that we are entertaining as many absurdities as ever and will entertain others, equally absurd, fifty years hence.

IN a mood of genial prophesy, Mr. Berton looks forward to the year 2005 (when he will be almost reaching his prime) and predicts that the Fifties of our century will then be regarded as "a quaint era when women wore queer ponytail hairdos and still clung to the upper halves of their bathing suits, when men wore jackets with lapels, automobiles were hand-operated and magazines were still published on paper."

The observer of that time also will be able to report that the present era was "buoyant, heady with optimism" yet an era of Faith—"in nostrums, in money and, above all, of faith in machines; that because of the war Canada was slowly gaining a national consciousness and was even talking of reforming the Senate."

THE great hallmark of this last half century, Mr. Berton says, is change, "blinding, bewildering, disturbing, unbelievable; and finally, in terms of a later era, this twilight decade of the Fifties seems as far away and as obsolete as an old-fashioned television set or a drive-in movie."

Isn't that just dandy? Well, Mr. Berton and the young are welcome to my share of the next century. I give it to them freely. One century is quite enough for an ordinary man and the old will think that they have already endured about all the change that the human system can survive.

THE point of all Mr. Berton's exhibits is, of course, that nothing is quaint and little is humorous until long after it has happened. There was nothing quaint in a Model T some thirty years ago, nothing quaint in a modern car today, though it will look not only quaint but positively ridiculous thirty years from now. We are never quaint when alive, always quaint when dead.

The other point emerging from this survey of half a century is that nothing turned out so good or bad as most people expected. Observe, for example, this quotation from an editorial of only a dozen years ago: "One notes a certain fear of Mr. (Donald) Gordon, a fear of what he may grow into. Gordon is one of the most formidable figures blown up by the war in Canada. . . . What if this man should some day appeal to the country over the heads of the government?"

WELL, Mr. Gordon didn't. He moved into the C.N.R. and seems to have his hands full without challenging the government or threatening our democracy. In the same fashion most of the horrendous verdicts on the great depression have turned out quite wrong, exactly like the horrendous verdicts on the previous boom.

We may be sure that most of the verdicts issuing today from the eminent lips of statesmen, economists, businessmen and editors will look mighty queer tomorrow. As usual, nothing is as good or bad as it seems to be when it is happening.

SOMEHOW we manage to get over everything in time and, looking backward, wonder what worried us so dreadfully. A final excerpt from Mr. Berton's research will illustrate our stubborn instinct of survival:

"Is Democracy in Canada a delusion? Are our governments merely puppets of Big Business? Many a Canadian asked himself such questions as he read the evidence brought out by the committee investigating Beauharnois."

So spoke some forgotten political reporter of 1931. Within some years the political party which had been ruined by the Beauharnois scandal was triumphantly back in office and has remained there ever since. In the furious passage of time does the reader even remember Beauharnois? Not likely, if he is under forty years of age. And everything that excites us at the moment will be no better remembered a few years hence.

Everything is changing. Everything is getting better and better. And you, dear reader, without knowing it, are getting quainter and quainter by the hour.

A GUN-COTTON TRADE — By B. A. TOBIN

'Smiling Diplomacy' Raises Some Frowns

THE so-called Geneva spirit has been widely applauded, as applied by Russia to the West. The evidence of friendliness, co-operation and desire for trade relations has been a welcome change from the old Stalinist attitude. But there are disturbing indications now that the smiles are being directed by the Kremlin in various directions. The serene rays do not play only on London and Washington. And observers in these two capitals are beginning to ask, when does a smile become a leer?

The Soviet Union is disclosing a great urge to further its contacts with some of the smaller, strategically-placed nations. But the program is being carried out adroitly, without pressure or diplomatic noise.

Casual Approach

Thus it was in almost a casual manner that the editor of Pravda, visiting Egypt's Col. Nasser, proposed that among other friendly contacts Russia and the Nile republic could enjoy would be a seller and purchaser relationship in arms. Moscow would be glad, he intimated, to accept Egyptian cotton in return for guns, and long credits could be arranged.

So developed the Middle East arms deal that today is rocking Western capitals and threatening to upset the whole balance of peace in that area.

In a similarly off-hand manner Saudi Arabia was approached for an arms deal, and may provide another cause of Western concern.

Now comes word that overtures are being made, probably directly by Czechoslovakian armaments suppliers, to certain South American countries. The Alsop brothers, Washington correspondents, report that offers have been made to Peru and Ecuador, and that there are possibilities that Mexico and even Brazil may also be on the prospects' list.

Seriously Received

Naturally such developments are being most seriously received in Washington. An arms race among the South American republics, with the likelihood of splitting the continent on ideological lines, would be a major setback to world peace. But it would also be a very smart move by organized communism—a master stroke of smiling diplomacy.

Russia's chief motive, of course, must always be interpreted along ideological lines. Nothing said before or after Geneva gives any reason for believing that communism does not want eventually to dominate the world. It is the method that has changed, not the objective. And that the Khrushchev method may be more comfortable for the victims than the Stalin method is not an argument for allowing it to achieve its goals.

A second Soviet motive may be found in the large amount of surplus arms the Russians now have on hand. The latest Russian fighters and bombers, for instance, make obsolete the models previously in service. Since the new aircraft have been produced in great quantities a widespread change-over has been effected. There must be many air fields cluttered up with thousands of only slightly-used MIGs, as well as huge stores of tanks and heavy guns that have been superseded by better models.

Premier Nasser of Egypt. Guns along the Nile. . .

Obviously, to liquidate these assets—and in places where they will aid Russia and disconcert if not endanger the democracies—is a matter of prime importance.

While other deals are in a very early stage, the arrangement with Egypt appears to be concrete and most likely to be dangerous. The Arab-Israeli tension has grown hourly since Cairo revealed the decision to purchase arms from behind the Iron Curtain. Naturally Israel, threatened with war—and obliteration if the Arabs could achieve it—is demanding aid from its friends in the West. Preferably this would take the form of a guarantee against aggression.

Little Imagination

It takes little imagination to see where such a guarantee could lead. Korea and Indo-China provided narrow enough escapes from global war.

It may be asked, why is it all right for Britain or the United States to sell arms to Middle East countries and not for Russia. There are marked differences in the two situation. Britain sells arms, including aircraft, to certain of the eastern Mediterranean lands, but in limited quantities and under close restrictions.

Since countries which desire arms are going to obtain them from one source or another, it is better that they should buy them under these conditions than under circumstances in which the seller would be delighted to see trouble arise.

Defense Only

The United States, by law, sells arms only to countries which undertake to save them for defence. There appears to be no such qualification on the communist sales to Egypt. In addition, Britain and the United States scrupulously refrain from anything in the nature of competition in the Middle East arms market. The time-bomb atmosphere of that area is too well known.

Equally, the two western powers do not wish to be drawn together into a race with Russia to supply arms to the Mediterranean countries. The results could only be suicidal.

The new ventures appear to be the Soviet reply to NATO bases in the Middle East—an attempt to encourage and construct military liaisons in quarters where they will do the most good.

That such a policy should be put into operation at a time when warm handclasps, friendly toasts and pressing invitations are being extended throughout the West is ample warning of possible danger. If diplomacy is to wear two faces, let us make sure that both are smiling.

OVER MY SHOULDER — By TOM MERRIMAN

It Isn't Really Red, It's Auburn

WHEN women started to go to beauty parlors to have their hair dyed any one of the scores of shades of red, it symbilized freedom from enslavement for natural-born redheads throughout the world.

Merriman

Physically and temperamentally there is not one whit of difference between a child born with red hair and any other child. Yet until thirty years ago the poor kid labored under a handicap from the start.

The curse having been lifted years ago, it stirs up forgotten anger to its original boiling point to see some author revive the whole red head legend again.

Latest case in point is Thyra Ferre Bjorn's book, Papa's Wife (Clarke Irwin Co. Ltd., Toronto.)

Point about red heads in this book is that the sparkling young wife of a likeable, naive young parson presents him with their second child, "a little woolly bundle" the book calls it.

"Thank you, thank you Maria," he says, "for presenting me with a son" . . . from which it is obvious the first-born was only a girl.

Then they open the little woolly bundle and Pop sees what he's won.

He really hits the roof. According to the book he explodes.

"He has red hair,' he shouts pointing at the poor kid as if it's a monstrosity.

Of course there's nothing he can do about it. The author says he endeavored sternly to put his worries aside but . . . "a son with red hair" . . . it really kept getting under his skin.

There might be a reason for it.

It might be God's way of punishing him.

Revival of this stupid old wives' tale about red heads calls for a little morale building.

GREATEST FIGURES

History lists red heads as some of the greatest figures in the world including three English monarchs beginning with William Rufus. Queen Elizabeth was a red head. So was Henry VIII. True Henry had a whimisical way with wives which got him a bad press from the scribes of the day but he also won a place on the pedestal as Defender of the Faith.

Then there was Nell Gwynne, sweet Nell of Old Drury. She did pretty well for a gal who started life selling oranges in the pit.

Locally the evidence overwhelmingly proves red heads, including all the shades, auburn, sandy, ginger and carrot, take second place to none in the field of public life, sports, brains and beauty.

Top of the list place Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, who has made his reputation nationally, and Mr. Justice Herbert Davey, destined to make his mark from from the day he left law school.

SPORTS FIELD

In the sports field there's Torchy Peden, king of the six-day bicycle racers; Red Wells, the smartest amateur to navigate a launch and boat a salmon; Vince Clarkson, golfer; Ab Wiebe, softball and hockey; Red Lawson, bowler; Red McMillan, Shamrock coach; Jack Bacon, bowler, and no doubt lots of others I don't know about.

Proving in the feminine field that red hair and charm go hand in hand there are scores of women in Victoria and most of them are bright, vivacious and dazzling too. Among them Daisy Bullock, wife of the head of the Mariners' and Mates' Guild; Eleanor Campbell, wife of Dr. W. J. Campbell; Dot Creighton, Parliament Buildings librarian, and Christine Reid, not to mention those on the Victoria Press staff.

No doubt any reader can more than double the list from his own knowledge of glamorous red heads.

TWO KINDS

This country (U.S.A.) is composed of two kinds of people. One group believes that the government can support all the citizens. The other wonders whether all the citizens can support the government.

The French Walk-Out

UNITED NATIONS—As Canada supported France over the Algerian question, which has become a cause celebre here, we have a much better right to judge the French government's action in withdrawing its delegation from this Assembly than those who voted, for whatever reason, to put it on the agenda.

STURSBERG

Officially, the Canadian delegation, while deeply regretting the Asian Arab move which it opposed, also regrets that the French should have taken this step in reprisal. We do not go so far as to say we deplore it, for that is strong language, but we do feel that the French have spoiled their own good case by pulling out in the way that they have.

It is easy enough to say this, and the question arises as to what we would have done under similar circumstances. Suppose that some group here succeeded in getting the Assembly to agree to a debate on British Columbia, or some other province of Canada (for Algeria is a department of metropolitan France), would we have swallowed our pride and taken part?

MIGHT ACT SIMILARLY

Perhaps, that is too far fetched, but suppose that Canada's treatment of the Doukhobors—and some Douhobor sect has protested to the United Nations about this—were put on the agenda, what would our reaction be?

I have a feeling that we would boycott the debate as other delegations have boycotted debates when their governments' interests were challenged in this way. I have a feeling that the Canadian delegate would walk out, grim-faced for the benefit of the camermen, followed by a covey of advisers and second secretaries, heads high in the air, attache cases firmly gripped.

There is a great difference between principle and practice; that is true in diplomacy as it is elsewhere. Most countries here, including Canada, believe that if there is a sufficient demand for a debate on a subject, it should be debated, until it affects them; then, they are against it.

VALID EXCEPTIONS

As a matter of principle, if not policy, Canada is in favor of colonial issues being put on the agenda and should do no worse than abstain. However, in the cases of Cyprus and Algeria at this Assembly, we found many good reasons why we should oppose a debate on both of them, and so we did.

Now, this sounds like cynical and amoral behavior, but it is perfectly normal conduct and exasperates only those do-gooders who do not understand power politics. No country is going to take part in a debate on what it regards as its domestic affair. National interest always comes first and will come first as long as there is no world government.

However, the French did more than walk out, than boycott a debate; although it is not absolutely clear at the time of writing, it appears as if they have withdrawn their delegation for the duration of the Tenth General Assembly.

Perhaps, they felt that they had to do this, they had to go to this extreme, because they had already boycotted debates here over Tunisia and Morocco which were minor issues compared with the Algerian question. After all, Tunisia and Morocco are bona fide colonies, while Algeria is a department of France and has been a department of France for a hundred years.

Still, this was a self-defeating action which the French took, and it leads nowhere. As a result of it, they will be unable to take part in debates in which the French have a lively interest, such as on atomic energy; they will not even be able to discuss their own trusteeship territories.

It is a sorry business, but there is no disposition here to exaggerate its effect. The consensus is that the French will return to the Assembly soon. Furthermore, it is noted that they have not withdrawn from the Security Council (or its off-shoot, the disarmament sub-committee) where their great power status is recognized by permanent membership.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Autumn in Regent's Park

LONDON — It's somewhat disheartening walking through London's parks this time of year. Especially Regent's Park, which happens to be the park just a stone's throw from where we live and therefore the one I walk in.

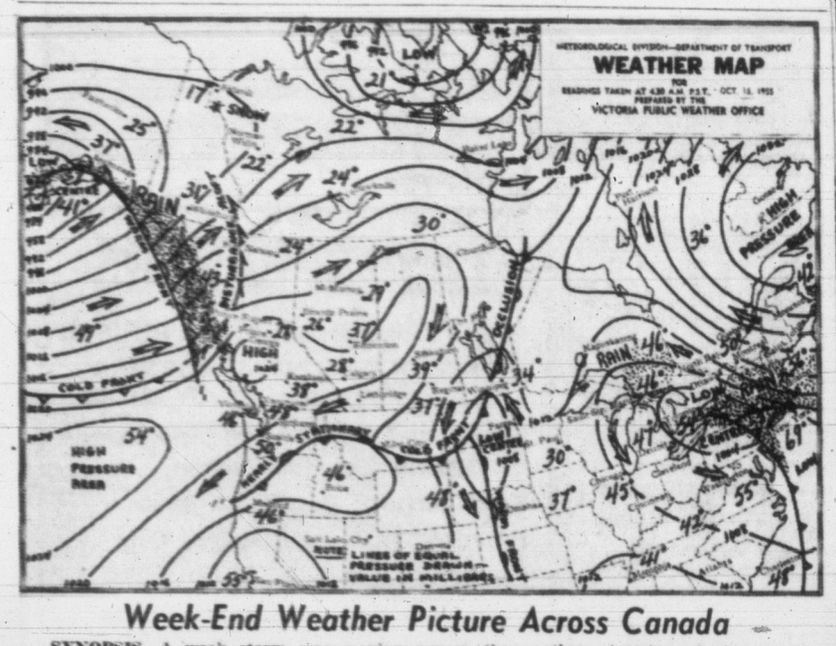
Reburn

Incidently, I'm glad it's Regent's Park I'm handy to and not Hyde Park. They are the largest of the parks in central London and, of the two, Regent's Park is far the more pleasant. There are aspects of Hyde Park that make it not as attractive as it might be. For one thing, without Regent's Park's flower beds, rose garden, open air theatre, etc., it is not as good to look at, but the main thing that detracts from it is that you get some pretty undesirable types around there, particularly at night.

Regent's Park is closed at dusk. Hyde Park isn't and when you walk across it at night you encounter all sorts of shadowy figures hanging about. No self-respecting girl walks by choice across Hyde Park after nightfall. Even by day a girl alone can find it a bit unsavory. A lass I know one day installed herself in a deck chair in the sun at a deserted part of the grass and dozed off over the book she was reading. When she woke up she counted no fewer than 14 men, each sitting casually on the grass at a strategic distance from her. Some of them were probably just nice, clean-living, lonely fellows who wanted to make her acquaintance. She didn't wait to find out.

In Regent's Park there is a much more pleasant atmosphere. There you are surrounded by mothers with their prams, airing their offspring . . . the "Poodle Parade" of poodle owners comparing notes with other poodle owners . . . puffing and panting young men in running togs, circling the park and dreaming of being the next Roger Bannister . . . girls from Bedford College inside the park sitting under the trees studying . . . kids flying kites . . . Dad taking portly Mum and the youngsters for a row and making little headway with the weighed-down stern . . . young lovers strolling hand-in-hand and the deck chair attendant clonking the bell on his ticket machine as he collects each threepence.

But what is rather sad this time of year is that you get the feeling that summer is over. The surprising warmth of the sun and the leaves still green don't presage winter, but there's a nip in the air in the shade, it's now getting dark around 7 and the deck chairs have been stored away until next spring.



Week-End Weather Picture Across Canada

SYNOPSIS—A weak storm was moving across the northern interior of the province today, giving showers of mixed rain and snow in that regian. Over the remainder of B.C. skies were mostly cloudy this morning but considerable sunshine was expected later in the day. Another Pacific disturbance will bring rain to the northern B.C. coast on Sunday, with cloudy conditions expected elsewhere over the province.

How to Torture Your Wife — A WESTERN CLASSIC

CHEST-SUPPORTED

Sunshine Camp Boon To Victoria's Blind

There is a steady tap-tapping noise as the player sets himself and bowls. Someone calls out the result of his effort and there are cheers and laughter. Another player sets himself and again comes the tapping sound.

This is a lawn bowling match, but it is no ordinary game. The players are blind, and they roll their bowls by sound instead of sight. A guide taps the white ball to give them direction.

The hard way? Perhaps. But it's fun for these members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind who each year have a 10-day holiday at the Fred Landsberg Sunshine Camp at Saseenos.

Both the camp and the Institute are supported by the Community Chest.

ARCHERY BY SOUND

Some of the players are amazingly accurate with their bowling. But that isn't the only sport. There is archery, directed by sound instead of sight. There are boating, country walks with the guides, and other pastimes.

But above all, there is the pleasure of group sociability—the freedom of being with others who bear the same affliction, the knowledge that they can relax in a safe and happy place.

There is handicraft work for those who like it. Some, working by feel alone, have modeled realistic clay animal figures which are fired in the kiln. In the evenings there are indoor games—mental games, mostly, like Twenty Questions. Their senses sharpened by loss of sight, many of the vacationers can perform phenomenal feats of memory.

The 10 days are an annual bright spot for men and women whose lives bear an undue amount of shadow. But this is only one of the services of the Sunshine Camp.

Last year 390 campers had a care-free time, 30 more than the previous year.

About 75 aged folk had a holiday there, 40 sightless persons and guides, 30 other physically handicapped persons, 50 girls of grade-school age, and many family groups not otherwise able to afford a healthful country vacation.

The work has been going on since 1928 and grows more popular every year. Although some campers pay what they can spare, the main support falls on the Community Chest. Of each $100 donated to the Chest, $4.70 goes to the camp.

Government-Backed Bank Loans May Aid Farmers Holding Grain

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP) — Government-backed bank loans may be the federal answer to Prairie appeals for ways of turning a huge stockpile of farm-held grain into cash.

Federal authorities are delving into ways of grappling with the Prairie request and some feel the best way to meet the situation is to revive and overhaul the 1951 legislation under which the government guaranteed bank loans on unthreshed grain.

Only in this case it will not be wet grain lying in fields but threshed, dry grain housed in bins that the farmers will have as security.

As a result, the maximum loan to each individual farmer of $1,000 under the 1951 legislation may be raised, though it does not appear likely the maximum interest of 5½ per cent will be lowered.

The final decision is still some weeks away. And it appears likely any federal proposal will require parliamentary approval before it becomes operative. Parliament is not expected to be reconvened before mid-January.

The big Prairie problem is that farmers have harvested a better-than-average high-quality grain crop, but cannot get rid of it. A lack of markets has slowed shipments.

A solid demand by the three Prairie provinces for federal aid to provide loans or cash advances to western farmers was presented to Prime Minister St. Laurent and his ministers last Tuesday. Mr. St. Laurent said the government will make a decision in a reasonably short time.

Colors for Canadian Troops From Edinburgh

SOEST, Germany (Reuters) — The Duke of Edinburgh will arrive by helicopter at nearby Fort York Monday to present colors to the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment.

The regiment's 55-piece band has been flown from Canada to play at the march past.

The Duke will fly from Denmark where he is visiting, to the RAF base at Guetersloh, and then by helicopter to Fort York.

SKY PILOT—The Rev. William R. Hill, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Birmingham, Ala., recently put his air force training to good use. Sitting in a bosun's chair hanging from the boom of a derrick he was hoisted more than 55 feet in the air, still wearing his clerical collar and shirt. His "mission" was to place the seven-foot cross he's carrying atop the steeple of his new church. After the cross was securely bolted down, Rev. Hill whipped out his handkerchief and polished the aluminum cross. He was an air force instructor for four years during Second World War.

Choir anthems will be "Come Holy Ghost" (Attwood) and "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace" (Noble). Evening service has been canceled in favor of the preaching mission at Metropolitan United, to which the congregation is invited.

CHURCH PAGE

FROM EVANGELIST

Women to Hear Own Message

Women of the 21 United Churches in Victoria will gather Monday afternoon at 2.30 to hear the Rev. Robert Cunningham at Metropolitan United Church.

The meeting is one of a series to be addressed by the minister of St. Andrew's-Wesley Church, Vancouver, Mr. Cunningham will speak to the general membership of the church every evening, Sunday through Friday.

The Irish evangelist will speak Monday afternoon on the place and special work of women in the church. Members of Women's Missionary Society and Women's Association branches will be present from every charge in the area.

MEN DO PART

The week's evangelistic mission will begin here Sunday morning when laymen speak from the pulpits of many United churches. They will be co-operating in a world-wide observance of Laymen's Sunday.

Laymen will conduct, or materially assist with, services in over 100,000 churches in Canada, United States and other countries. The general theme around which services are being built, is the thought in James, 1:22, "Be doers of the word and not bearers only."

Co-operating in Laymen's Sunday are: The United Church Men, a department of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.; The Laymen's Movement for a Christian World, an international association of men who apply the principles of Christianity to all their daily affairs; and The Board of Men of the United Church of Canada.

As a department of the Board of Men and the official service club type of organization of the United Church of Canada, AOTS (As One That Serves) Clubs throughout the country are actively participating in Laymen's Sunday services. Many of the 265 AOTS Clubs now in operation have been observing an annual laymen's Sunday for a considerable number of years with the newer groups adopting the tradition. Experience gained by club members taking part in these services has made it possible for several clubs to organize groups of men who conduct weekly services in areas not served by a regular minister.

The AOTS Club at Duncan supplied personnel to fill the pulpits of eight district churches during the ministers' annual vacation this summer.

AOTS participation in Laymen's Sunday services will consist in many cases of attendance of all club members in a body, with officers conducting the entire service. In some cases the choir is also composed of AOTS members. It is expected that very close to 100 per cent of all local clubs will join in the observance of Sunday morning.

ANTON LENDI

Color Films on Switzerland Shown Sunday

A color film on Switzerland will be shown at Memorial Hall Sunday night after evensong at Christ Church Cathedral.

The film will be shown by internationally-known commentator Anton Lendi, a member of an old Swiss family long active in national affairs.

Mr. Lendi was educated in his native land, Italy, Germany, France and Austria. For several years a resident of Canada and now a dual citizen of Canada and Switzerland, he served during the Second World War as an intelligence officer in the Canadian army.

PEACE WITH WORLD

Mr. Lendi will depict the way of life in Switzerland that has made it possible for its four different racial and lingual groups to live harmoniously with one another for many centuries and at peace with the world for a long time.

During the past 16 years he has been traveling through the U.S. and Canada with his inspiring Switzerland stories, presenting his color films and speaking to capacity audiences

Baptist Gospel Team Appears Here Sunday

A gospel team, composed of 12 young people of the Regular Baptist Young People's Union of B.C., coming from six of the Vancouver churches, will conduct an evangelistic service on Sunday evening at 7.30, in Central Baptist Church. The young people will provide their own speakers and musical talent.

Toronto Crusade Converts 4,555 At Midway Mark

TORONTO (CP)—They came in cars, buses and trains. They came from little ports on the Great Lakes, Ontario manufacturing towns and even from Detroit and Montreal.

In thousands they sat on benches in the waterfront Toronto Coliseum. They sang hymns, prayed, laughed, and listened silently as the intense young man with burning eyes beseeched them to remake their lives.

In hundreds they went forward to make "decisions for Christ."

Midway in the last week of Billy Graham's month-long Toronto crusade, 4,555 had walked to the platform at the handsome evangelist's call.

At two special services, 682 young people and 630 children more than 11 years old had also come forward.

With three days left to go, some 350,000 persons had attended the services. Officials expected the final total to exceed 400,000.

"This crusade has developed into one of the greatest that we have ever conducted," Dr. Graham said. "There is evidence everywhere of the same driving spirit that we felt in Great Britain."

Port Renfrew Pioneers Show Confidence in New Road Plans

By VIVIAN PURNEY
Times Port Renfrew Correspondent

PORT RENFREW—A few of the residents who settled in this area before 1900, and who have been promised a "west coast road" ever since, now are looking forward to actual completion of a road that will link them with Jordan River and Victoria in 1956.

Canadian Puget Sound Lumber and Timber Co. Ltd. of Jordan River is working westward, and the provincial government will build a stretch of between four and five miles in the vicinity of Sombrio river.

Now B.C. Forest Products Ltd., working under a forest management licence, has begun opening grade south of here to complete the connection.

Early in the 1890s the San Juan valley began to attract settlers, and in 1898 the first government land surveys were made for homesteading.

Subsequently many more families arrived to settle in this area. Some of the newcomers were interested in mining, but agriculture was the main attraction. At this time the B.C. government made the first of many promises to build the West Coast Road to encourage more settlers and to provide a means of shipping their produce to a market.

There was at this time a passenger and freight service offered by the vessel Queen City. About 100 families had settled in the district from San Juan harbor up the valley toward Harris Creek. However, as time passed and the road did not materialize, a great many of these families were forced to leave.

In 1905 the first logging company in the district, the San Juan Timber Co., started operating. In 1910 the Development League of Vancouver Island worked for the benefit of the residents by promoting the road.

It was at this time that the United States vessel Valencia, a passenger ship from San Francisco, went aground at Pachena point, 30 miles north of Port Renfrew, with the loss of 150 lives. This tragedy caused a revival of the road demands, and more promises.

Net result was the construction of a road from Pachena point to Bamfield, which is the present B.C. Telephone Co. line trail.

The year 1912 saw the first survey along the west coast from Port Renfrew, at sea level, to Jordan River, and in 1920 the government put in seven miles of road from Jordan River and 14 miles of slash.

The second survey took place in 1929, and was located further inland than the original route of 1912. It followed roughly the same line, however, and completion was promised in one year's time.

In the ensuing years many vessels plied the west coast water route. Among them were the Maude, Mischief, Queen City, Tease, Princess Maquinna, Veta C, and now the Princess of Alberni.

Since 1943 there has been an overland route consisting of 16 miles by speeder on a logging railroad to Bear Creek, then 22 miles of auto road to Shawnigan Lake.

Hulks at Oyster Bay Sold as Scrap Metal

COMOX, B. C. (CP)—A colorful collection of old ship hulls lining the shore between here and Campbell river will soon disappear.

The steel hulls of destroyers, frigates and coastal vessels, sunk 15 years ago to form a breakwater, will be cut off and hauled away for scrap.

The plan misfired as winter gales carried the hulls far and wide along the beach at Oyster bay.

The breakwater was started with mostly wooden hulks, including old sailing schooners from Lake Union in Washington state, a Puget Sound ferry and a wooden drydock.

Later all-steel hulls were used, but with little success.

Included were the destroyer HMCS Gatineau, built for the Royal Navy as HMS Express; two frigates, HMCS Matane and HMCS Dunver; the coastal passenger steamer Lady Pam, originally Lord Llangattock's luxury yacht Santa Maria; the coastal freighter Grey and the steel tug Cape Scott, once the North sea trawler Celestial Empire.

This motley collection had many adventures over the seven seas until fate decreed that they rest their bones on a lonely Vancouver island beach.

Cen. Saanich Water System Plan Mooted

SAANICHTON—People of the entire municipality of Central Saanich are entitled to a permanent water supply, and not just one particular area, according to Clr. John B. Windsor.

With this conviction in mind he directed proposals to Reeve Rupert Brown and Central Saanich council this week urging formation of an exploratory committee to ascertain the wishes of residents of the whole municipality outside the established Brentwood waterworks district, relative to expanding the area at present supplied by the Elk Lake system.

"The Brentwood water board is doing a splendid job," said Clr. Windsor today.

He indicated there would be no danger of the water supply being cut off, whatever the outcome of negotiations now in progress relative to disposition of the Elk Lake system.

FUTURE NEEDS VIEWED

"What we want to do now is to explore the requirements of the areas not now served in the municipality," he said. "When I submitted my proposition to the council I was putting out a feeler with a view to getting something started."

The councillor's plan is designed to get the viewpoint of the people throughout the municipality to determine if they are in favor of an expanded water scheme and to follow it up with an estimate of costs.

In the event of the water table being lowered to threaten the Stewart well supply, which will be tapped by the federal government after March 31 to supply Patricia Bay Airport, Clr. Windsor thought the government should be approached regarding compensation to those whose water supply might be affected by the increased Pat Bay consumption.

Late Orders Delay School Opening Date

LADYSMITH—The new Ladysmith Elementary School will not be ready for occupancy Monday, the target date set earlier this year by the school board, Bob Edwards, board chairman, said this week.

Plumbing ordered for the building has not been delivered and the board has been unable to obtain a definite delivery date, Mr. Edwards said. As a result, it is impossible for the board to say, at present, when the school will be ready for occupancy.

Mr. Edwards said that the contractors, Qualicum Construction Company, the architects, and the board had done everything possible to meet the target dates set when the contract was awarded, but circumstances beyond the control of any of them had resulted in a series of delays.

PLANTS ON STRIKE

Strikes in plants manufacturing supplies and equipment had put some of the plants as much as six months behind on their orders, he said.

Linoleum ordered months ago arrived in Vancouver only a few days ago and the architect ordered that in view of the cooler weather, it should not be laid until heat could be provided in the building.

The heating plant is installed and ready, but it could not be turned on because a delay in delivery of transformers has made it impossible to bring power to the building.

Mr. Edwards said that the transformers are now being installed and it is hoped that power connections can be made Monday.

The board has been well pleased with the general progress of the building, Mr. Edwards said.

Referendum Deserves Support

THE REVIEW, SIDNEY—Trustees of Saanich School District No. 63 are a hard-working group spending their time and energy in the public interest to provide educational facilities for the children of the Saanich Peninsula. They know that additional classrooms must be constructed without delay or the education of the children will suffer. That's why they have drawn up a comprehensive program and will submit it to the taxpayers for endorsation early next month.

At first the trustees, fully aware that the existing office building is rapidly deteriorating into a state of decay, had decided to ask the ratepayers to endorse a new $15,000 building as well. But when some responsible citizens raised their eyebrows at the suggestion, the trustees took a "second look." After reflection they decided that the highest priority is on classroom construction with the new administrative building definitely in a secondary role.

So the board has struck from the forthcoming referendum any question of a new administration building. The Review is convinced that the trustees' judgment was most sound and unhesitatingly endorses their stand. The way is now clear for taxpayers to go to the polls and voe for a sound school construction program. We hope that it will attain the necessary majority with ease.

Get Them Off the Highway

COURTENAY-COMOX ARGUS—The mounting toll of traffic accidents, and the disastrous results which too often accompany same, should be of great concern to all, pedestrians and motorists alike. While the fault does not rest completely with the younger generation, they are the major offenders.

The greatest threat on city streets today is the individual who considers it smart to make his tires "scream" as he rounds a corner, or the type that finds delight in racing another vehicle up back alleys and around the block.

Fines are no deterent to this mounting problem. The only effective penalty is the removal of the driver's licence, not for a month or two, but for a matter of years, depending on the seriousness of the charge. The people, young or old, who are making our highways a risky place at the best of times, are a definite menace to society, in this respect, and should be dealt with accordingly.

This Is a Union Problem

THE COWICHAN LEADER—It is not the fault of anyone in particular that the vast majority of sawmill workers in this area this week find their jons held up to ransom by a small minority of their fellow-workers.

The operating engineers are not covered by the same union as most mill employees. There is nothing to say they must be, although there exist excellent arguments why they ought to be covered by the same agreement which affects the largest number of workers.

Independent union action within an industry can be handled satisfactorily under given conditions. One of these would be intercession on the part of the headquarters of unions which find themselves in difficulties with their employers, as with the O.E.U. at present. A second condition, where such a small number of workers can enforce the idleness of so many other of their fellow-employers, would be for arbitration proceedings, during which operations would continue.

The idea that government must rush in to handle management-labor disputes at every turn is not complimentary to the higher echelons of either management or labor.

Hospital Plans Final Drive For $100,000

LADYSMITH—With close to 90 per cent of its $100,000 objective now assured, the Ladysmith and District Hospital Foundation this week made plans for a final push which will put the drive over the top.

John Ulinder, campaign director, reported that pledges now total 722, and the total amount received in cash and pledges totals $89,500.

Don McKay, treasurer, reported that on Oct. 1, the total of cash in the trust fund was $55,819.68. As the $25,000 pledged by the Comox Logging and Railway Company is available whenever it is required, the total amount which can be made available in cash immediately is $80,819.

ACCEPT OFFER

The current account, which is used to finance the campaign, totaled $200 at Oct. 1, Mr. McKay said.

Dr. J. W. Neville, president of the foundation, reported that the Yellow Point Drama Group has offered to produce a three-act play, "Quiet Weekend," in Ladysmith in aid of the hospital building fund. This offer was accepted with thanks and it was decided to enlist the support of all local organizations to insure the success of the venture.

A committee comprised of Ron Bowen, Dr. R. J. Stirling, Dr. Neville and Mrs. H. Kotilla was appointed to make arrangements for the poruduction.

Heavy Rain Nuisance In Chemainus Area

CHEMAINUS — Recent heavy rains caused flooding of the uncleared reservoir behind the new Miller Creek dam.

Works superintendent Perry Ross reported that although flume gates on the new dam were wide open, water and debris still poured over the top of the dam.

In Chemainus, heavy rains have made ditches filled in after the laying of new water mains, so soft that cars are continually sinking.

Chemainus Kinsmen Install New Officers for 1955-56

CHEMAINUS — Jack Miller was named "Kinsmen of the Year" at the annual installation ceremony of Chemainus Kinsmen Club.

A unanimous choice for the award, made for the first time this year, Mr. Miller was honored for his untiring efforts on behalf of the local club.

Incoming officers of the Kinsmen and Kinette clubs were installed by deputy governor Pat Shea of Nanaimo, assisted by past deputy governor Phil LeMare of Lake Cowichan. Kinsmen officers installed were: President, Murray Poskitt; vice-president, Alex McAuley; treasurer, Ian McEwan; registrar, Jim Reid; directors: Tom Greenhorn, Don Dickie and Earl McColl.

Kinette officers: President, Joan Syme; vice-president, Joan Allester; secretary-treasurer, Bernie McColl; registrar, Velma McEwan.

Kinsmen from Lake Cowichan, Nanaimo, Ladysmith, Courtenay and the Vic-Van-Isle club in Victoria attended the dual installation.

Former Secretary Of Hockey Group Admits $75 Theft

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Frank Joseph Foster, former secretary-treasurer of the Nanaimo Minor Hockey Association, Friday pleaded guilty in police court here to theft of $75 from the association.

He was remanded until Monday for sentence.

The theft occurred last December when Foster was still connected with the association.

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Inclusion of penalty clauses in future school contracts will be considered by the Nanaimo district school board. Move is being contemplated because of delays which have held up the opening of the city's new $800,000 junior high school.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

In the Ontario hamlet of Flesherton they have been suffering from an ancient complaint lately. The symptoms always follow a well-known pattern and it runs something like this: A librarian reads about a book in one of the various lists compiled for just such a purpose and orders it for her library. It is read by a good number of people; some like it, some don't, but no one is too much influenced one way or the other.

Then a young girl (almost always it is a young girl) comes along and borrows the book. Now this young girl happens to have the kind of father who is a snooper. He probably goes through her dresser drawers when she is out of the house and, no doubt he knows where all her mail comes from and who calls her on the telephone. This, of course, because he is concerned for her welfare. So naturally he reads—or looks at—any books she might be reading because he knows—oh, you can't fool him—the kind of trash which young girls might read if they got a chance. Indeed, for a long time he has suspected the worst. And this time he strikes pay-dirt. He finds some allusions which he promptly labels as "smut" and all hell breaks loose. He calls on the press, the clergy, on every parent with a conscience and everybody else to protect our youth from this dirty book. He really kicks up a dust.

Now I wouldn't say that this is precisely what has happened in Flesherton, but that's how it often is.

Knew 'Right Away' Something Fishy

At any rate, in Flesherton a parent took a look at Sheila Mackay Russell's latest novel, "The Living Earth," and he started raising ructions. He was suspicious of the book, he says, because the title of the cover was printed without using any capital letters. "I knew there was something fishy about it right away," he is reported as saying.

He was not disappointed. He found some things which, in his opinion (and he's entitled to it) were not fit for young girls to read.

Well now. I am the father of a young daughter myself. I, too, have read "The Living Earth." What's more I must confess that I have no suspicion of titles which are printed without capitals. Now in my opinion (and I'm entitled to it, too, don't forget that) there is not a thing in the book which would do any normal, sane youngster any harm whatsoever.

So how do you get around this problem? I am every bit as entitled to my opinion of the book as the irate dad from Flesherton. What's more nobody is going to push me around any more than they are going to push him around. It looks as if we have reached an impasse, doesn't it?

Well not exactly. There really is a quite simple solution. Nobody is going to try to interfere with the rights of either of us as parents. We are both still quite free to exercise whatever control over our children we think is necessary and judicious. No outsider will ever force the Flesherton girl to read the book if her father doesn't want her to read it.

Meanwhile, of course, he has no right to try to make the book impossible for others to get. We have our rights, too.

And what's more, if he is wise, he'll smarten up and know that censorship of books has never yet been made to work in the Western world and it is very unlikely that his efforts in Flesherton will break that tradition.

Books on Canadian Cities Scarce

The stories of Canadian cities are not too plentiful in our literature. The best I know is Blodwen Davies' "Ottawa," which was published last year, but another volume has been added to the slim literature of our cities this fall with Earl Drake's "Regina, the Queen City." This is not the most fascinating book I have ever read nor is it likely that, with its limited geographic appeal, it will ever become a best seller, but it accentuates an important point which Canadians ought to realize about the Prairies.

Anyone who is familiar with Canada's portion of the Great Plains knows that while there is not much variety, what there is comes in large quantities. The lack of variety in natural resources has been the great headache of the plains. The story of Regina is the story of how, with plenty of what they had, but with pitiful limitations in the ingredients which are necessary to making a city, a fine capital was eventually produced.

All the Regina townsite had in the beginning was a strategic position on the newly-built CPR main line and lots of space. It had no scenery, no water, no focal point so that for years they didn't even know where to make the centre of the town. But it had the growing wealth of the prairies, and the indomitable courage of its founding fathers. That made a great city.

The same combination made the great Canadian West. It does us no harm to hear another version of this inspiring story.

Novel Reveals Feelings of Immigrants

MOUNTAIN SHADOWS, by Magdalena Eggleston, British Book Service (Canada) Ltd., Toronto: 254 pp.; $2.75.

This first novel by Magdalena Eggleston is an extremely interesting story of life in a small coal-mining town of Alberta.

The population consists largely of emigrants, many of whom speak little, if any, English and were treated with scorn by the workers of Canadian or British origin.

The older people, glad to live in security, were not overly worried by this attitude but the youngsters who had been brought up and educated in Canada resented it.

"Mountain Shadows" shows the reaction of young English-speaking foreigners to life in Canada and as such should be read with interest and profit.

In East Germany The Explosion Records Revolt

THE EXPLOSION, by Ranler Hildebrandt: Little, Brown & Co (Canada) Toronto.

Although it happened less than three years ago the revolt of East Germany against the tyrannical rule of Russia has almost been forgotten by the rest of the world. But the gallant champions of freedom, who risked their lives in the cause, will never forget it.

They included workmen, teachers, army officers, professional men and women of all ages.

This book is the story of that pent-up explosion and those brave people who organized it. The revolt was said to have failed but its reverberations shook all Europe.

Rainer Hildebrandt has given a clear, concise account of the uprising which is illustrated by authentic photographs. It is a striking story which records a vital event for history.

REVIEWS IN BRIEF

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF CHILD CARE AND GUIDANCE. Edited by Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg. Doubleday. Parents never had it so good in the old days. When you see the way the young fathers and mothers of today are pampered with aids, gadgets and counsel—to say nothing of this excellent, all-encompassing guide to parenthood—you wonder how earlier generations ever came to do as well as they did. This encyclopedia is an enormous tome of more than 1,000 pages, covering every conceivable aspect of parenthood. It is written in clear, readily understandable language that even the most harrassed or timid of parents can grasp. The major portion of the book is an alphabetical treatment of child care running to over 1,000 entries. The rest consists of some 30 chapters in which experts deal with major aspects of child care at considerable length. It all adds up to a big bargain for parents, especially those who like to bring up their babies by the book. This big one obviously has a long and useful life ahead of it.

MR. KOALA BEAR, by Elisabeth MacIntyre; Scribner's. Into the peace and quiet of Mr. Koala Bear's house in the gum tree burst two little bears. They say they are his nephews. Their mother has given them strict instructions to visit him for a week. Viewing the havoc wrought by their "helpfulness," one can guess why: mother bear must have needed a rest. The pictures, bright and gay as the mischief they portray, are more fun than the rhymes. Reading level: picture book.

Tale of Christianity's Founding Work of Unrivalled Excellence

Novel That Took 20 Years to Compile Is Profound, Reverent, Inspiring

REVIEWED BY TONY DICKASON

SIMON PETER THE FISHERMAN, by Kurt Frieberger, British Book Service (Canada) Ltd., $3.25, 360 pp.

The lives of the Apostles have inspired some notable contemporary novels, so many indeed that the New Testament and the Apocrypha would appear to be an inexhaustible source of such material.

While stories like "The Road to Bythnia," "The Silver Chalice" and "The Big Fisherman" are no doubt excellent works, Mr. Frieberger's new novel is about the best that has ever appeared, by every comparison.

The book, a work of entirely free creative imagination, took 20 years to complete from its conception in 1934. This is probably the key to its success. The author has lived extensively in Rome, has become one with his subject, and poured extensive research into the book. Few writers have been so thorough.

The story takes in the fateful years of Christ's ministry and the 30 crowded years of Peter's life that followed. It opens with the early miracles of Jesus, moves on progressively to the cricifixion.

It follows the Acts of the Apostles and closes with the burning of Rome and Peter's martyrdom—a crucifixion upside down because "Lord, I am not worthy to be raised above the world like you."

The book is the first novel ever to be dedicated by permission to a Pope, Pius XII.

Existence of the Roman Catholic church is based on Matthew 16-18: "And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

In the larger meaning, it was Peter who fought for establishment of Christianity, regardless of particularized affiliations, and for this reason alone a perusal of the splendid volume imbues one with understanding a vital significance for our time.

Doctor Tells Of Work in Lonely Arctic

"Arctic Doctor," by Dr. Joseph P. Moody, with W. De Groot van Embden; Dodd, Mead & Co., Toronto, $4.25, 274pp.

This is a fascinating book to anyone interested in people or peoples, and who isn't?

The people concerned are the doctor and his wife, and the Eskimos, trappers, missionaries and others in his 600,000 square-mile practice; in all, about 2,000 souls to whom Dr. Moody ministered medically for four years.

It is a story of tough adventure, suffering, the strange loneliness of the north, and its native inhabitants, still children in ways of the white man.

NEW FRESHNESS

The Eskimo story has been told again and again, but, under the joint styles of Moody and van Embden, who collaborated, regains a new freshness.

Apart from the story of his medical work, the innumerable sidelights on northern beauties of nature, his descriptions of the rugged northerners and their behavior is easy to take.

The reading is simple and the facts straight.

The 3,500-mile stretch of Canadian Arctic which lies close to Russia, uninhabited and barely accessible, stands guard over millions of square miles of coal, iron, copper, lead, cobalt, not to mention uranium composites.

The doctor says it would take an army of 500,000 men, or 150 fighter or bomber wings to guard this area. All sorts of technical problems, apart from medical only, would evolve and tests to date have only tapped the surface of these.

It's not likely this book will contribute heavily to anything not yet known of the north, nor was it the doctor's intention to so do, but for people who don't recognize the aurora borealis from sun spots, it's fun and informative.—T.D.

Alaska Water Story Stirs Vivid Memories

IN ALASKAN WATERS, by Alfred Wolfe. The Caxton Printers Ltd., Caldwell, Idaho. 196 pp. $3.

"In Alaskan Waters," by Alfred Wolfe, is the simple factual account of a halibut fisherman's life on the waters adjacent to Vancouver Island, northern British Columbia and Alaska.

Alfred Wolfe, or Alfred Wolfhechel, to give him his proper name, is a Dane who came to the United States as a young man to earn his living; who drifted north from San Francisco, where he learned English, to Seattle, where he joined the crew of a fish boat as cook, and went out to the halibut banks. Apparently he was not much of a success as a cook, so thereafter shipped as a crewman.

A RUGGED LIFE

Life in the fishing fleet in 1910 was a hard one, and Wolfe tells the story of his adventures with fish, storms, accidents and hardships in vivid simple prose. In spite of all this he makes the reader feel that the life was, after all, a good one, which he enjoyed.

Fishermen in those days received no wages, but were paid a share, depending on the size of the catch, and the price paid for it.

Prices were low, and the catch unpredictable. He tells, for instance, that for one voyage of 10 days' hard work, the crew received $6.15 each. Price for halibut varied from 2 to 4 cents a pound, depending on the size, and the skipper had to find his own market on returning to port. Salmon prices were almost equally low; humpbacks at ¾ to 1½ cents apiece, cents) on the waterfront—until he got another boat. He tried his hand at salmon fishing too, and made a few thousand dollars, which he lost at Ketchikan as a partner in a concern "manufacturing a universally used article." Wolfe returned to his fishing.

His description of the methods and gear actually used is interesting, and shows clearly the strides made from hand-power and dories to machines and large vessels.

Very interesting, too, to British Columbians especially, is the account of the dramatic tragedy of the sinking of the CPR Princess Sophia in Alaskan waters on Oct. 25, 1918, with the loss of 355 lives. The sole survivor of the wreck was an English setter dog which somehow swam ashore. The subsequent lawsuit which dragged on until 1933 is also summarized.

The publishers have produced a well-made book, attractive and with well-chosen illustrations.

and sockeye for 15. However, by 1927, sockeye had risen to $1.10.

UP AND DOWN

Wolfe shipped out of Seattle on halibut boats for several years, making good money sometimes, and at others, nothing.

On these occasions he lived the best he could—sleeping under a bridge until the police routed him out, and eating doughnuts and coffee (price 5

Republicanism On Wane U.S. Author Declares

DECLINE OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC, by John T. Flynn, Devin-Adair.

John T. Flynn has long been an outspoken critic of New Deal politics. In his new book, "The Decline of the American Republic," he warns that the very foundations of the United States are in danger.

In 171 tightly written pages Flynn, with his usual forcefulness and clarity, argues that the "true American republic" is virtually unknown to anyone under 40 years of age because for too many years the United States has been led far afield from the principles on which it was founded and governed until 1933.

Flynn balances his argument against the histories of Greece, Rome, France, Germany and England to support his theory.

He believes that only a short move back will be enough to regain the traditional road of U.S. development.

He urges a return to the historic limits which controlled the government through the constitutional repudiations of all Supreme Court decisions since 1937.

In addition he wants repudiation of the United Nations, the repeal of the 16th (income tax) Amendment as the cause of shocking abuses in government and the adoption of the Bridges-Byrd amendment which would limit government spending to revenue, in order to halt deficit spending and federal borrowing.

ANCIENT COLLEGE

Oldest college at Oxford university, Merton College was founded in 1264.

"One thing I know; the only ones among you who will be really happy are those who will have sought and found how to serve."—Dr. Albert Schweitzer.

THIS PAINTING OF "MADONNA AND CHILD," purchased last year in a New York antique shop for $450, has been identified by experts in Europe as a one-million-dollar Leonardo da Vinci original. It was bought by Hanns R. Teichert, an art dealer. Dr. Maurice H. Goldblatt, art director of the University of Notre Dame, told of the experts' decision after he personally took the painting to Europe. The painting is shown here in Chicago with Teichert's daughter, Gloria.

CANADIAN HERO NEGLECT CONDEMNED BY AUTHOR

TORONTO (CP)—A Canadian-born author now living in the United States has chided Canadians for ignoring their own historical heroes who, he said, rank "head and shoulders" above U.S. counterparts.

Merill Denison told the Toronto chapter of the Canadian Public Relations Society that Canadian youth is falling too readily into worship of such American figures as frontiersman Davy Crockett.

"There are plenty of full-blooded Canadian heroes head and shoulders above the American versions," he said.

Klondike Mike Mahoney of Ottawa is a shining example, he said. Mahoney claimed to have carried a piano over the Yukon's Chilkoot Pass on his back during the Klondike gold rush.

Another was Joe Lagmoniere, who trekked from Fort Garry, now Winnipeg, to Montreal, on snowshoes in 60 days.

Mr. Denison listed Angus MacAskill, the Cape Breton giant, explorers Radisson, Groseillers, Fraser and the La Verendyres as men worthy of attention."

Figment of Imagination Calls Author on Phone

LONDON (AP)—S. J. Perelman, the American humorist, has created hundreds of fictional characters. His latest one has come to life.

"I had just finished writing a part for Noel Coward in a new film," said Perelman, "and I called this character Roland Smythe-Piggott.

"Then, Mr. Smythe-Piggott called me."

The voice on the telephone reported a Smythe-Piggott didn't want his name connected with any character in film.

The following day there was another telephone call, and then one from lawyers.

"It was pure coincidence that I lit upon this name," said the writer, "but we quickly eliminated it."

The character was changed to Roland Hesketh-Baggott.

"Coward thought this one up," said Perelman, "and up to now we've had no complaints."

A IS FOR ANNABELLE by Tasha Tudor (Oxford). An old-fashioned doll is clothed from A to Z in this beguiling alphabet book. Reading level: picture book.

Futile Voyage Creates Story

MIRACLE OF THE ARCTIC, by Ejnar Mikkelsen, Clarke Irwin & Co., Toronto; 216 pages; $3.75:

This story of adventure in the Arctic is particularly interesting to Canadians because the author started on his voyage from Vancouver.

Although born to the sea, like so many Danes, Ejnar Mikkelsen was too young and inexperienced at the time of the voyage to realize the difficulties he might encounter in an effort to explore the land he thought existed in the Beaufort Sea to the north of Alaska.

Sailing in Arctic waters is always hazardous and the setbacks and hardships that he and his men endured were terrific. When they reached the tip of Alaska the crew were on the verge of mutiny. The Eskimos gave them a certain amount of help, but they were near starvation and obliged to kill their dogs for food.

In October, 1906, Mikkelsen set out on a 25,000-mile sledge trip to the south and on his way encountered many of the prospectors who had tavelled north for gold. His description of the, then, six-year-old town of Fairbanks in Alaska is particularly good.

Fairbanks at that time was at the height of its prosperity, crowded with gold-hungry men, where the fate of everyone and everything depended on the precious metal. Champagne was drunk like water and jewelry worth a king's ransom was seen at every social gathering.

It was not until the year 1946 it was discovered by aerial survey that the supposed land in the Beaufort Sea was found to be islands of ice drifting around the North Pole.

Author Puts Life's Spark Into History

Scholarly Story Of Roman Emperor

MEMOIRS OF HADRIAN by Margaret Yourcenar, British Book Service (Canada) Ltd. 320 pages, $2.75.

This is not a book to be glanced through casually. It is one that demands the full attention of the reader and was written more for the thoughtful student of history than readers of lighter material.

The author is to be congratulated on the apparent ease with which she has reconstructed the life and times of Hadrian and other famous Roman figures of almost 2,000 years ago.

She writes with dignity and controlled brillance in keeping with the days when Roman culture was at its mature best.

So much at home does the author seem with her characters that one would almost imagine that she has the power of projecting herself into the past.

The "Memoirs" are ostensibly written by the famous Roman emperor himself and this use of the first person has given the story a realistic touch which animates his character, bringing him and his country alive as no mere history book could.

Throughout the memoirs runs a thread of sound philosophy as Hadrian discourses on youth, love, beauty, war and life in general.

We see him as a young army officer, as consular agent and as the general in charge of the Roman army during the occupation of Britain. It was during this period that he constructed the famous "Hadrian's Wall," traces of which still remain in the north of England. This entrenchment, which served to keep out the bloodthirsty Caledonians who had almost wiped out a Roman legion, brought peace and security to both the invaders and the Britons themselves.

The author has indeed been fortunate in her choice of a translator, Grace Frick. In a translation from French into English much of the subtleties and nuances of the former language is often lost, but that is not the case in "Memoires d' Hadrien."

SHEPHERD'S DAIRY CHOOSES CHEVROLET

The seven gleaming new Chevrolet trucks lined up before Shepherd's Dairy, 1645 Fort Street, have just been delivered as additions and replacements in the delivery fleet of this old established Victoria firm. H. G. Shepherd, managing director for the firm, is shown here as he accepts the keys from Wally Stipe, truck sales manager for Wilson Motors Ltd. The short runs and continual starting and stopping entailed in a busy milk delivery route are a gruelling test for any truck and these new '55 models with famous hydramatic drive have been chosen for dependability and economy.

CHERNIAVSKY PLAYS

Musical Art Revives Former Distinguished Artist Plan

With the presentation on Tuesday of the distinguished West Coast pianist, Jan Cherniavsky, Victoria Musical Art Society is reviving a policy which the parent organization—Victoria Ladies' Musical Club—initiated in the early part of the century.

Some of the world's most famous artists then visited this city under sponsorship of the organization which, 25 years ago evolved into the Musical Art Society with membership open to both men and women.

Entries in an album belonging to the original group commence with the signatures of Mark Hamburg, Walter Damrosch Hughes, Thomas of the Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir and Liza Lehmann, all dated in the year 1910.

This record, continuing until the early 1920s, contains the names of Georges Enesco, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Dame Clara Butt and her husband, Kennerly Rumford, the great German woman pianist, Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, John McCormack, Percy Grainger, Vladimir Rosing, Fritz Kreisler, Josef Hoffman, Elman, Madame Schumann-Heink, the Flonzaley Quartet and many others.

Now, at the commencement of its 25th year of continuous functioning, the Victoria Musical Art Society marks the occasion with a celebrity concert at the Royal Theatre.

The artist chosen for the occasion is one who is well known to musical Victoria, for his long residence in this province and his outstanding virtuosity on his chosen instrument.

Cherniavsky is noted for his poetic interpretations, particularly of Chopin and others of the romantic and impressionistic schools.

Tickets are on sale at Kent's Ltd., Fort Street.

MRT ALUMNI

Famous Amateurs Sprout Pro Wings

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Repertory Theatre starts its 26th season with plans for expansion.

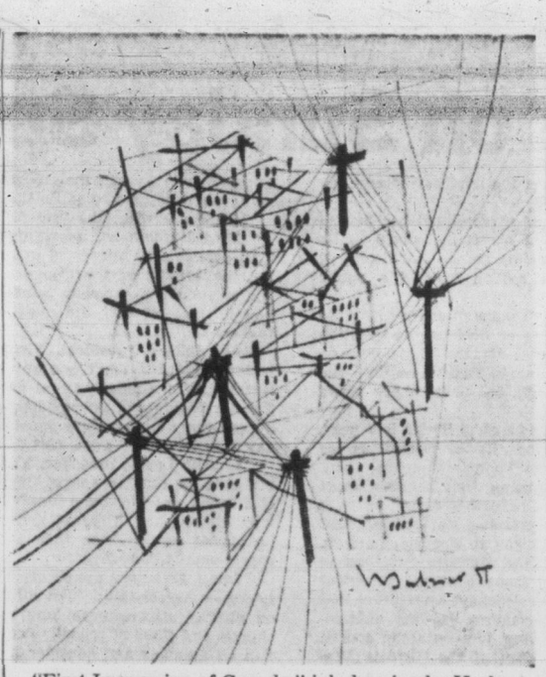
The MRT, as it is known locally, for years has been the training school for young stage hopefuls in Quebec. Now it is looking for larger premises to house its productions.

A new departure in the theatre's varied program, a professional wing, was announced by MRT's new, managing director, Bruce Raymond.

In the past, all the MRT productions were presented on an amateur basis. From the ranks of stagestruck youngsters who have trod the boards at the Guy street playhouse, have come such Canadian names as Eleanor Stuart, Robert Goodier, Christopher Plummer, Richard Easton and many others now professional. Under the policy of amateur productions, these stars could not come back to play before the audiences who knew them first.

The professional wing will present occasional special productions featuring MRT alumni on a professional basis. In addition local players will get experience in a professional atmosphere.

MRT will continue to present its regular amateur program, dedicated to finding and developing new Canadian talent. The directors feel that with the current high interest in the theatre, fanned by the Stratford Festival and other groups, the job of the MRT as one of the important dramatic training centres will become more and more significant.



"First Impression of Canada," ink drawing by Herbert Siebner.

Art in Review

By COLIN GRAHAM

Slightly over a year ago this column paid its respects to Herbert Siebner, a young painter just arrived from West Berlin whose accomplishments obviously entitled us to congratulate ourselves on the appearance of a welcome addition to the roster of Canadian talent.

There seemed quite a number of reasons why these self congratulations were in order. The range of Mr. Siebner's work, his painterly assurance, his sense of style and color, and the enviable ease with which he usually seemed to accomplish exactly what he set out to do—all these marked the natural painter.

But as these qualities have already been ably reviewed in the regular columns of this paper on the occasion of his current large show at the gallery, I want to touch here on one asset which appears rather rarely in Canadian art and which therefore may be the more valuable to us. It comes out in a few of his paintings and one could almost call it wit, but there is rather more to it than that.

GROWING CHILD

Canadian art as a whole is still too near its infancy to have arrived at any marked degree of sophistication. We tend to take our artistic affairs rather solemnly—as witness this column most days, for instance. Apt to imagine that anything witty must be frivolous or, worse still, a trifle on the shallow side, we forget that a host of creations from Aristophanes' comedies to Haydn's symphonies give the lie to such notions.

Like many artists of the present century Mr. Siebner is anxious to slough off the deadening incrustations, that sort of arthritis of the senses, which afflict our materialist age. He would like to regain something of the spontaneity of the primitive or the child, something of the same capacity for delight and wonder. In his watercolors and graphic work especially there is sometimes an atmosphere of fairy-tale fantasy. But Mr. Siebner is, after all, a product of the city culture of Europe, so that it should not surprise us to find the magic mixed up with a thoroughly sophisticated and often ironical sense of the comic, or to be reminded by an occasional bit of prankish spoofing that he is a countryman of Til Eulenspiegel.

Yet I suspect that some people are going to find it difficult to see this wit in his painting. If so, this will doubtless be partly because most of us in the English-speaking world have been trained by our cartoon traditions to look for pictorial wit solely in the subject-matter of a picture. We find it hard to see why genuinely visual wit lies not in the expression of a face or a verbal caption but rather in the abstract relation of one line to another.

GETS THE POINT

The illustration I have chosen here is one of his slighter pieces, but it does I think illustrate the point. There is, it is true, some humor in the subject-matter: the amused bewilderment of the newly arrived European on encountering one of our towns tied up in a tangled skein of overhead telephone wires. Yet the real point of the drawing lies surely in the beguiling way in which the sweeping lines and staccato pen strokes work with one another in a sort of ballet dance. It is rather like a painter's equivalent of Massine doing his mimetic dances in Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme or the rhythms of Debussy's Golliwog's Cake Walk.

Rare Success For Woman Composer

MONTREAL (CP)—Violet Archer of Montreal, who insists she is no militant feminist, nevertheless is earning recognition in one of the last male strongholds. With 56 musical compositions to her credit, she has earned an international reputation as a pioneer among women composers.

Her work includes 16 orchestra compositions, 15 chamber music pieces, 14 for piano, three for organ, nine choral works and 12 solo songs. Her music has been performed on the BBC with Sir Adrian Boult conducting, on Radio Geneva, the CBC, and in several Canadian, United States and European cities.

During a recent visit to Montreal Miss Archer said she feels she can make a contribution to the cause of Canadian music through her post as a teacher of music composition at the University of Oklahoma, where she has been able to introduce works of Canadian composers to American audiences.

FACE HANDICAPS

"Recognition as a composer does not come easily to a woman," Miss Archer said. "There has been a gradual change in the atttitude towards women theorists and composers, but there are still some diehard musicians and conductors who will not consider music composed by a woman."

"As leading artists in the musical world, women have long taken their place, but in the field of theory and composition it is still very restricted."

Recognition is not lacking from the University of Oklahoma, however. Dean Harrison Kerr of the fine arts faculty there commented: "She has an amazing and outstanding talent—one that is bound to be recognized more and more."

GRUBER CONDUCTS

Comparison of 'Hi-Fi' Records With 'Live' Music Invidious

The phenomenon of radio and records are something of a two-edged sword to live, local symphony orchestras. On the one hand, these media have done more than anything else to awaken musical knowledge and appreciation on a scale undreamed of only perhaps 30 years ago.

In this way, the road was paved for local symphony orchestras, who were all of a sudden presented with a relatively wide and informed public. However, on the other hand, this same public now intimately acquainted with the masterworks, gained their knowledge by means of recordings played by some of the most renowned orchestras, conductors, musicians, in the world. They not only learned their music, but they learned it through recorded performances of highest professional standards. This, understandably, would make them dissatisfied with initial efforts of their own local symphony orchestras.

Where lies the answer to this dilemma? At the risk of disillusioning some record collectors, at the risk of incurring the wrath of music store proprietors, at the risk of giving away "trade secrets," I shall try to show that local symphony orchestras do have legitimate claims upon the attentions of this same public which has become spoiled by technically flawless recorded performances.

PARTIAL "FAKES'

First of all, it is safe to generalize in this instance by saying that most recorded performances are, to a greater or lesser degree, "fakes." And never was this statement more true than in these days of "hi-fi" recording techniques. Even the greatest orchestras, the greatest artists find it necessary to re-play, to re-record some passages of a given work owing to various flaws, musical or technical, during the first and original recording session. That privilege, naturally, is not open to public performers, when things must be right immediately and the first time, or else it is too late.

During a public performance we cannot stop, re-play a single note or groups of notes, cut the tape, splice the tape, substitute by this means the mistakes with the corrected version, and come up with a seeming miracle of perfection.

Secondly, this truly marvellous sound we hear nowadays on records through complex and expensive amplifiers is, to me, a mixed blessing. It is, in short, NOT a natural orchestral or instrumental or vocal sound. It is achieved not nearly so much by any intrinsic gorgeousness of sound on the part of the recording musicians as by judicious twirling of knobs by a sound engineer in his booth adjacent to the recording hall.

MIKES IN TRUMPET?

Microphones are placed in positions within, around, above, underneath the recording orchestras—sometimes I suspect inside the very instruments—but certainly never in a position relative to the orchestra where the audience's ears would be during a public performance. Thus, this modern "hi-fi" recording technique results, admittedly, in clear detail as to what all the various instruments are actually playing—it is as if you or I could divide ourselves into half-a-dozen heads, each with a pair of ears, and disperse ourselves throughout the orchestra WITHIN the orchestra.

What we, therefore, do not get on records—for the two are naturally exclusive—is the unified, over-all orchestral sound which can only be heard at that approximate distance away from the orchestra which divides it and the audience in a concert hall during a live performance—and, this one of the main points—it is this unified, homogeneous sound which is the correct one, for it was with all this in mind that the composers wrote their music.

NO VARIATION

What about the purely musical—"interpretive," if you like—aspects of recorded performances as against "live" concerts? The way someone performs for a recording becomes fixed forever after. On a record, we not only get to know a particular piece of music, but we develop at the same time an inflexibility as to how such a piece is played, and we go on from there insisting that this is also how it SHOULD be played.

Even the greatest musician—the one who has the recording contract — will disagree with that, and, if he doesn't, he should. Because no musician has ever played the same piece twice the same way, and no conductor has ever conducted—even deliberately — the same piece twice the same way.

(This is the first of two articles by Mr. Gruber on the subject of "live" versus recorded music. The second will appear next Saturday.)

ANCIENT TRADITIONS INHERITANCE OF CHOIR

Opening their sixth annual concert series with the appearance of the distinguished St. Cecelia Choir from Rome, on Tuesday, Oct. 26, Famous Artists will this year bring to Victoria five of the most outstanding attractions in the entertainment world, plus a thrilling "extra."

The appearance of the Santa Cecelia Choir is an event of great importance to music lovers of our city. Direct from Italy, the world famous choir, conducted by Bonaventura Somma, comes to North America for the first time. This is the distinguished chorus of The Academy of Saint Cecelia in Rome, and is considered to rank as the world's finest.

The 35 singers are the resident chorus of the oldest musical institution in existence, founded in 1566 and first headed by Palestrina. In 1870 the Academy became the National Conservatory of Italy. The choir's repertory will feature music by Palestrina, Vittoria, Mozart, Gounod, Moteverdi, Brahms, and the Verdi Requiem.

SOCIAL SIN OR CITIZEN'S RIGHT?

By BILL RAYNER

City Chooses Sides on Sunday Sports Controversy

The controversial issue of Sunday sports, recently resolved in Vancouver for the time being by a negative vote of its city council, has yet to arouse any fervent for or against crusades in traditionally staid Victoria.

In a poll of opinion conducted by the Times of the city's civic, sports and church leaders, feelings expressed followed a predictable pattern of "yes" from the sporting fraternity, "no" from the church groups, and "maybe" from some civic dignitaries.

Briefly, the question that has aroused much comment recently in Vancouver and Winnipeg would be to "allow admission to be charged to sporting contests on Sunday between the approximate hours of 1 and 6 p.m."

This would call for a revision to the Lord's Day Act, which forbids any commercial undertaking on Sunday.

The sports would be specifically named, such as: ice hockey, baseball, softball, soccer, Canadian football, indoor bowling (which already operates unmolested in the city), basketball, curling, lacrosse, etc.

The premise of commercialized Sunday sports would be to help the various amateur organizations who, in Victoria and elsewhere, are usually in desperate financial straits.

The collection of gate receipts for sporting contests between the hours named on Sunday afternoon would be a great help toward putting many amateur sports back on their collective feet. In many sports, such as softball, baseball and soccer, Sunday crowds are the biggest, while the revenue, due to silver collection, is the smallest of any day of the week.

Vancouver, with the return of professional baseball to the city next season, witnessed a short and sharp battle between the two opposing viewpoints before a 4-2 vote of the city council turned down a motion to hold a public plebiscite on the question.

In Winnipeg, the "fors" and "againsts" are gearing for battle on an Oct. 26 referendum to be held on the question in the Manitoba city.

Battle lines have yet to be drawn in Victoria on the issue or on the possibility of a plebiscite, but some sharp views have been expressed.

Since the demise of Victoria's baseball Tyees last year, the only professional sport in the city at present is ice hockey, under the auspices of the Victoria Cougars.

Fred Hutchinson, while admitting that Sunday sport would be a boon to his Cougars, nevertheless fell in with the amateur sports crowd by expressing the opinion that all spectator sports should be allowed to operate Sundays.

Charlie Lewis, manager of the Victoria Strathconas in the Coast Soccer League, and Doug Fletcher, president of the Vancouver Island Amateur Hockey Association and the Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association, led the affirmative camp to the extent of allowing just amateur sports, while Rev. F. E. H. James, president of the Victoria Ministerial Association, strongly expressed the negative vote of most church leaders.

Mayor Claude Harrison, while taking a jovial but cautious attitude toward the controversy, thought that a plebiscite should be held to settle the question.

Here are what the "yesses" had to say:

Fred Hutchinson, managing director, Victoria Cougars: "I'm particularly interested in having Sunday sport allowed for the benefit of the Cougars, but I think all spectator sports should be allowed Sunday between the hours of 1 and 6. I think that the question should definitely go to the people."

Jim Lackie, president, Victoria Men's Senior "A" Softball League: "I don't see any harm in people paying to watch sports Sundays as on other days. We play softball Sunday nights and nobody has said anything. It would be a good thing for amateur sport if games were allowed Sunday afternoons between certain hours."

Charlie Lewis, manager, Victoria Strathconas: "I'm 100 per cent for Sunday sports. Not only soccer but all sports, if allowed only in the afternoons and not in interference with church activities. If golf and tennis are allowed to be played on Sundays, then there's no reason why other sports shouldn't be."

Doug Fletcher, president, VIAHA and Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association: "I'm all in favor of amateur sports on Sunday afternoon as long as they don't interfere with church and Sunday school. People play golf and hunt and fish on Sundays and consider it all right. I wouldn't want a wide-open Sunday, but many amateur sports are suffering financial troubles, and if they were allowed to charge admissions on Sunday, wouldn't have to be subsidized."

The "no's" were just as vociferous in their opposition to Sunday sports. Here is what a cross-section of anti-sport factions had to say:

Rev. F. E. H. James, president, Victoria Ministerial Association: "I'm definitely against the paying of gate receipts for any sport on Sunday of any kind. The Lord's Day Act has meant a great deal to Canada in preventing commercialization of Sunday, and I feel I speak for the Victoria Ministerial Association and the United Church when I say that I am definitely opposed. And I think the city council should take steps against a plebiscite being held."

Very Rev. J. L. W. McLean, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church: "I think personally that commercializing of sports at any time is not a good thing, and commercial sport on Sunday would do Sunday no good. But if the people indicate that enough interest is aroused in the question, then a plebiscite should be held."

Percy Scurrah, candidate for mayor: "I doubt the desirability of it. I can't see any particular harm in having a plebiscite on the question, and if the people want it, it should be all right. But I'm personally against Sunday sport of any kind."

Most of those polled, while having definite views of their own, felt that the question should be left up to the people of Victoria, possibly by a plebiscite at the forthcoming civic election.

No one, however, has offered to find out just whether Victorians want their Sunday sports put on a cash basis or not. The question, as in Vancouver, is still unresolved.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Vancouver City Council this week voted against allowing a plebiscite on Sunday sport.

Winnipeg has become engaged in a similar discussion.

Other Canadian cities may soon follow suit.

Just what is there about Sunday sport that is so odious?

What is there about Sunday sport that caused Vancouver council to deny the voters the right to express their opinion on the issue?

WALKER

What is there about Sunday sport that makes many go "tut, tut," musn't mention that too loudly?"

And what is the difference between Sunday sport played for fun and Sunday sport played for a stipulated admission fee.

Sunday sport is being, and has been played in Victoria as long as we can remember, and more Sunday sport is being played here today than was played here 15 or 20 years ago.

Golf courses cater to others than their own memberships. Bowling alleys run on a club membership basis. City bowling tournaments are held on Sunday.

Soccer, football and baseball occupy city parks on Sundays; curling is now a Sunday occupation for some, while even the staid old game of cricket presents its relaxing moments on the Sabbath, etc., etc.

Yet mention "Sunday Sport" as "Sunday Sport" and immediately the hue and cry begins.

Every Man to His Own Beliefs

Undoubtedly there are those whose teaching and religion forbids such endeavour on a Sunday. More power to them for their adherence to their beliefs.

But there are others, not sportsmen alone, who welcome Sunday sport. They welcome the opportunity to see something that otherwise may be denied them. They enjoy what they see. And they should have the chance of voicing their opinions on the subject.

Basically it is the Lord's Day Act which frowns on Sunday sport. In essence, the application of the law prohibits a fee being charged to witness the contest.

In other words it is more a ban against professional sport than against amateur sport, although amateur sport suffers finncially because of it.

. . . But Every Man Should Have a Vote

It is the commercial possibilities of Sunday sport that arouse the opponents. They fear sport will become a tool designed solely to produce revenue. And that's wrong, and that's bad, they say.

Elsewhere on these pages today will be found a detailed analysis of the issue and a cross-section poll on what Victorians think of Sunday sport. It is open forum and no attempt has been made to solicit more "pros" than "cons" or vice versa.

Personally we fail to see the difference between watching a game "for free," and paying a dollar for the same privilege.

More people attend Sunday sport, where there is Sunday sport, than attend the same sport on other days of the week.

Simply because more people are free to do so.

They are not obliged to, however; and there is the crux of the question.

Why not give the people the right to vote on what they wish.

Denying them the opportunity to express their wishes is not democratic. Nor is it Christian.

Kicking Off Another Season

A new dawn is breaking over Victoria's soccer horizon. The city's latest entry in the Coast Soccer League, Strathcona Cafe, plays its first game of the season next Saturday. Typical of the crowd of young players who will carry Victoria's banner this year is left-winger Alex Stewart, who is coming up from Esquimalt of the City League. Stewart is getting in some practice to kick off the season. (Times Photo.)

Old Cougars Show New Cougars How

Billy Reay and Company End Local Win Streak

Seattle 3, Victoria 2

By BILL WALKER

It had to be someone like this to end the Cougars' victory string Friday night.

It had to be Ed Dorohoy who set up two Seattle goals in their 3-2 Western Hockey League triumph at Memorial Arena.

It had to be Alex Kuzma and Barton Bradley who scored two of the Seattle counters.

And it had to be Billy Reay who coached the winning squad in the locals' first loss in five games.

It had to be, because, the aforementioned all were Cougars last year. The roosters really came home to crow.

But it wasn't done without a battle, and Reay, who coached the Cougars last year, was the first to admit it.

"We don't figure to beat that club two times out of three," he said, "but we WERE skating better tonight."

Cougar coach Eddie Olson wasn't too perturbed about the loss.

"I know now that we can come fighting back," he remarked of a frenzied Cougar rally in the third period that barely failed to send the game into overtime.

Amerks Value for Their Lead

Three goals down to the Americans a the end of the first period it was a case of if and when would the pressure pay off for the Cougars thereafter.

After being outhustled in the opening period, they struck back to take the play away from the visitors.

But a combination of a highly capable Charlie Hodge in the Seattle goal and a determined defensive performance by the Americans told the final story.

Quickly taking command after Don Chiupka had two good chances early in the period and Floyd Hillman's hard shot was juggled precariously by Hodge, the Americans set a speedy pattern that had the Cougars disturbed. And plainly so.

Kuzma hit the post to provide the tip-off on what was to happen. And efficiently.

Minutes later Ed Dorohoy put Kuzma clear and the ex-Cougar winger caught the corner cleanly with Marcel Pelletier well beaten at 5.16.

It was a personal duel between Hodge, saving well from Mark Marquess and Doug Macauley, and Pelletier who beat Guyle Fielder on the doorstep and Ollie Dorohoy, before the Americans struck again.

Once more it was Ed Dorohoy who initiated the play. He gave brother Ollie the feeding pass at 15.55 and the Cougars trailed 2-0. Then Bradley banged his shot home from the side of the net at 17.30, and the Cougar rebuttal had to be in the making.

Rally Grounded at Hodge's Hangar

It wasn't that the Cougars didn't have their opportunities in the second period as they failed to dent the Seattle lead. It was Hodge mainly who thwarted them.

And it was still Hodge into the third period, with Pelletier his equal, until Fielder got a major for high sticking Bill Dobbyn of the Cougars and Ollie Dorohoy was nicked for interference at 4.54.

Six seconds later, right from the face-off, the Cougars struck, with Doug Anderson, from in front, breaking Hodge's spell.

With Fielder still serving time, Olson got the second Cougar counter, his first of the year, on a long deflected shot from the blue line at 8.45.

Now one goal down, the Cougars gambled almost recklessly and almost successfully for the equalizer.

And it seemed they might get it when Wayne Brown got a clear break from the blue line. But Hodge got his leg on the puck to kill the attempt, and then fell on the disc as Teal and Marquess stormed the crease.

And that's just about the way it ended, with Hodge busier than a bee around a jam pot as the Cougars pulled Pelletier in the final minute during a double penalty to Hillman and Ross Watson for fighting.

Actually it was smart play, by Hillman, if a fight can be regarded as a smart play, in getting Watson into a melee. For it left the teams at equal strength when otherwise, due to an interference call against Hillman, the Cougars would have been shorthanded.

But maybe this really was Reay's day.

For as he said afterwards: "And I sold my house too."

Canucks, Royals Triumph

Westminster 6, Regina 3
Vancouver 5, Edmonton 4

By The Canadian Press

New Westminster Royals and Vancouver Canucks both ended their losing streaks Friday night in the Western Hockey League.

In the Western Hockey League fixture at Regina, New Westminster skated to a 6-3 victory over Regina Regals and gained their first victory in five starts.

In Vancouver the Canucks went into overtime to down Edmonton Flyers 5-4 and get their first win in four games and hand the Flyers their first defeat.

New Westminster was paced by Gord Fashoway who scored two goals. Other marksmen were Max McNab, Jim Zarie, Motto McLean and Bob Dawes.

Regals, who trailed 3-1 after the first and 4-3 after the second, counted on goals by Norm Johnson, veteran centre Pat Lundy and rookie Gord Stratton.

Except for good defensive tactics by the Regals, the New Westminster score may have been higher in the game witnessed by only 1,000 fans.

SCORES IN OVERTIME

In the sudden-death game in Vancouver Bill Wylie of the Canucks drove home a partially screened shot at 5.45 of the overtime period to put the game on ice.

Other scorers for Vancouver were Fred Brown, Bill Maloney, Bruce Carmichael and Ray Cyr.

Three Double Winners In Prep Swim Gala

House Three won the Victoria High School inter-house swimming gala Friday night at the Crystal Garden, but individually there were many stars.

There were three double winners. Bob Moore led the winning team by taking top honors in the paddling and tandem races, while Don Heywood and Bud Fletcher starred for the third-place House Two.

Heywood placed first in the senior boys' 100-yard free style and led his senior relay team to victory. Fletcher won the junior boys' 50-yard free style and the paddling race.

House Three with 48 points was followed closely by House One with 43½ points, House Two with a total of 41½ points, and House Four netting 32 points.

Outstanding novelty events were the tandem race, clothing race and the umbrella race. Amusing sidelights occurred in the inner tube races when three competitors were unable to get aboard their tubes.

Although House One finished in second place, their true spirit was shown when captain Art Chico jumped into the pool fully clothed at the end of the meet.

The official final standings of the gala were not confirmed until after the gala, at which time a disqualification shuffled the standings.

House Two was disqualified from the senior girls' relay, the loss in points dropping them into third place. House One used the revised points to take over second place.

At Esquimalt High School gala, held Friday afternoon, House Two rolled to a 17-point victory over the rest of the field. House Two swimmers amassed 79½ points, while runner-up House One had 62½. House Four was third with 39½ and House Three finished last with 41 points.

Helen Simenson and George Cuthbert led the House Two victory and both were named to Esquimalt's representative team which will compete in the annual inter-high gala.

Strathconas to Pluck Prize Plum--They Hope

By BILL RAYNER

Victoria Strathconas have thrown a protective arm around a recently-arrived Old Country soccer player, and if all goes well, will have him playing halfback in their Coast Soccer League opener next Saturday.

Willie Hamilton, 33, arrived in Victoria this week from Scotland with his wife and family, and intends to make his home here, but is undecided about playing the Canadian brand of soccer.

Hamilton has quite a career behind him in English football. Most of his time was spent with Preston North End of the English League's first division, 11 years of it, but he also laced on his boots for Airdrieonians and Queen of the South in the Scottish League first division, and Morton in the second division.

Last year he was player-manager of Fleetwood, an unattached Scottish club.

Hamilton is in Victoria to stay. He came here with his family to stay with an elderly aunt, and has no intention of moving anywhere else. Approached on the train coming west by a Vancouver sportswriter, Hamilton turned down an offer to play in Vancouver.

The employment situation enters into the picture, and with the help of Strathcona vice-president Bob Davison, Hamilton is scouting around for a job. If he finds one, and likes the brand of soccer here, he'll play. He will attend Strathcona workouts and will watch a few V & D games this week-end to help him decide.

Club officials have no doubt that the halfback would help them in their upcoming Coast League season. They open their home stand next Saturday at Athletic Park against a yet-unnamed opponent.

Feelers have also been flung out New Westminster way in the direction of Gogie Stewart, starry lacrosse and soccer player. Gogie, who played for New Westminster Royals last year, has stated that he definitely will not play for a mainland club this year, and chances are good that he will be induced to play for Victoria.

Strathconas will continue training sessions with a workout Sunday afternoon at 2.30 at HMCS Naden playing field on Colville Road. The practice was originally scheduled for Windsor Park.

Pirie Scores Again Over Czech Track Star

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—Gordon Pirie of England defeated triple Olympic champion Emil Zatopek in a 5,000-metre race today—Pirie's second victory over the Czech star in four days.

The British runner clocked 14.19.0 in winning the 5,000 metres at a track and field meet featuring British and Czech runners. Zatopek was second in 14.24.2. Frank Sando of Britain was third in 14.28, and M. Tomis, Czechoslovakia, fourth in 14.29.2.

Pirie defeated Zatopek in the 10,000 metres at the London-Prague track meet in London Wednesday.

The pending world mark for the 5,000 metres is 13.50.8, set in mid-September by Hungary's Sandor Iharos.

Million-Dollar Grid Bookie Ring Exposed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A million-dollar West Coast football bookmaking ring was exposed with the arrest of an ex-convict, police have reported.

Albert Gruenberg, 56, alias Jack Green, was nabbed Monday night. Intelligence squad officers said they found in Gruenberg's car more than 30,000 football pool tickets.

Detectives said that Gruenberg, booked on suspicion of bookmaking, admitted being the "biggest football bookie" on the West Coast. They estimated the take in Los Angeles alone at $50,000 a week.

Gruenberg told officers the pool was based on odds set in Milwaukee and distributed to bookmakers throughout the country.

Intelligence squad officers said Gruenberg was identified as the former general manager of the new defunct Continental Wire Service, which handled race results.

Army to Hold Boxing Tourney

OTTAWA (CP)—The army will hold boxing championships next year for the first time since the war, army headquarters announced Friday.

Championships in nine weights and two classes — novice and open —will be held annally in the first week of April.

The contestants will be chosen in a series of eliminations at the unit and command level. Site of the finals has not yet been decided.

Fraser Sparks Vics To Cross-Country Win

House Two, led by long-striding Ian Fraser, rolled to an easy victory in the annual Victoria High School inter-house cross-country race on Friday.

Fraser took the lead at the start of the 2½-mile grind and stayed in front all the way to finish in 12 minutes 37 seconds. Trailing by 20 seconds was runner-up John Gilliland. Barry Hagen, also of House Two, was third.

Victoria High will face its first major test of the season next Friday against Normal School.

Other results:

4—Tony Aish (I); 5—Norm Hamilton (II); 6—Bill Williams (IV); 7—Lawrence Valiant (IV); 8—Dick Mudgeley (III); 9—Peter Jubb (II); 10—Russ Pearce (III); 11—Dave Heal (II); 12—Nester Halowski (II); 13—Ken Leung (III).

WINLESS DOCKERS SEEK FIRST SOCCER VICTORY

Esquimalt will be seeking its first win of the young Victoria and District Football Association season Sunday afternoon when it meets Heaneys in a first division match at Heywood Avenue Park.

Heaneys, with a 1-1 record, are tied for second place with Vic Wests.

In division-two action Sunday, Butler Brothers will take on Dutch Wanderers at Central Park, and Queen's Own Rifles will travel to Duncan to meet Duncan Native Sons.

All games start at 2.30.

CROWD RECORD NEAR

Lions Could Use Win Too

By British United Press

Saskatchewan's runner-up Roughriders, unspectacular but steady as a rock, and British Columbia's lowly Lions, wallowing in a five-game losing streak, hoped to glamorize their respective records tonight in western football's first single-bill week-end of the 1955 campaign.

Four conference clubs were in action. The Riders were at home to the Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos and the Lions were hosts to the last-place Calgary Stampeders. For the first time since the season opened Aug. 20, there was no Monday night program scheduled to round out the week-end.

The emphasis tonight will be on color, of two different kinds. The Riders hoped to inject it into the heretofore even tenor of their ways by becoming only the second team to defeat the champion Eskimos this fall.

The slumping Lions, struggling to stay in the race for a playoff berth, were on the verge of winning a more material type of glory based on the box-office take. They needed to lure only 19,353 persons through the turnstiles at Empire Stadium to give them a home-attendance total of 200,000 for their eight home games this year.

The figure was unprecedented in Canadian football history.

Both the Riders and the Lions appeared to have good chances of achieving their respective aims. Edmonton coach Frank Ivy said seven of his regular first-stringers would miss the Regina game, and the Lions' general manager, Phil Webb, announced that ticket sales for the Empire Stadium clash were hovering around the 18,000-mark and expected to climb to at least 20,000.

STARS RESTED

Of the seven Eskimos ticketed to sit things out, only fullback Johnny Bright was sidelined with injuries. Ivy said ends Frank Anderson and Bob Heydenfeldt, tackle Dale Meinert, centre Kurt Burris, fullback Earl Lindley and halfback Rollie Miles would remain in their street-clothes along with Bright and enjoy a rest.

At Vancouver, British Columbia coach Annis Stukus said he would be forced to field a makeshift lineup against the Stampeders. First-string quarterback Arnold Galiffa, fullback Al Pollard, tackle Arnie Weinmeister and third-string quarterback Ted Duncan were still out with injuries as the Lions prepared for a game they couldn't afford to lose.

BOBO, RAY INK PACT

CHICAGO (AP)—With both fighters expressing confidence, middleweight champion Bobo Olson and former champion Sugar Ray Robinson Friday signed formal contracts for their 15-round title match at Chicago Stadium Friday night, Nov. 4.

The contracts called for Olson to take a 35 per cent share and Robinson 25 per cent of the net gate, with a like cut of an expected $75,000 from TV and radio.

Stella's Career Almost Ended

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Stella Walsh, 44-year-old international track and field star, said Friday she will quit the cinder paths next year if she is not allowed to run for the United States in the 1956 Olympics.

The famed woman athlete, who has collected 1,100 trophies and awards in 30 years of competition, is here to defend her senior women's AAU pentathlon championship today.

She has been told she is ineligible for the U.S. team because she competed in the 1932 and 36 Olympics for Poland, her native land. Rules forbid competing for more than one country in a lifetime.

A U.S. citizen for seven years, Miss Walsh said she does not want to run for Communist Poland but for her adopted country.

Snooker League Opens Schedule

The Victoria inter-club snooker league will open its third season Monday night with all six teams seeing action.

League will operate a 20-game schedule and will play every Monday night.

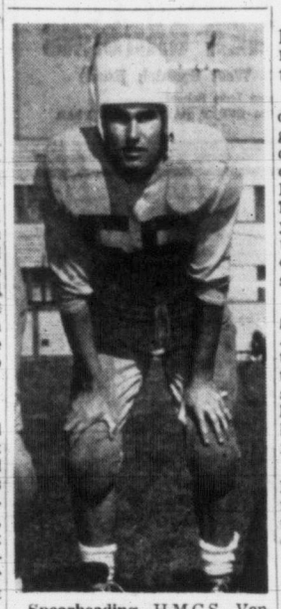
Monday's games follow, home team mentioned first:

ANAF Vets vs. Elks; Pro Pats vs. Britannia; Eagles vs. Tillicum.

It's Been a Long, Long Time

It's a long time between curling season's, says Dick Reith, as he receives first aid from Mrs. Ella Marie MacDonald at Victoria Curling Club. Reith's hands, unaccustomed the past summer to the grip of broom and rock, blistered in protest as he started in on the winter game again this week. Season opened Wednesday at the Victoria Curling Club with a "guest night," and the presidents vs. vice-presidents draw will end tonight. Monday, club draws in both the men's and women's sections will commence. (Times Photo.)

Fence Climbing Gains Favor as Major Sport



Spearheading HMCS Venture's offence when they take on Royal Roads Sunday at Naden Field at 2 will be halfback Gary Logan, who has scored one touchdown and passed for two more in two games. Winner of Sunday's game will represent Victoria in B.C. junior football playoffs. In Sunday's other game, Oak Bay and Vampires meet at Macdonald Park at 2 in battle for third place.

MONTREAL (BUP) — Fence-climbing, one of the popular fall sports among idle Canadian youngsters, is a major problem today among football stadium administrators.

The latest incident occurred during the Thanksgiving Day game at McGill's Molson stadium as the Montreal Alouettes clobbered the Ottawa Rough Riders, 43-6. Late in the second half hundreds of gate-crashing youngsters had congregated on the field in addition to paying customers who had bought standing room tickets.

Their antics disrupted the game to a point where the Alouettes players were forced to appeal personally to the kids to clear the playing area. The situation was clearly out of hand and conceivably might have resulted in Montreal's forfeiting the game to Ottawa.

Harry Griffiths, McGill athletic director, and the man who runs the stadium while on lease to the Alouettes, admitted, "the onus was clearly on us."

"It's not a question of building bigger and better fences. You just have to stop it before it gets started," he said.

Monday also was Herb Trawick and Virgil Wagner day and Griffiths didn't think the half-time ceremonies helped the situation.

"Most of the kids were tucked away in the corners of the stadium and they just had to come down and get a closer look at their heroes. The kids just stayed on the field and when the game became so obviously one-sided, they lost interest and looked for something to do," Griffiths said.

It didn't take long for them to figure out a game of their own. After Ottawa scored its lone touchdown near the end of the third quarter, the youngsters banged up at the open east end and waited for the extra point. As soon as Tom Tracy booted the ball over the goal posts a mad scramble for a souvenir ball was underway.

The Alouettes scored twice more in the final 20 minutes and each time they had to put a new ball in play.

WILL KIDS RESPECT CHARITY?

MONTREAL (BUP) — The Montreal Alouettes hoped a left-handed bribe would keep gate-crashing youngsters off the playing area today when the Alouettes meet the Toronto Argonauts at Molson Stadium.

General manager Vic Obeck issued the appeal in the form of an offer of $200 to two charities if the kids stayed off the field during the club's remaining two games. The money would be divided between the Shriners' Hospital and Ste. Justine's Children's Hospital.

Marshall Gets Three In Pittsburgh Victory

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Led by Willie Marshall's three goals, Pittsburgh Hornets walloped Springfield Indians 9-3 Friday night to climb into a tie for first place in the American Hockey League.

Marshall fired two counters in the first period and one in the third. Gord Hannigan tallied a pair for the Hornets and singles were to Bob Solinger, Gerry Foley, Ron Hurst and Marc Reaume.

Graham Hastings, Buddy Boone and Harry Pidhirny connected for Springfield.

Ken's Loss Wouldn't Hurt Aussies--Hopman

MELBOURNE (AP) — Davis Cup team manager, Harry Hopman, predicted Friday that Australia will remain the world's foremost tennis power even if Ken Rosewall turns professional.

That would leave Lew Hoad and Rex Hartwig, he said, to provide "the strongest team in the world" in both singles and doubles. The veteran mentor of Aussie tennis gave this verdict on other ranking countries:

The United States: Without Tony Trabert, now a professional, their chances of regaining the Davis Cup would be "badly weakened." Nevertheless, they remain the foremost challenger.

Italy: Nicolo Pietrangeli, Beppi Merlo, Orlando Sirola and perhaps Fausto Gardini would provide the Americans with their strongest opposition in the preliminary rounds.

Sweden: The Swedes are ageing.

Denmark: Only the erratic Kurt Nielsen could reach top class Davis Cup standard.

Hopman admitted that Australia "would be in trouble" if Hoad also turned professional but asserted that even then, Australia would have a "fair chance" of retaining the Davis Cup.

This Trainer Didn't Know His Horse

BOSTON (AP)—A horse whose trainer had tried to scratch and a young filly no closer than seventh in all previous starts combined Friday for a $1,632.60 daily double at Suffolk Downs.

Only 25 persons collected the big payoff after Jetair $40.40 won the first race and Marsh Hen $62.20 romped home in the second.

Trainer Eddie Causy attempted to declare Jetair at 8 a.m. because he feared forecasted rain would make the track muddy. Because of several other scratches, a draw was held and Jetair had to go to the post. He had not won a race since last April 12.

Rose Bowl Be Jiggered; Oscar Will Take Nippers' Milk Bowl

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Such post-season football spectacles as the Rose, Sugar, Orange, and Cotton Bowls had better get on the ball today or they're going to lose their standings to the extravaganza known as the Milk Bowl.

This is one late season event which is aptly named. It's between the finest pee-wee football teams of two nations—Texas and the United States.

Come Dec. 10 at San Antonio, Tex., the best team of youngsters between 10 and 15 years of age in the Lone Star State will play a team judged as the best in the other 47 states.

It will be staged, this seventh annual Milk Bowl game, in the shadow of the Alamo. But on this one day at least, Davey Crockett will run a poor second to Davey O'Brien.

O'Brien, you'll recall, was a marksman in the true Crockett tradition when he rifled the ball for Texas Christian. And Davey, O'Brien that is, is one of the referees for this truly significant game along with such gridiron heroes as Kyle Rote, Doak Walker and others of their fabled ilk.

The kids do it up in big league style. They come from orphanages, boys' homes, YMCA's and such miniature moleskin outfits as the pee-wee league, Pop Warner League and the Small Fry Football League sponsored in the Chicago area by Red Grange.

Texas decides on its champion and then, naturally, puts its Pee-Wees up against the best that the entire remainder of the country has to offer. The opponent is decided by invitation, a survey of applications and, after a check of performances, a trip to Slamo Stadium for the chosen eleven.

Last fall, in the sixth annual Milk Bowl game, the Denver Urchins rose up in wrathful precision and flattened Houston, champion of the longhorn state. At last reports, Houston reportedly was being deeded to Arkansas and it's no secret that the Alamo Heights Lions club, this year's sponsor, is roaring for a Texas triumph.

But even if the visitors lose, everybody's going to be happy. The kids, who play 12 minute quarters and put on football that the Ivy League envies, receive trophies, certificates and milk spiked with cherry pop.

They've got another interest too.

The girls back home (10 to 14) aren't going to approve, but there is a Milk Bowl princess of the same age. And you should hear those little rascals whistle.

Pony Leaguers Live It Up

A hard season was well rewarded Friday night when players from the six-team Pony Baseball League held their annual bun-feed at the Golden Slipper banquet hall. The kids were treated to a meal, entertainment and team and individual champions received trophies for their 1955 accomplishments. (Times Photo.)

Johnny Hitting Again --But for Alberni Now

Victoria's John Clark, who will be Alberni's John Clark on Fridays and Saturdays this winter, is up to his old tricks again.

Forced to go all the way to Alberni to find senior basketball, Clark scored 11 points Friday to spark the Canadian champion Alberni Athletics to an 84-68 victory over Seattle Federal Old Line Insurance. It was the first game of the season for Elmer Speidel's Athletics.

Clark joined the Alberni team this year after it was announced there would be no senior A team in Victoria.

Alberni trailed the tall Seattle team until late in the second quarter, when Clark scored a field goal to put the A's ahead, 31-30. After that the Alberni team continued to pile up points.

Ron Bissett, a holdover from last year's Canadian championship squad, led the Athletic scorers with 18 points, while Speidel had 15 and Al Brown potted 14. Herb Weim of Seattle was the top scorer in the game with 20 points.

Athletics dressed nine players for the game, including Dave Williamson and Don Hill, back in Alberni after attending school in Victoria last year.

Line-ups follow:

Seattle—Gary Miller 12, Paul Amos 7, Ron Westover 4, Bill Lindell 11, Bill Bixley 8, Bill Pick 6, Herb Weim 20, Harry Raynor 10. Totals 68.

Alberni—Dave Williamson 4, Don Hill, John Kootenkoff 12, Elmer Speidel 15, Joe Samarin 10, Johnny Clark 11, Ron Bissett 18, Ian Macdonald, Al Brown 14.

CANADIAN CHAMPION GUNS FOR BIG GAME

HALIFAX, N.S. (BUP) — The odds were about even today on the outcome of Monday night's non-title fight between Canadian lightweight champion Richard (Kid) Howard of Halifax and highly-rated Orlando Zulueta of New York.

A big crowd was expected at the Halifax Forum to see the fighters, each of whom has a win over the other. Howard looked particularly good recently when he trounced Basil Marie of Philadelphia, lightweight champion of Pennsylvania.

FORMER TYEE SOLD TO CARDS

TORONTO (CP).— Outfielder Archie Wilson was sold to St. Louis Cardinals by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League. The Leafs will get $20,000 and relief pitcher Tony Jacobs from Rochester Red Wings in exchange for Wilson.

Wilson formerly played for Victoria of the Western International League.

Trojans Win

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Southern California's great halfback, Jon Arnett, matched his running ability against the passing of Wisconsin's Jim Haluska as he led the inspired Trojans to an upset 33-21 victory last night over the Badgers before 75,162 frenzied fans in Memorial coliseum.

Maple Leafs Win

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Nelson Maple Leafs routed Trail Smoke Eaters 6-1 here Friday night in the opening game of the 116-game Western International Hockey League season.

WORLD CHAMP

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Russia won its third world weight-lifting title Friday night when Nikolai Kostylev captured the lightweight championship with a lift of 842.41 pounds.

Leafs' Problem Makes All Goalies Look Good

By The Canadian Press

General manager Hap Day once said it was impossible to score goals without shooting on the net.

His Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League seem to be trying to prove it is almost impossible to score even when their shooting is on the net.

Leafs have been criticized in recent season for their erratic shooting. Safest place in the rink, the critics insisted, was in the opposition goal during Leaf games.

In their four games so far in the 1955-56 campaign Leafs have outshot the opponents on each occasion. Their shots totalled 121 but they scored only five goals. Leafs won only one of the engagements.

"We're making every goalie in the league look terrific," said Leaf coach King Clancy.

TAKE SHOOTING PRACTICE

Clancy had his boys shooting at practice Friday. They have a two-game week-end, meeting the Bruins in Toronto tonight and Wings in Detroit Sunday.

In two other games tonight, New York Rangers take on the Habs at Montreal. The Wings meet Hawks at Chicago. On Sunday it's Montreal at Chicago, Toronto at Detroit and Rangers at Boston.

The Bruins, severely battered by injuries, may have only one of their lines intact for tonight's game. Don McKenney, Leo Labine and Marcel Bonin make up the only line that is not limping.

Bruins' strong line of Lorne Ferguson, Cal Gardner and Doug Mohns may have to be revised unless Mohns recovers from a Charley horse he suffered against Leafs in Boston last Wednesday.

Canadiens will be battling to retain sole possession of first place They lead the league with six points, undefeated in three games

Turpin in Market For Moore's Crown

LONDON (AP) — Promoter Jack Solomons and manager George Middleton sail for New York on the Queen Mary Oct. 27 to complete negotiations for a world light-heavyweight title fight between champion Archie Moore and Britain's Randy Turpin.

The fight is proposed for Jan. 10 at indoor Earls Court, a 18,000-seat arena.

In the meantime Turpin, former world middleweight titleholder who has moved into the light-heavy division, must fight Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., Tuesday.

Manager Middleton said Friday that if Turpin does not whip the Canadian, Turpin would not deserve the world title bout. In his last four fights Turpin has been far short of impressive.

ON THE ALLEYS

By RON COULTER

Pin Pelters Perturbed; Ask Davie; He Knows Why

Pin topics of the week, and bowlers can have their ups and downs, too.

Think not? Then ask Dave Williams.

With 700 series being about as scarce as 800 series among city big-ball bowlers, Dave's head was in the clouds when he racked up 712 in practice.

He shot games of 222, 269 and 221 at downtown Strathcona Alleys.

A few nights later at Gibson's, Dave came in with a 450 triple, and back at Strathcona Thursday shot 463.

And while we're on the subject, what's happened to the big boys of last year?

Andy Palmer, the best bowler in B.C., and Ken Munn, city zone champ two years ago, aren't hitting them the same any more—or else pins aren't falling the same.

Neither, to date, has come within spitting distance of former efforts.

Rookie Dave Doolittle, a first-year sensation last season, is finding it much tougher this term.

Could the lack of big scores be contributed to the lack of light pins?

Top tenpin man this week was Nick Howard with a 589 in Gibson's Senior Tens. Bob Bystedt, 556, and Palmer, 555, were other leaders.

Howard, 222, 201; Bill Odgers, 213; W. Smith, 212; Palmer, 210; Wilbur Webb, 208; Roy Begg, 205; D. Baker, 202, and Munn and Alex Quinn, 201, got notable singles.

In the 100-man commercial section — well, three topped the 200 mark and nobody held on for a triple of 550. Enough said.

At Strathcona, Begg set the pace with a 553 total and 215 single; Ron McArthur, 213; George Hall, 211; Bill Walker and Williams, 204, notching other notable singles.

In mixed action at Gibson's, Len Murrant, 565 and Jack Hobby, 558, led the pack. Howard claimed a 209 single and Murrant and Hobby each hit 203 for one game.

Marg Beaney fired a 191 single and 510 total for the women.

Flora Nobbs led Strathcona women with a 483 triple and Mary Porter posted a 185 single. Flora Nobbs and Ev Angus chalked up singles of 182.

Al Majorki proved the best five-pinner with games of 285, 211 and 324 for an 820 mark

Phil Smith, 789; Stan Jones, 786; Bill Phillips, 738; Jess Kineard, 729; Jerry Devine, 711, and George Wall, 708, had other leading totals at Gibson's.

Alley boss Bill Stevenson showed the way at Capital City with a 246-317-229—792 effort.

Phil Smith, 781 (323); Ted Tucker, 769; Gordie Smith, 740; Ron Andrews, 736; Bert Marriott, 736 (348); Percy Riddle, 717; Linda Barker, 707; Bill Toller, 703 (304); Art Anderson, 701 (353); G. Ray, 701, and Tess Stewart, 676, also had high threes.

DANIEL, TOO

Davie Runs Afoul Of Law

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia game commission, in a search of its records for the wildlife review, found it had come in contact with some persons with famous outdoor names.

Last fall, David Crockett was fined $10 for carrying a loaded firearm in his car; in 1953 William Hickock was fined for fishing without a licence.

Daniel Boone was convicted of having an unlicenced firearm in his possession in 1952. The same year, William Cody was checked and given a clean bill of health. Mr. Cody reported he had two clean shots at moose — and missed them both.

Charles Wolfkill and Cecil Killdeer returned empty-handed from a hunting trip.

Two Rainiers Sold

SEATTLE (AP)—The Seattle Rainiers of the Pacific Coast League Friday announced the sale of third baseman Rocco Krsnich and outfielder Jerry Zuvela to Tulsa of the Texas League.

Krsnich was with Tulsa this year on option. Zuvela played the latter half of the season with the title-winning Rainiers, moving up from Wenatchee of the Class B Northwest League. The sale price was not announced.

"I'VE GOT NEWS FOR YOU!"

The Newspaper Brings You the Full Story; Without Which Knowledge Life Would Not Be Complete!

There is good news and bad news, important news and unimportant news. There is news that marks the ending of a happy life, and news that marks the beginning of a life that may be the answer to some of the world's problems.

A newspaper records the good and the bad, the important and frequently the unimportant.

A newspaper judges the value of the news on the basis of its importance and how many people are affected. A newspaper would like to print only the good news. But one that printed only the news of good events, of pleasant subjects, of constructive acts, would not give a true picture of life. For life is not all good, not all pleasant, not all constructive.

And that is the ultimate aim of every good newspaper—to give an accurate, complete and fair account of the daily events in the world and of the people around us.

THE NEWSPAPER IS THE ONLY LOCAL NEWS MEDIUM THAT IS THOROUGH, DEPENDABLE AND SATISFYING!

Primula polyantha (polyanthus), P. auricula, P. denticulata and other hardy primulas started from seed earlier, or from divisions, may be set out in flowering positions now.

Do not delay planting of spring flowering biennials such as wallflower and forget-me-not; plant firmly against winter winds and rains.

Continue planting of daffodils and commence planting early tulips.

Remove faded flower stems from Michaelmas dailies, heleniums and other fall perennials.

Planting of perennial beds should continue whenever soil is not too wet for working.

Cuttings of black currants and gooseberries may be started outdoors for spring setting out.

Plant broad beans.

Root pruning of old fruit trees may be done now, of as soon as leaves turn color.

Leeks may be left in ground indefinitely. Dig as needed.

Recommence watering of Christmas flowering cactus.

African violet (Saintpaulia ionantha) will enjoy sunlight now if foliage is dry. Artificial light is beneficial.

Cyclamen, cineraria and primula growing in pots indoors for winter flowering will require good daylight and a temperature of 50-55 degrees. Cineraria will be satisfied with less until buds form.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Knowledge of Plant's Origin Aids Successful Cultivation

By JACK BEASTALL

Knowing the country from which a plant came, together with its growing habits, can be some help to us in making it feel at home.

Jack

For instance, the so-called Christmas cactus, also known as the crab cactus, lobster cactus, and Zygocactus (zi-goh-kak-tus) truncatus, grows on the limbs of tall trees in the forests of Brazil.

Most of us are inclined to think any plants with "cactus" in its name is a denizen of the desert, but success with this plant will not be ours if we treat it as a desert cactus.

In the first place we know Brazil to be a country of rain, forests and sub-tropical temperatures. This indicates the need of a moist and warm atmosphere.

Secondly, it grows on trees and is called an ephiphyte. It does not obtain its food from the tree as do the parasitical plants such as the mistletoe, but uses the tree in preference to the humid, wet soil beneath.

This leads us to three conclusions: (a) its roots like air and could be smothered in a heavy soil mixture; (b) its root system will be small; (c) its nourishment will come from decaying leaves and therefore it likes a rich diet.

To succeed we should grow the Christmas cactus in a soil mixture composed of loam, and leaf mold or decayed manure, kept free and open with coarse sand and broken brick, and its small root system does better in a shallow half-pot than in the regular deep pot.

While we may not be able to duplicate exactly the climate it knows, the plant responds well in this latitude to ample watering and temperatures from 55 degrees to 75 degrees from March to mid-September, and a daily syringing during the heat of summer. This is the period when growth is made.

From mid-September until mid-October watering is decreased to a point which will just keep the plant from wilting. This is the period in which the growth ripens and the flower buds are initiated. After October 15 moderate watering is resumed, and a weak fertilizer dissolved in water is given every 10 days from bud formation until color shows, approximately from November 1 to December 1.

During this period sunshine and 75 degrees daytime temperature are necessary, both of which are obtained by keeping the plant in a sunny window.

The number of hours of daylight and darkness is important. We know that plants can be made to flower entirely out of season by using artificial shade or artificial light. From October until flowering time the Christmas cactus needs long nights and should be in the dark from about 4.30 p.m. until 7.30 a.m.

Keeping it in a room where lights are burning from sunset until near midnight is the cause of delayed flowering, while excess in either watering or feeding is responsible for that common complaint, the dropping of buds before they open.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Newly Planted Peonies In No Hurry to Bloom

By JACK BEASTALL

Q.—Peony tubers brought from the east in spring failed to bloom this summer. I planted them shallow as directed, and kept them watered, so that several leaves appeared. Why were there no flowers?

A.—Peonies are plants which resent disturbance. When dug and divided for sale, it is seldom that flowers appear the first year. However, with continued good care which includes a fertilizer in early spring and again in midsummer, your plants should produce bloom in 1957, increasing in beauty as the years go. Fall is planting time and the plants flower 18 months later.

Q.—Have been offered some lily-of-the-valley plants by a friend. Can they be put in now, or should they wait till spring?

A.—Now is the best time to lift, divide and replant lily-of-the valley (Convallaria majalis). Separate the "pips", trim the roots to about three inches, and plant each separately with the crown just below the surface. Prepare a rich soil and good drainage to get fine flowers.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—When our storm door is up, the inside door is hard to close because of air pressure. What will remedy this?—L.V.

A—Metallic air valves obtainable at most hardware stores can be installed on storm doors. They are designed for this very purpose. Or, you can drill one or two one-inch holes near the top of the door and cover them with flaps made of flexible plastic, leather or rubber. Attach each flap with a single nail or screw.

GLASSY-EYED? ?

Two water tumblers are exactly the same size as shown in the drawing above. One is empty, and the other ¾ths full. You are asked to measure half a tumbler of water without using any other vessel, adding any water, or pouring any water away. Can you devise some simple means of measuring the quantity stated?

Remember, one tumbler is now ¾ths full; the other is empty. You are asked to measure out exactly half a glassful.

Answer: Simply drop some pebbles into the glass containing water until the water reaches the rim. Then pour the water from this glass into the other until the level of each is the same. There will then be a full glass of water in what was previously the empty tumbler.

POOLED RESOURCES

Opponents A and B, deposit similar stakes with C, and agree that whoever first wins three games at pool shall take the pot. A wins two games and B wins one. Upon this, they determine to divide the pool in proper shares. Then how must C split the stakes on a fair basis with all factors considered?

Answer: A is entitled to three-quarters of the stakes, B to one-quarter only.

IT'S JUST THE TYPE, THAT'S ALL

The poor old typesetter was all out of a certain letter of the alphabet, but he had a good supply of Xs. Consequently, he always put an X in place of the letter he lacked. Sometimes, this produced bewildering results, as witness below:

M X D X M I M X D X M

Can you replace the Xs in the above sentence with the mysterious missing letter. When correctly sloved, the sentence will read either backward or formard.

Answer: Madam I'm Adam.

FISHING WITH THE CAT

Pulling a simulated mouse—a wad of paper attached to a piece of string—across the floor in view of a kitten generally gets amusing results. Here's an easy-to-make "fishing" line that may be similarly employed.

Materials: Several yards of string or rug yarn; a dowel or other smooth surfaced stick about 18 inches long; a round cork float (available where fishing tackle is sold).

Attach yarn to stick; run string through float; attach several short pieces of string for a tail.

YOUR CHANCE TO SOUND OFF

Time your self and see if within 60 seconds you can estimate the letters that will transform the following into words describing human sounds.

1. Single	7. bespeak
2. stalk	8. butter
3. humid	9. decry
4. essay	10. yellow
5. callous	11. buzzard
6. invoice	12. washout

Answers: 1. Sing; 2. Hum; 4. Say; 5. Call; 6. Voice; 7. Speak; 8. Utter; 9. Cry; 10. Yell; 11. Buzz; 12. Shout.

TREE ON A MATCH

Goober wants to find a tree to match the one in his back yard. "It's three feet and a half of itself in height," he says. How tall is it?

Answer: It's six feet tall.

TWISTER

Tree-toad twosomes
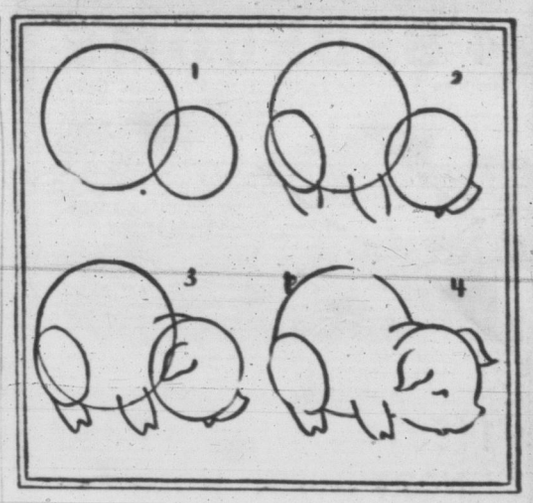
trodding.



Learn to Draw in 4 Steps

Some of us can draw well naturally. Others can learn proficiency with practice. This cartooning lesson is a challenge to all. To draw this plump pig, start with two circles. Add more lines as shown in steps 2, 3 and 4. Erase some of the guide lines and the drawing is complete. Tracing paper may come in handy the first few times you try; then try drawing the figure free-hand.

KNOW WORDS?

Mastery of words also means knowing when not to speak. Or, as Tupper put it, in a phrase presented here as a cryptogram for you to solve:

ZAWW-MRNAJ BRWATGA VHMX NCSA AWCFPATGA MVHT BQAAGV.

Clue: The most oft-used letter in English, "E," runs true to form in this substitution cipher problem.

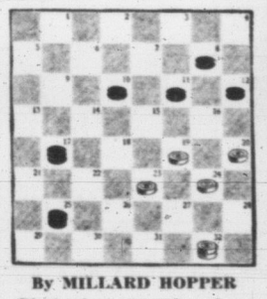
CASE OF OH PSHAW

George Bernard Shaw once stated in a press conference that his writings were worth one dollar a word. A smart potato from Idaho sent him a letter enclosing a dollar. "Send me one of your words," he wrote. Can you guess the word Shaw wrote?

Answer: "Thanks."

IT'S YOUR MOVE



By MILLARD HOPPER

Black has superior forces, but White is lining himself up for a swift coup. It's White's move. He is traveling up the board. Can you plot the strategy White must use to win in four moves?

Solution: White moves 20-16, Black 11-27; White 19-16, Black 12-26, White 32-7, Black 8-12, White 7-11.

Schoolgirl Wins $2,476 In Damages

A 17-year-old high school girl won a damage suit Friday against a motorist who struck her down when she was crossing in a pedestrian lane at the corner of Pandora and Fernwood on June 5, 1953.

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane awarded Carol Rawlings, 1927 Bay Street, $2,000 general damages and $476 in special damages for injuries she suffered in the accident.

Mr. Justice Macfarlane held defendant C. H. Hocken, 3223 Lorraine Avenue, driver of the car, to blame for the accident.

The accident occurred when Miss Rawlings with a friend, Alice Jones, now of Kitimat, were returning home from school. The two girls were walking in the pedestrian lane when they were knocked down.

IN HOSPITAL

Miss Rawlings suffered a fractured leg and was hospitalized for a period of six weeks.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Macfarlane said the accident was due to the defendant who proceeded through the intersection when the traffic light was amber.

While the defendant knew that he had the right to go through on the amber light, Mr. Justice Macfarlane said this, in his opinion, was a "dangerous practice." He said the driver's vision was obstructed by a car ahead of him.

P. J. Sinnot was counsel for the plaintiff.

Judge-Elect Pleads Last Case as Lawyer

A judge-elect Friday pleaded a civil case before the B.C. Court of Appeal.

The court is the same on which he will be serving as a justice this month.

He is F. A. Shepherd, one of the province's leading corporation lawyers, who has been named to fill a vacancy on the bench of the Appeal Court. He replaces Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson who retired last month.

Mr. Shepherd will be sworn in Oct. 24.

On Friday, Mr. Shepherd was pleading his last case as a lawyer before the same court he will be sitting on this month. The case involved the distribution of company shares between several litigants.

The tall, well-built, 64-year-old lawyer has been practising law for 30 years in British Columbia

CHURCH NOT MATCHING POPULATION GROWTH

TORONTO (CP)—In an appeal for funds for extension and expansion, the Presbyterian Church in Canada said Friday its membership has increased only 3.6 per cent in the last five years while the country's population has gone up 15 per cent.

The church's stewardship and budget committee said membership increased by 21,502 in 601 congregations and decreased by 14,968 in 505 during the five-year period.

Consecutive Jail Terms Await Bail-Jumping Narcotic Offender

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eddie Scosky, 28, was remanded Friday to Oct. 20 for sentence on 12 narcotics trafficking charge to which he pleaded guilty.

Scosky also pleaded guilty to a charge of jumping bail.

He testified he was trying to "beat the habit" when he fled to Portland, Ore.

Magistrate Oscar Orr said he intended to impose consecutive jail terms on the drug and bail-jumping charges when Scosky appears for sentence.

Scosky pleaded guilty to eight single and four joint charges of selling heroin to police undercover agents between last June 1 and July 21.

SOVIET WOMEN TO HAVE BRITISH LOOK IN 1956

LONDON (Reuters)—British fashions will be exported to Russia next year.

A consignment of women's dresses was ordered here Friday by Madame V. G. Kaminskaya, a member of a Russian trade delegation currently visiting Britain.

The garments, selling here at nine guineas, $27, each, will be sent to Russia in January.

Walter Marcus, of the firm of Walter and Otto Marcus, which sold the clothing, would not say how big the order was.

However, he revealed, it includes fall, winter and spring dresses and two-piece outfits.

WANTS ARTICLE TWO INVOKED

Canada Determined To Broaden NATO

LONDON (CP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, a cold war baby, still has only its armor to wear despite the thaw in the international climate.

Canada among some others of the 15 NATO countries feels, as she has for some time, that it isn't enough.

"We have been beating the drum for article II for five years," a highly-placed Canadian officer with NATO said here recently. He referred to the part of the alliance's constitution which would provide for expansion of the framework to include economic, cultural and other ties.

Now Canada is canvassing ideas on how to challange the Russian peace and goodwill initiative, portrayed by such actions as the return of the Porkkala naval base to Finland.

SUPPORT THREATENED

"This doesn't mean much of a Russian sacrifice strategically," says the Canadian view. "But it understandably may make a big impact on public opinion.

Canada feels strongly that unless a broader raison d'etre for NATO is evolved, there is grave danger of public support for the armed alliance being sapped.

Heat and Energy Piped Northward

Construction of Pipeline Proceeding At Scheduled Rate of 150 Miles a Month

By LEROY HITTLE
Associated Press Writer

A huge steel pipe now snaking its way northward will bring natural gas to the Pacific Northwest next year.

It will mean heat and energy from the sun-drenched mesas of the southwest for homes and factories in the power-hungry northwest.

Construction of the pipeline is proceeding on schedule with pipe being laid at the rate of 150 miles a month, Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp. reported.

The 160-million-dollar line will extend 1,446 miles from New Mexico to Washington.

It will serve cities and towns in Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

AMPLE GAS RESERVES

Other plans pending before the Federal Power Commission call for connecting pipelines for importing natural gas from Canada and extending the gas grid to communities in Nevada and California.

If the FPC does not authorize the additional lines, Pacific Northwest proposes to operate the pipeline as originally conceived, obtaining the bulk of its natural gas from the San Juan Basin in New Mexico and Colorado.

James M. Clark, vice-president in charge of production operations, said there are ample natural gas reserves in the San Juan Basin to meet the needs of the Pacific Northwest.

In addition, he said "the line is going through some of the best undeveloped oil and gas areas in the United States" north of the San Juan Basin.

SHUT IN FOR YEARS

He named the Green River, Big Piney, Picean and Uinta areas of Wyoming and Colorado as untapped gas producing basins that have been "shut in for years because there was no way to get it to market."

Pacific Northwest proposes to tap their resources, the company disclosed earlier.

Meanwhile, in the San Juan Basin proper, Clark said the company has more than 480,000 acres under lease.

brought in that show a potential from three to five times greater than first estimates," he said.

Under the plan before the FPC, Pacific Northwest would import 300 million cubic feet of gas daily from the Peace River district of Canada, obtaining it from Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd., at the border north of Bellingham.

At the same time Pacific Northwest would sell 250 million cubic feet daily to El Paso Natural Gas at Mountain Home, Idaho, for resale to markets in Nevada and California.

Robot Plants Could Help Employment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Ford Motor Company official said here the new push-button factories will mean easier, safer, better-paying jobs rather than mass unemployment.

D. J. Davis, Ford's vice-president in charge of manufacturing, said his company regards the increasing use of electronic and automation, as nothing revolutionary but "just another evolutionary phase of our advancing production technology."

Davis was one of the opening witnesses at hearings of a congressional economic sub-committee on effects of the growing trend toward automation.

Chairman Wright Patman Dem. Tex. said Congress wants to konw whether it is a "curse or a blessing."

Meantime, the U.S. treasury announced plans to use a huge electric brain in its cheque-auditing system. It said the machine would replace 450 employees and save an estimated $2,250,000 a year. Most of the displaced workers are expected to get other government jobs.

Diamond Drilling Follows Survey

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—More development work will be carried out soon in the Reindeer Lake area in northern Manitoba where copper and uranium showings have been found.

The property, in the Bleasdell Lake area 140 miles northwest of Flin Flon, Man., was staked out last July by prospectors Steve Haydeukewich of Prince Albert and Walter Buller of Abbotsford, B.C.

A geologist who examined the finds has recommended diamond drilling on the uranium property and an electro-magnetic survey of the copper prospect. Some $75,000 has been spent on development thus far.

YELLOWKNIFE PROFITS

MONTREAL (CP) — Giant Yellowknife Gold Mines Ltd. today reported net profit of $993,669 for the fiscal year ended June 30, down sharply from the $1,508,075 net reported in the previous fiscal year.

Net profit was equal to 24½ cents a share, compared with 38 cents the preceding year.

Butter Stocks May Prevent Rise in Prices

Loss to Treasury Expected in Spring

OTTAWA (CP) — A record butter stockpile in the government's hands may prevent a winter price rise but it may mean a federal treasury loss next spring of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Officials disclosed here that the government's butter stocks, at the wind-up of the summer surplus-producing season, have climbed to an all-time high of some 95,000,000 pounds, about 15,000,000 more than it had a year ago.

PRICE SUPPORT

About one-third of that stockpile is made up of unsold butter carried over from the 1954 production season.

With most of the storage butter in government hands, the administration will exert a large measure of control over butter prices.

To break even on its price support program, the government would have to charge 61 cents a pound wholesale — its selling price in previous year.

LOWERED PRICE

However, during the summer the government kept its general selling price at 58 cents a pound wholesale, and even for a time reduced it to 56 cents in efforts to rid itself of surpus stocks.

This is in addition to larger losses absorbed through the offering of butter to hospitals and other institutions at 21 cents a pound below regular cost, and the loss absorbed through the sale of some 300,000 pounds to Communist Czechoslovakia at a price of 34 cents a pound.

All told, federal officials estimate the federal loss would be about $3,500,000 for the 1955-56 butter year. This would be equivalent to the total loss in the federal price support program in the last seven years.

UNSOLD STOCKPILE

In addition, the estimates are that unless large export markets are found, the government may end up the current butter year next spring with a record unsold stockpile of between 55,000,000 and 60,000,000 pounds.

Officials said that at the moment there are no large export outlets in sight. The world price is about 20 cents a pound below the Canadian price.

TRADE TALKS HERE—Harry J. Horne, Commercial Secretary at Lima, Peru, will be in Victoria Oct. 25 and Nanaimo Oct. 26 to discuss trade with businessmen interested in that territory. Banks Raise Prime Rate

NEW YORK (UP)—All major New York City banks Friday boosted their prime rate from 3¼ to 3½ per cent, effective immediately.

The prime rate is the charge on loans to the biggest borrowers with the best credit ratings. All other rates are scaled upward from the prime quotations.

The banks announcing the increase were Chase Manhattan Bank; First National City Bank, Chemical Corn Exchange Bank, Guaranty Trust Co., Irving Trust Co. and the Hanover Bank.

U.S. Family Income Up $300 From 1952

WASHINGTON—The census bureau says that average family income in the United States last year was $4,200, about the same as the year before, but up $300 from 1952.

The report stated that the 1952 to 1954 rise "probably represented a significant gain" in real purchase power for the average family because prices rose only slightly in those two years.

Approximately 16 million—or 40 per cent—of the nation's 42 million families had incomes of $5,000 or more in 1954.

Market Regains Part of Losses

BY ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks lost ground again during the past week — the third weekly break in a row.

Since President Eisenhower's illness the market has lost 42.77 points in the industrial average. It was down even further at the lows on Tuesday but rallied sharply since, notably this Wednesday when industrials rose 6.99 points in the Dow-Jones average.

OVER-ALL LOSS

For the week, however, the industrial average closed at 444.68 off 9.73 points from last Friday's close. Rails were at 148.47, off 2.53; utilities, 61.48, off 1.06; and 65 stocks 158.54, off 3.13.

At the lows on Tuesday, the market showed an over-all loss in valuation of $17,000,000,000 from Sept. 23. Since then it regained almost $2,000,000,000 of the decline.

The Monday break which amounted to 13.27 points in industrials and 4.63 points in rails was the third Monday drop in a row. The first one came on Monday, Sept. 26, the day after President Eisenhower's illness was announced. It was the widest decline since Oct. 28, 1929, also a Monday.

There was a further loss and a subsequent recovery from the lows on Tuesday, a sharp rally on Wednesday and irregularity on Thursday and Friday.

Sales crossed 3,000,000 shares on Monday and Tuesday and then declined until Friday's session when turnover was the lightest since Aug. 22.

BIG AIRCRAFT ORDER

Daily average volume was around 2,442,000 shares, against 2,103,000 shares last week on a daily average basis.

Du Pont was the wide[illegible] mover of the week. On Monday it lost 9¾ points. Subsequently it recovered all the loss and closed the week with a half point rise. Very few other issues managed to show gains.

Bethlehem was down 5 points on the week and General Motors more than 5. The high-priced U.S. Gypsum fell 14 points. Declines of 2 to more than 3 points appeared in Aluminum Co., Kennecott, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Chrysler, Texas Co., Standard Oil (N.J.), and Union Pacific.

Boeing Airplane, Douglas Aircraft, and United Aircraft were sustained by a huge order from Pan American World Airways for 45 jet planes which will cut New York to Europe travel to about six and a half hours.

EMPLOYERS TOO FOND OF TALKING

DETROIT (AP) — Most bosses talk too much, Dr. Wesley Wiksell told the Systems and Procedures Association of America.

"Many bosses feel that their position entitles them to do all or most of the talking," said Dr. Wiksell, a professor of speech at Louisiana State University.

"But, actually, much of the secret of effective communication is simply letting the other fellow do most of the talking."

Penticton Favors Extended Store Hours

PENTICTON (CP) — Board of Trade here is in favor of extension rather than curtailment of store hours in Penticton.

Members voted at a regular meeting in favor of extending the period during which stores are allowed to remain open to 9 p.m. on Saturday.

Current late-opening months are from January to March. The Board voted to extend the period to June.

They also approved the sale of meat, meat products and groceries after 5.30 p.m.

"I think a business should be allowed to remain open if it wishes to," one member said.

TIMES HIGHLIGHT CLIP-OUT

By PHIL LEE

Color Spec, Big Fight, Berle Top Week

A 90-minute color spectacular, featuring fine actors Jose Ferrer and Claire Bloom in "Cyrano de Bergerac," starts the TV week off with a bang. The romantic comedy about the swordsman and poet, so sensitive about his monstrous nose, will occupy Channel 4 at 4, Monday.

SPECTACULAR — Jose Ferrer, noted actor, will star in the Monday "spectacular"—"Cyrano de Bergerac." The 90-minute program will be carried on Channel 4 at 4.

On Tuesday, Milton Berle stars in an hour-long color production entitled "State of Confusion." The plot concerns a larcenous couple who have been forced to flee their old bookmaking haunts. Later Berle becomes elected governor of a southwestern state. His co-star will be Ann Sothern.

On Wednesday at 6 on Channel 5 Champion Wallace Bud Smith will defend his newly-won lightweight crown against ex-champ Jimmy Carter. The 15-rounder will be telecast from Miami, Fla. This is expected to be quite a brawl.

On a more aesthetic note, old TV friends of Bishop Fulton J. Sheen will be pleased to learn that the bishop will return to the home screens on Thursday at 8 via Channel 5.

Meanwhile, here are the daily highlights for the forthcoming week in order of their appearance.

MONDAY

4.00: Channel 4: Jose Ferrer and Claire Bloom star in the color spectacular "Cyrano de Bergerac." This is an hour-and-a-half show.

6.30: Channel 11: Young followers of The Adventures of Robin Hood will be happy to learn that stout, staff-swinging Friar Tuck enters the scene tonight.

7.00: Channel 11: Jackie Gleason stars in Studio One's drama, "Uncle Ed and Circumstance." Black Sheep Uncle Ed of the proud Irish Doyle family is allowed to enter the $64,000 Question program.

8.00: Channel 4: Movie: Here is a crack English movie. James Mason stars in "The Seventh Veil," about an orphan left to the mercies of her callous guardian.

8.30: Channel 5: Guest soloist tonight is bass Jerome Hines who will be heard with Firestone's concert orchestra. Howard Barlow will conduct. Heard will be the "Whiffenpoof Song" and La Calunnia from "Barber of Seville."

9.00: Channels 11 and 12: Lucy goes to a party without Ricky, hoping to land a show-biz job. She takes along a dummy in his place.

9.30: Channel 4: Robert Montgomery presents "Paper Town," the story is about conflict arising between a wealthy lumberman and his son. The father wants the boy to enter the family business while the son wants to continue with his schooling.

10.30: Channel 4: Ex-child star Jackie Cooper stars in the comedy "The People's Choice."

TUESDAY

7.30: Channel 5: Warner Bros. presents "Casablanca," wherein black marketeers are swindling a world-wide welfare organization.

8.00: Channel 4: Milton Berle and Ann Sothern star in the 60-minute color play, "State of Confusion." A dishonest couple flee the area of their crimes and settle in a southwestern state. First he became governor and then she succeeds him.

Channel 11: Navy Log deals with "The Phantom of the Blue Angels."

8.30: Channel 5: Wyatt Earp probes into how a young veteran becomes involved with a crooked roulette game.

Channels 11 and 12: In You'll Never Get Rich, Master Sgt. Bilko (Phil Silvers) looks up a soldier who has gone AWOL in Chicago.

9.00: Channel 4: Jane Wyman stars in Fireside Theatre's "One Lost September." A proposal of marriage disturbs a woman to such a degree that she flees the big city.

Channel 5: Danny Thomas attempts to "fix" a traffic ticket and finds out that he isn't such a big shot after all.

9.30: Channel 4: Playwrights stars Paul Newman and Phyllis Kirk in Ernest Hemingway's story "The Battler." In it a young pug discovers that becoming champ isn't such a rosy proposition as it is cracked up to be.

Channel 11: Red Skelton has George Raft as his guest tonight. Red shows how a roaring 20s sousaphone player operated in the gin mills.

10.00: Channels 11 and 12: The $64,000 Question.

10.30: Channel 4: Crusading editor Steve Wilson conceals the identity of a wanted man and is threatened with jail.

$25,000 Homes Get 'Ho Hum' Russian Replay

SEATTLE (UP) — An 11-man troupe of Russian housing experts took a gander at some $25,000 homes here Friday and bluntly told their hosts they weren't impressed.

Harold L. Larsen, regional vice-president of the National Association of Home Builders, pointed out the homes as the delegation was motoring by bus to Everett, 30 miles north of here.

"We are now passing some homes that cost from $25,000 upward," he said.

The interpreter translated. A Russian voice spoke unconcernedly. "They don't care," said the translator.

The visitors appeared awed by the roadside motels. They indicated they thought them very small housing units for the underprivileged.

At breakfast, one of the hosts apologized for the hoarseness of his voice and blamed it on the wet Seattle climate.

A Russian volunteered, through the interpreter:

"The Russians cannot be held responsible for this."

'Optional Conciliation' Recommended by CCL

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor today declared unions should be allowed to strike without going through government conciliation board procedure.

A resolution adopted by the CCL's annual meeting said conciliation should be optional.

Hunters Fined For Infractions Of Game Laws

Two hunters were fined a total of $65 and $6 costs in RCMP court Friday.

One man was fined $15 Thursday in Saanich police court on a charge of carrying a firearm in a game reserve.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas fined Gregory Golf, 67 Windsor Auto Court, a total of $50 and $3 costs for taking two quail during closed season.

Howard V. Clark, Royal Roads, was fined $15 and $3 costs on a charge of carrying a loaded firearm in a motor vehicle.

IN RESERVE

In Saanich police court Thursday, Lugi A. Denon, 615 Belton, was fined on a charge of carrying a firearm in Beaver Lake game reserve.

Police said an unloaded rifle was found on the rear seat of Denon's car at Beaver Lake.

Prosecutor Kenneth Murphy pointed out that hunting is forbidden in the entire Saanich municipality.

CHANGE OF MANAGEMENT FOR HICKMAN TYE

L. H. NOBLE, President — A. V. LEA, Secretary-Treasurer — M. J. SHARP, Merchandising Manager — R. J. WARD, Vancouver Manager

The pioneer firm of Hickman Tye Hardware Co. Ltd., for 97 years a standard of quality, value and selection in the hardware and electrical supply fields throughout B.C., has now come under new management. Without change of name, and maintaining the same firm policies, Hickman Tye now comes under the direction of a young, aggressive and experienced executive. In August of this year the ownership of the firm, passed to a holding company formed by L. H. Noble and A. V. Lea. It is now directed by men who have spent years with Hickman Tye. Mr. Noble, president, has been connected with the company since 1933, becoming a full time member in 1935. In succession he has served as secretary-treasurer, managing director and now president and manager. Mr. Lea first joined the staff in 1936 and was elected director in 1948, filling the post of accountant, and credit manager. He holds the position of secretary-treasurer. Mr. Sharp joined the firm in 1947 with a wealth of sales experience. He served as travelling representative and then purchasing agent. Such training has well fitted him for the position of merchandising manager. Mr. Ward joined Hickman Tye in 1938 and worked in office, sales and merchandising posts until the war called him into naval service. On demobilization he was transferred to the Vancouver branch which has recently moved to new, modern premises at 1342 Clark Drive. His appointment in 1954 as branch manager was confirmed by the new executive.

Big Response to HBC-Times 'Personality Parade of Children' Forces Extension of Deadline

CINDY . . . two years 10 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burley, 1382 Begbie.

CARROLL . . . seven months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hanson, 2727 Scott.

SUSAN . . . 14 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Redgrave, 1255 Judge Place.

Overwhelming popularity of the "Personality Parade of Children," baby photograph contest sponsored jointly by the Hudson's Bay Company and Victoria Daily Times, has forced extension of the show deadline to Oct. 19.

Cameraman Howard Phillips and his wife, Marty, expect that by the time the contest is over, more than 900 youngsters will have had their picture taken. Original closing date had been set as today.

"We've been swamped in the last few days," Phillips said.

Only children of between six months and six years of age may enter. For a minimum fee, six pictures are taken of each entry, and the favorite is mounted.

At the conclusion of the contest a team of three judges will decide the winner, and first prize will be a sizeable merchandise certificate.

Mr. Phillips said that during the last four days children have been posed and photographed at the rate of one every four and one-half minutes. He and his wife are at work at the third floor studio of the HBC store.

REGAN . . . five years, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Corey, 316 Anson.

MORRIS . . . nine months, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. DeBlois, 871A Leslie Drive

DANIEL . . . three years, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Reed, 3300 Aldridge.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Now that the 1,500 delegates to the Pacific Logging Congress have left for home, clear-eyed and refreshed after four days of business deliberations here, it should be safe to print this one-act character study.

"PORTRAIT OF A CONSCIENTIOUS HUSBAND WRITING A LETTER HOME FROM THE CONVENTION"

As the curtain rises, we find Husband seated at writing desk in his hotel room. He is alone. He has found notepaper, and is starting to write:

Victoria, B.C.,
October 14, 1955.

Dearest Mary:

Well, I guess it is about time . . .

There is a loud knock at the door, and Husband calls out "Come in."

The door opens, and in comes Joe. "Hi," says Joe.

"Hi," says Husband.

"Whatcha doin'?" says Joe.

"Writing a letter to my wife," says Husband.

"Oh," says Joe. "Got a drink?" asks Joe.

"On the dresser, help yourself," says Husband.

"Want one?" asks Joe.

"Just a small one, I'm writing a letter," says Husband, picking up his pen and proceeding:

. . . about time to drop you a line . . .

There is a loud knock on the door, and Joe calls out "come in." Door opens, and in come Moe and Bo. Moe has a brown paper bag full of something.

"Hi," say Moe and Bo. "Whatcha doing?" asks Moe.

"He's writing a letter," says Joe.

"Oh," says Bo. "Want a drink?"

"Just a small one," says Husband. "I'm writing a letter."

Husband picks up pen, and resumes:

. . . you a line. I have been very busy. As usual this convention is very . . .

There is a loud knock on the door, and Joe, Moe and Bo call out: "Come in."

The door opens, and in come four unidentified characters.

"Hi," say Joe, Moe, Bo and Husband.

"Hi" say unidentified characters. "This the Global Machinery room?"

"No," says Joe. "Have a drink," says Bo.

"Just a small one for me," says Husband. "I'm writing a letter." He picks up pen again and:

. . . convention is very dull. Nothing but meetings and speeches . . .

"Who brought the dice?" asks Moe.

"Mind if we push the bed back in the corner to make room?" says Joe.

"Let's make it a dollar limit, nobody'll get hurt," says one of the unidentified characters.

"Who wants a drink?" asks Bo.

"Just a small one for me, I've got to finish this letter," says Husband, finishing the letter:

. . . and speeches. In fact, I have to listen to another one now so will tell you the news when I get home.

Your loving husband.

"Shoot, you're faded," says Husband, as the curtain falls.

Central Saanich Plans Vote on Library Set-Up

Referendum to Decide Whether Municipality To Stay Member; Costs Said Far Too High

Central Saanich will hold a referendum on whether to remain a member municipality of the Victoria Public Library, regardless of what new system of cost-sharing is worked out.

Clr. J. B. Windsor, Central Saanich representative to the library board, said today his council has decided on the vote following attempts to reduce library costs.

At present, an intermunicipal committee is attempting to arrive at a new cost-sharing plan suitable to Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Central Saanich.

A board meeting Friday was told Central Saanich circulation figures were up from 7,656 to 11,314 in the first nine months of this year. It is estimated that the end of the year will show a 3 per cent increase.

However, Clr. Windsor said the circulation figures also showed increases in all member municipalities but Oak Bay, so the percentage of cost, based on circulation, will likely be reduced this year.

Oak Bay residents borrowed 43,317 books this year compared with 49,367 at the same date last year. Victoria is up from 183,217 to 203,769; Saanich from 74,365 to 88,543 and Esquimalt from 14,259 to 14,706.

The Central Saanich councillor told the Library Board last February that costs based on circulation resulted in a bill last year to his municipality of $5,200 for 400 readers. He said the figure represented about 10 per cent of the municipal budget.

A plan was drawn up by the inter-municipal committee, on a per capita assessment of $1 with the balance of library costs made up on the circulation method. Under the scheme, ownership of the library would eventually pass to the member municipalities from Victoria city.

Further, for the first time, board members from outside the city would be able to vote. At present each member municipality has representation with voice only.

SATURDAY SUNNY DAY—SUNDAY NOT

Today's "wonderful sunshine" will, unfortunately, give way to clouds Sunday, the weatherman said today.

"I wish we could figure the weather will be unchanged, but it won't happen," he said. However, though cloudy, there will be no rain. Today rain is covering the northern end of Vancouver Island.

By mid-afternoon today temperature was expected to reach 60 degrees, one of the fall days so lovely "it sticks out like a sore thumb" said the weatherman.

Sunday temperature will hit a high of 55 degrees.

TIDES RIGHT

Pair Crosses Juan de Fuca Minus Fuel

Two young Victoria men were drifting and, presumably, dreaming Friday night—from here to Port Angeles.

The 12-foot inboard of Dwight Robertson, 21, 1138 Lockley and Roy Babraski, 18, Colville Road, ran out of gas. Tides carried them three miles west of Ediz Hook, near Port Angeles. They landed at 2 a.m.

American authorities earlier today said the pair were en route back to Victoria, re-fueled.

The episode proved the contentious point whether or not tides actually can have a definite effect on barrels, swimmers et al attempting the watery route across Juan de Fuca strait to Port Angeles.

The two young men hiked into Port Angeles early this morning and reported to state police, immigration and customs officials.

A Port Angeles boat haven manager, Joe Faires, took them out to the Coast Guard station, where they were conveyed by a 40-foot Coast Guard cutter to the spot where they beached their rented craft.

They gassed up, and with Coast Guard escorting them for a stretch in heavy fog, started for home.

Latest word placed the two about half-way back across the strait with the fog lifted.

Air-Sea Rescue Under Scrutiny

Police Probe How Prisoner Got Razor Blade

Man Admits Trying To Kill Himself

Victoria police officials today are trying to find out how a city lock-up prisoner obtained part of a razor blade with which he attempted to take his life Friday.

Police discovered Robert R. Thomas in an unconscious condition in his cell with his left wrist and forearm slashed in four places.

Thomas had been scheduled to appear in court on charges of obtaining credit under false pretences, and failing to pay a hotel bill.

After being treated in hospital, Thomas was able to appear in court.

PLEADS GUILTY

He then faced the additional charge of attempted suicide, and pleaded guilty to all three. He was remanded to Wednesday for sentence.

Deputy chief Harry Mercer said the man may have concealed the small piece of broken blade on his person when he was booked into the jail.

He said it was small enough that it could escape the eye of an officer carrying out a search.

In court Constable James Maybin testified he entered the cells at about 7.55 a.m. and saw the man lying unconscious on a bunk, his left arm covered with blood.

He said the man was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital, treated, and then brought back to the cells to appear in court.

The prisoner, still showing effects of his ordeal, appeared in court at 10 a.m.

The false pretences charges involved obtaining $47.43 credit at a city drugstore by posing as a Dr. A. Thompson and purchasing surgical supplies and a camera.

The second charge arose after he disappeared from the Empress Hotel, owing a bill of $39 for lodgings from July 25 to Aug. 1.

The man was apprehended at the CPR wharf Wednesday, minutes before a boat departed for Vancouver.

He was in possession of eight different sets of identification

Transport Minister Here Monday for Inspection

Efficiency of B.C.'s air-sea rescue organization is expected to come under the close personal scrutiny of Hon. George C. Marler, minister of transport, during his inspection visit to Victoria, Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Kitimat next week.

Mr. Marler will arrive at Patricia Bay airport via department of transport plane at 9.30 a.m. Monday, and will leave for Prince Rupert Tuesday morning.

During the forenoon he will inspect the DOT marine agency here, on a tour conducted by district marine agent Keith Dixon.

B.C.'s air-sea rescue organization is at present co-ordinated through the RCAF at Vancouver, where all distress calls are funnelled out to the area concerned.

Many coast shipping men have expressed the belief the various ships and aircraft concerned with rescue work could be better co-ordinated. A petition is now being circulated on the west coast of Vancouver Island, asking for a coast guard service along the lines operated by the United States.

SERVICE URGED

Tom Barnett, CCF MP for Comox-Alberni, urged such a service at a public meeting in Kyuquot Thursday, and fishermen attending the meeting approved a suggestion that two rescue ships be provided on the west coast of the island.

It is understood Mr. Marler will hear suggestions from local men connected with coastwise shipping to the effect that a costly coastguard service is not necessary, but a "speed up" in the present air-sea rescue co-ordination is essential.

There has been criticism of time lags in transmitting distress calls to the RCAF centre. At present all federal government ships—hydrographic survey, RCMP, pilot launches, fisheries patrol, and weather—are available for rescue work when ordered to by the co-ordination centre. A volunteer fleet of tugs, under the B.C. Towboat Owners' Association, is also linked with the air-sea rescue service.

Weakness of the organization, according to critics, is in two phases—lack of definite area responsibility and slowness of wireless communication.

During his west coast visit, especially in Victoria and Vancouver, Mr. Marler and his associates will have an opportunity to get a first-hand picture.

Traveling with him are J. R. Baldwin, deputy minister of transport, and six other officials of the department.

The party will leave Vancouver for Edmonton on Oct. 22, inspect Edmonton airport and the proposed site for a new airport, and return to Ottawa on Oct. 25.

Milk Board's City Office To Nanaimo

B.C. Milk Board's office in Victoria will be closed and shifted to Nanaimo, Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan announced today.

Mr. Kiernan said an inspector has been stationed here since the board was formed. The milk board chairman, E. C. Carr, has offices in Vancouver, near the large dairying industry of the Fraser Valley.

"The move is being made because Nanaimo is in more of a central position for the dairy industry on the Island," the minister said.

C. T. Bulman, head of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association, said the move came "as a surprise." He said Island milk producers are accustomed to doing business in Victoria, where most of their milk is sold.

Hi-Fi Concert Sunday Afternoon At Fox Theatre

The first of a series of high fidelity symphony concerts will be held at the Fox Theatre at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The musical program includes the "Fantasy Overture" or Romeo and Juliet by Tschaikovsky; Lizt piano concerto No. 1; and the popular 5th symphony by Tschaikovsky.

The music will be recorded on some of the finest sound equipment provided by Harmony House and B. A. Nixon, who also made arrangements for use of the theatre.

Henry Stubbings, President of the Victoria Recorded Music Society which is sponsoring the concert, will outline the musical program. Hans Gruber, conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, will comment on the music played.

A collection will be taken and all proceeds will be donated to the Victoria Symphony Society.

The society plans to hold a second Hi-Fi concert on October 30.

Forestry Probe Resumes Monday

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan will resume the delayed hearings of the Royal Commission investigating British Columbia's forestry problems at Prince George next Monday morning.

The chief justice has arranged to hear briefs from the important Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association, and from other groups representing interests in the north central area of the province.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Were there official regulations for jitneys here during the First Great War? Mrs. D.O.

A.—Yes. They had operated for some time before they were regulated. The official move resulted chiefly from overcrowding of vehicles and the consequent danger to passengers. The city council's action was reported in the Daily Times of Sept. 28, 1915. It was remarked the rules here were less restrictive than those in some other cities.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

$4,161 Damages Awarded

A retired civil servant who was struck down while walking in a pedestrian lane was awarded damages totaling $4,161 in a Supreme Court judgment handed down Thursday by Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane.

Mr. Justice Macfarlane awarded $3,500 general damages and $661 special damages to 70-year-old John Hawirko, 2929 Glasgow Street, for injuries suffered when he was struck down by a car driven by William T. Miller, 1454 Ocean View Avenue.

The accident occurred at the Blanshard Street and Hillside Avenue intersection on February 15 of this year.

Mr. Hawirko, through his lawyer, P. J. Sinnott, claimed in his civil suit the accident was due to negligence. The defendant admitted liability.

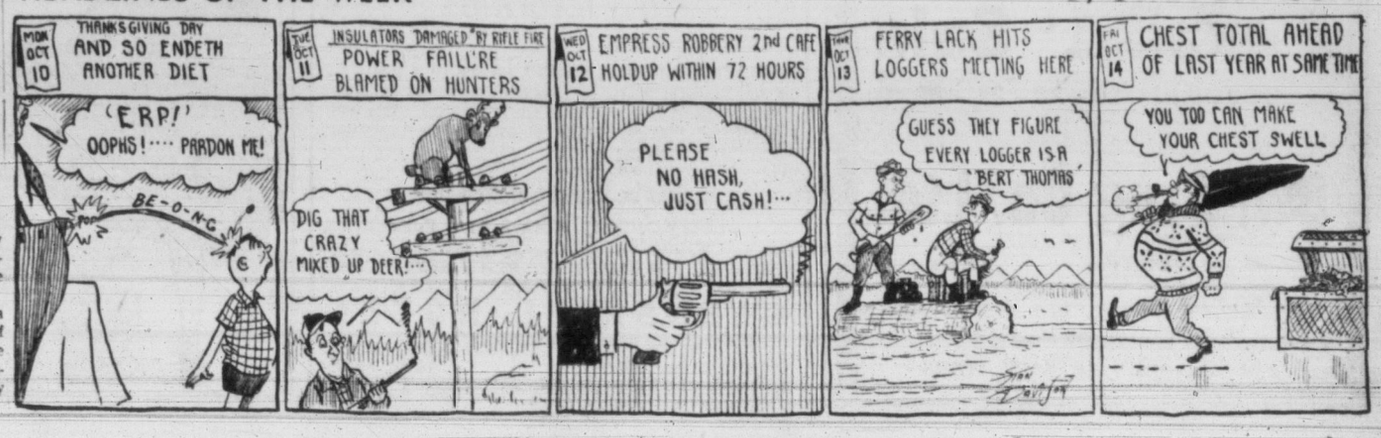
HEADLINES OF THE WEEK

By STAN DAVISON



His Honor The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross, at right, made their first appearance at an evening function Friday when they attended the Naval Officers' Association annual Trafalgar Ball in the wardroom at HMCS Naden. They were met by Cmdr. Garfield Dixon, RCN, president of the association, and Mrs. Dixon. Mrs. Ross was wearing a Marie Paul model evening gown of forest green satin, classically styled. A pearl necklace and a sequin evening bag completed her ensemble. Mrs. Dixon's gown was silver brocade in leaf design outlined in rich brown. She wore diamond earrings.

Miss Brenda Turner, daughter of Mrs. Ross, second from right, attended the ball with Dr. R. M. Schieder, right. She wore a Worth model evening gown in dusky pink rose nylon tulle with dainty embroidered bodice. Her jacket was of ermine and her jewelry, pearls. Standing with them are Commodore P. D. Budge, RCN, commanding officer of HMCS Naden, and Mrs. Budge, who was gowned in pale pink chiffon gown. More than 250 guests attended the ball.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

When their Colonel-in-Chief, HRH The Princess Royal enters the officers' mess of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment at the Bay Street Armory tonight to attend a regimental mess dinner planned in her honor, it will mark a great event in the history of the regiment.

Bessie

The Bay Street Armory is the home of the regiment. In the Highland tradition or family precept, the Princess Royal is not only the Colonel-in-Chief but the Chieftain of the clan. . . And for the first time she will meet her "family" in their own home . . . which —as the Chieftain—is also her home.

In the old Highland tradition this is a chieftain's gathering. HRH the Princess Royal and her lady-in-waiting, Miss Gwynedd Lloyd will be the only feminine guests.

Tables will be decorated in the traditional style of the regiment. Plain white cloths with a broad band running down the centre of each one, showing the regimental colors red, green and blue. Stately silver candelabra will add a note of elegance.

The dinner will be held in candlelight.

Adding an exciting note of color will be the dress uniforms of the officers of the regiment which they tell you proudly is the old mess kit they refused over and over again to give up . . . be worn tonight for the first time in many years.

Scarlet Jackets, Tartan Vests, Hair Sporrans

There is the stiff white shirt with black bow tie; a very short scarlet jacket with low rolled tuxedo collar and wide cuffs in royal blue with narrow white piping; silver badges on the collar and gold shoulder cords. A narrow vest in the same tartan as the kilt . . . the Hunting Stuart . . . shows three cairngorm buttons. The kit includes the old-fashioned hair sporran, full hose in the red and black Rob Roy tartan, black shoes with silver buckles and the skean dhu (black knife) and dirk tucked in the top of the hose.

Some of the officers will wear full ceremonial dirks as well, in black and silver with large cairngorms set in the handles. There will be some officers, too, in dark blue tunics which is accepted as dress uniform in the new style mess kit. Three officers of the guard will dine in full uniform, just as they come off guard. They will wear the scarlet and green plaid.

In the Highland tradition when the Chieftain is present, no toast will be given at the dinner without the consent of HRH the Princess Royal. As the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment is a "double toast" regiment, two toasts will follow in quick succession—The "loyal" toast to Her Majesty the Queen, followed by the toast to the Colonel-in-Chief.

Also in the Highland tradition will be the pipers' toast. This ceremony starts with the three duty pipers (three because the Princess Royal is the Chieftain) piping themselves in and circling the room two or three times playing the regimental march. They stop behind the commanding officer's chair and the head steward brings forward four quaffing dishes (low silver bowls with two handles and prized possessions of the regiment). These are filled and the commanding officer hands the first to the pipe major and says in Gaelic . . . "A Toast to the Regiment."

The others receive their bowls and the pipe major then gives his toast, in Gaelic. The bowls are turned upside-down to show every drop has been drained and then the three pipers proudly pipe themselves out of the room.

Again, in the tradition of the regiment will be the review of its history given—not by a senior officer—but the youngest subaltern who happens to be Lieut. Harvey. A member of a Duncan family he is following in his father's footsteps. He, too, was an officer in the Canadian Scottish.

Scottish customs, Highland tradition and the Gaelic tongue . . . it all adds up to a proud moment in the history of the regiment. One officer says quite frankly. . . "It is the GREATEST moment in our history. . . Our Colonel-in-Chief has reviewed us many times overseas. Today, our Chieftain has come home!"

Patrons for Piano Recital

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross have graciously extended their patronage to the piano recital of Jan Cherniavsky, noted Russian pianist, on Tuesday evening in the Royal Theatre, sponsored by the Victoria Musical Art Society.

Other patrons are Hon. R. W. Mayhew and Mrs. Mayhew, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett, Hon. Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran and Mrs. O'Halloran, Mayor and Mrs. Claude Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Percy George, Miss Kathleen Agnew, Dr. and Mrs. Jay Durand, Mr. and Mrs. Nickola Pavelic, Capt. and Mrs. Massy Goolden, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Gruber, Mr. and Mrs. Colin Graham and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. K. English.

Parties for Affianced Couples

Miss Lorna Sinclair and Mr. Fred Merriman were guests of honor at a shower held for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Obee, 2074 Quimper Street. Gifts for the bride-elect were brought by the women, and placed in a brightly-decorated laundry basket, while gifts for the groom-elect were brought by the men, and were stacked in a waste paper basket. A corsage of talisman roses was presented to Miss Sinclair, while her mother, Mrs. G. Brown, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. F. J. Merriman, received chrysanthemums. The groom-elect; his father, Mr. Merriman, and the bride-elect's father, Mr. Brown, received boutonieres. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Merriman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Flinton, Mr. and Mrs. A. Onischuk, Mr. and Mrs. J. McDaid, Mr. and Mrs. D. Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomas and Mr. Colin Eddy.

Home From Eastern Canada

Miss Lorna Chisholm, who has spent the past month in eastern Canada and in New York visiting friends and relatives, has now returned to her home on Pentrelew Place. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gavin Chisholm of this city.

To Receive Friends

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Harding Reed, 5061 Santa Clara Avenue, Royal Oak, will receive friends in Royal Oak Community Hall Tuesday evening at 7.30 on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Reed were married in St. Anselm's Church, Hatch End, Pinner, Middlesex, Eng., and came to Canada in 1910. Early in 1911 they settled at Royal Oak, and have lived there ever since. They have two sons, Mr. Herbert John Reed, of Royal Oak, and Mr. George Beresford Reed, of Elk Lake. There are eight grandchildren.

Mrs. Morrison Feted

Mrs. Ray Williston was hostess at an informal party at her home on Cedar Hill Road recently when guests gathered to wish farewell to Mrs. Robert K. Morrison, who with her family will leave Tuesday for New Westminster to join Mr. Morrison, former social and membership secretary of the Victoria YMCA. Guests were Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mrs. R. E. Bonner, Mrs. Eric Martin, Mrs. W. N. Chant, Mrs. Ralph Chetwynd and Mrs. R. Sommers.

Mrs. Einar Gunderson recently gave a luncheon at the Union Club in honor of Mrs. Morrison.

Mrs. H. McCaw entertained at an evening party at her home, 875 Hampshire Road, for the feted traveller. The refreshment table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centred with a bowl of yellow chrysanthemums.

Co-workers of Mrs. Morrison in the Y'smenettes presented her with a Toby jug at an informal party following their recent regular meeting.

To Live in Duncan

Mrs. Boyd Moore, and her two daughters, Karen and Linda, 3576 Calumet, will leave Victoria for Duncan next week to join Mr. Moore, who has taken the position of office manager of the A. V. Richardson Contractor Building Supply Company in Duncan. Mr. Moore is an active member of Victoria's Junior Chamber of Commerce, while Mrs. Moore is a member of the Jaycee-ettes.

Wedding Guests

Among out-of-town guests who attended the recent Pollock-Mileson wedding in First Baptist Church were Mr. J. Pollock and Mrs. A. Pollock, Ladysmith; Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mileson, Miss Elizabeth Mileson and Miss Mary Willingham, Vancouver.

Mrs. Ellen Shipley came from Cranbrook this week to attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Miss Barbara Joan Shipley, to Mr. Clarke Alexander Warwick Friday evening in St. Alban's Church. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. Shipley and family, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Rogers, Vancouver; Mr. G. Shipley, RCAF Station, MacDonald, Man.

Among dancers were Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. Frank Barclay, at left, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burgiss. HMCS Naden Band played for dancing and a supper was served buffet style from a long table decorated with arrangements of bright autumn flowers, colorful fruits and delicious foods.

Miss Valentine Harlock A Bride This Afternoon

Masses of russet and copper-toned chrysanthemums and dahlias formed the background for a wedding ceremony in St. Mathias' Church this afternoon when Miss Valentine Irene Marguerite Harlock became the bride of Walter John Furlong.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter John Harlock, 162 Robertson Street, and her groom, the son of Mrs. H. Furlong, Portsmouth, Eng., and the late Mr. Furlong.

Canon F. E. M. Tomalin performed the ceremony, while Charles Palmer played traditional organ music. The church decoration was arranged by Mrs. Hugh Macdonald.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a white corded taffeta dress, fashioned in classic lines, with a wide V-neckline banded with accordion pleating, and insets of similar pleating in the full, floor-length skirt. The bodice featured self-covered buttons from the V-neckline in back to below the waistline. Sleeves were long and fitted. Her Quaker-style hat was of matching taffeta, and trimmed with fine pleating. She carried a spray of Johanna Hill roses on a white prayer book used by her mother at her wedding. Her only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls.

Attendants were Mrs. Hugh Macdonald, matron of honor; Mrs. David Carmichael, bridesmatron, and Miss Nora Garcin, bridesmaid. They were gowned in identically styled gowns of rich velvet, fashioned with wide V-necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. They wore bandeau en tone with their dresses and shoes to match. Mrs. Macdonald wore deep brown, while Mrs. Carmichael and Miss Garcin chose ruby shade. All carried bouquets of cream chrysanthemums and wore short cream gloves.

Best man was R. Green, while Hugh Macdonald and W. J. Wade were ushers. A cutwork cloth covered the bride's table which was centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with copper toned flowers, at the reception which was held in the Olde Charming Inn, Beach Drive. Cream chrysanthemums and ivory candles completed the table decorations. Maj. W. R. Russell proposed the traditional toast to the bride.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver and Harrison Hot Springs, the bride chose a wheat colored angora suit with opalescent buttons, complemented with briarwood shoes and purse and matching velour hat. She wore a sable stole and a copper-toned rosebud corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Furlong will live at 162 Robertson Street when they return.

Couple Married Friday Evening Will Make Their Home in Quebec

Quebec will be the home of newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Alexander Warwick, whose wedding was solemnized Friday evening in St. Alban's Church. Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh officiated for the bride, the former Miss Barbara Joan Shipley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Shipley, and her groom, the son of Mr. A. C. Warwick, 122 Clarence Street and the late Mrs. Warwick. The groom is stationed at RCAF Station, St. Huberts, P.Q.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a white lace gown fashioned with a six-tiered skirt, fitted bodice and long lily point sleeves. She wore a short, circular veil, and carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Mrs. H. Turner was only attendant for her sister, and chose a mauve tiered dress and carried a matching chrysanthemum bouquet. Flower girls were Miss Sharon Turner and Miss JoAnne Rogers, in pink net dresses. They carried sprays of matching flowers.

George Warwick, brother of the groom, was best man, while ushers were John Shipley, brother of the bride, and Monty Ballard.

Don Partridge played the piano at the reception which followed at the Tango Room. A three-tier cake decorated with swans and charms centred the bride's table. Mauve and white chrysanthemums and white candles flanked the cake. Frank Sim proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Leaving for their honeymoon, the bride wore a grey suit with black fleck pattern. Her occessories were black, and her corsage was of yellow roses and lily of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Warwick will live at 458 Guilbault street, Longueuil, P.Q.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Almost Anything Liquid May Be Bought in a Bomb

By PENNY SAVER

Today there are very few liquid items that can't be bought in a "bomb." There are hair sets, disinfectants, toppings for desserts, cleaners and a wealth of polishes, moth killers, artificial decorations such as snow, perfumes, and not last, nor least, the latest is cologne. It not only sprays out, but is worked up into a delicate foam.

Here's a word of wisdom, though; press the cap gently, for it streams out and the first thing you know, you have a handful of lather that would be enough to cover your whole body. In fact, it can be used for just that. It's simply super for use after a bath. It smooths on so easily, and seems to seep right into the skin in no time at all. The containers are real charmers, too. They will look just as pretty as your poshest perfume bottles on your dresser, 'cause they are straight tubes, topped with gold-colored lids. Just shake the container, lift the lid, press the lever, and there is the foam. There are four delightful fragrances that I was "nosing" around. A five fluid ounce tin costs $3.50.

A ballet lover in the house? A thoughtful gift for someone interested in dancing is the perfume and lipstick set I saw in town. A perfume bottle with gay jeweled top is tucked inside a white plastic foam ballet slipper. Inside the mate is a lipstick, with matching jeweled top. Each slipper tied with a dainty black ribbon, and on the top is fastened a gold cord. You can hang the pair on the wall in your room. Made by a well-known company, the set costs $3.75.

Always with a weakness for stylish clothes, I was drawn to the window where pert corduroy playsuits were displayed. No, not in little girl styles, but in adult sizes and styles. They are one-piece outfits, with pedal pushers, fashioned with tapered legs. The attached blouse has a Peter Pan collar, three-quarter sleeves, and a full zipper front. Nipped in with the matching belt, it's one of the most attractive play and lounge outfits I've seen. For gardening, watching TV, or for any informal activity, these are perfect. You may like the red, or perhaps the bright peacock blue that's so popular. In all sizes, the suit costs $15.98.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to buy any of the items mentioned in today's column or during past weeks.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Rapid Weight Loss at First Is Due to Water in System

Few persons realize how great a part of our make-up water is. We actually are very fluid human beings. Our blood is 90 per cent water, our muscles 75 per cent and our bones 25 per cent water.

And the saying "water on the brain" since that organ is 80 per cent water.

Our fatty deposits vary in water content but usually run around 18 to 20 per cent water. This is one reason why the reducer may lose rapidly at first and then slow down to a much more discouraging loss in poundage. This first loss is mostly a water loss.

If the tissues have a much greater water content than usual the loss may be quite large within the first week of reducing. Therefore, the woman who is dieting should not be discouraged when reduction becomes slower. She will have lost her soft water fat and from then on will be losing more solid fat. The loss will continue if she continues counting her calories but at a slower rate.

Another experience which depresses a woman who is seriously trying to lose pounds is the discovery that even though she has followed her diet she finds herself suddenly two or three pounds heavier than she was on the preceding day. This can be accounted for in several ways.

Remember that a meal weighs several pounds and that the weight of material in the bowel and fluid in the bladder must also be taken into consideration. All of these factors can add up to a difference of around five pounds. For this reason it is best to weigh at the same time and under the same circumstances each time.

While these factors cannot be controlled accurately it is wise to weigh yourself in the morning before breakfast and after voiding.

Therefore, be not dismayed if you lose from five to 10 pounds easily and then seem to come to a comparative standstill. Just keep on with your calorie counting and the pounds will melt away although not in such a dramatic manner.

* * *

If you would like to have my Nine Day Reducing Diet booklet (10c) which gives you a loss of from 5 to 10 pounds in nine days, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Council Meeting—Plans were discussed at meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, for the district council meeting at Sooke, next Friday. A bus will leave at 12.30 noon from the depot. Mrs. H. Jarvis presided and welcomed Mrs. C. Evans, a visitor from Dawson Creek. Reports showed 336 veterans visits in hospitals, 18 fruit baskets taken to shut-ins and flowers and cards sent to the sick. Names were taken of volunteers willing to assist with the Red Cross blood bank on Oct. 26 and Remembrance Day poppy sales on Nov. 5.

Magazine for School—It was decided at meeting of Royal Roads Chapter, IODE, to renew the subscription to the National Geographic for the Harris Creek School. Mrs. A. McLure reported on a visit to Veterans' Hospital and it was voted to give her $20 to buy comforts for the chapter's two adopted patients. Each member was asked to make a nursery bag to be turned in at a sewing meeting next Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Max Zabel, 2528 Cavendish Avenue.

Executive Elected—At meeting of Victoria Intermediate Musical Arts Society, Peter Williamson was elected president. Others on the executive are: Vice-president, Patricia Chatwin; secretary, Norman Wilkinson, and treasurer, Linda Barker. Meetings of the group, to be held on the second Saturday of each month at 8 p.m. in Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, are for young people interested in music between the ages of 12 and 21.

Oak Bay Sr. High—Miss Marion James will be guest speaker at meeting of Oak Bay Senior High School PTA, on Wednesday evening, commencing at 8.

In Step With Style

By NONA DAMASKE

"Sparkling Spectacles"—Smart to see in . . . smart to be seen with. Modern glasses are high-style fashion. Today's frames fit the time, the place, the occasion. They are a beauty treatment in themselves. New exciting eyewear designs enhance your facial structure, tone down your weak points, blend with your coloring, spark the dominant note of a new costume. They do wonders for your fashion assurance.

Nona

The smart woman knows she can be dated by the cut of her clothes, the design of her jewelry . . . and, in these days, the shape, color and style of her eyeglasses. For modern frame fashions change as often as fashions in clothes, cars and hairdos.

Frames should not be chosen because they look pretty on display in a window or on a counter. The choice of frame should depend entirely on your facial structure.

If you have a round face, keep your choice confined to angular frames. An uptilt is good because it tends to carry the face line upward and give length. Avoid rounded lenses, low end-pieces and lenses disproportionately small. Try an outer or end-piece ornament if eyes are close-set, a centre trim if eyes are far apart.

A long face can be shortened by a frame in a dark or bright color with horizontal trim. A squarish shape and level brows break up that look of length. Stay away from light colors, narrow lenses or the exaggerated uptilt . . . they all emphasize length.

The square face takes on a more oval contour with a frame that curves up to a slight tilt . . . not too extreme a departure from the basic shape of the face. By-pass shapes that are square or horizontal.

The heart-shaped or triangular face needs graceful curving lines to soften the look of broad cheekbones and forehead. A little trim on the nose bridge will offset the look of width. Avoid angular shapes and extreme tilts.

If your nose is too short, a high or "keyhole" bridge will make it seem longer. If too long, wear low or "saddle" bridge. End-piece trim will divert attention from a long nose.

Keep in mind that regardless of your facial contours your frame should follow the line of your eyebrows . . . try not to cover them. If your face is small, do not choose a heavy design. Look for frames that are in proportion to your small features.

For a high forhead avoid dark colored rounded frames. Try a light shade with the lens shape squared off below the eyes. End and temple trims are effective.

A dark colored upcurving shape will draw attention away from a prominent chin. The horizontal effect of a two-tone frame will help. But steer clear of the pale frame whose lines curve downward.

If time has traced a few lines and wrinkles on your face, don't risk a rimless frame or a faded out color. A plastic frame, well designed, in a bright becoming color will cover up and minimize wrinkles. A tilt shape will give your face a youthful lift and neutralize sagging lines.

Smartly tailored black and white frames are worn by Astrid Mead in the office. The side pieces are shaped for perfect comfort over the ears and the whole frame is as light as a feather.

For dress-up occasions Astrid wears glamour glasses of pale blue and clear plastic. The diamante trim on each side of the silver bars is a new feature.

Astrid shows us here the trend toward a somewhat shallower frame. Just a touch of sparkle enhances this frame which is a combination of black and clear plastic.

Morning Ceremony Unites Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brian Heard were married this morning in Fairfield United Church, in a ceremony performed by Rev. Thomas Haythorne. Pink chrysanthemums in standard baskets were placed at the altar.

The bride, the former Miss Dorothy Jean Beevers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Beevers, Fairview, Alta., was given in marriage by W. Clarke. She was gowned in a cocktail-length white brocade dress fashioned with a low neckline, short sleeves and a flared skirt. Tiny pearl drops trimmed the fitted bodice. She chose a rapture pink small hat with rhinestone trim, short pink gloves and tinted pink brocade shoes. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls. Small rosebuds were tied in the white satin streamers which cascaded from the pink roses she carried on a white Bible.

Bridesmaid, Miss Nancy Christie, wore a pastel blue cocktail dress fashioned with a low neckline and full, flared skirt. Her small blue hat and shoes were en tone, and her bouquet was of white carnations.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Heard, 1449 Clifford Street, had Byron W. Clarke as best man.

A wedding luncheon was held at the home of the groom's parents, where W. Clarke proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

A damask table cloth covered the bride's table, where a wedding cake decorated with roses was centred. Chrysanthemums, roses and Michaelmas daisies decorated the home.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip motoring to Dexter, Ore., and California to visit her mother and sisters, the bride wore a mauve flecked suit with hat and shoes en tone. A corsage of white gardenias and pink rosebuds was pinned to her oxford grey topcoat.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Heard will live at 1338 Esquimalt Road.

In Honor of the Bride

Mrs. J. Cruickshank, and her daughter, Mrs. W. Glover, were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at 2826 Prior Street, in honor of bride-elect, Miss Helen Rowse. The guest of honor was presented with a corsage of red roses and small chrysanthemums, while her mother, Mrs. S. Rowse, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. A. Gordon, received pink chrysanthemums. Gifts were presented in a decorated clothes basket. Other guests were Mrs. H. Rowse, Mrs. Wanamaker, Mrs. L. GIRL GUIDES

Honor Guard—On Tuesday all Brownies, Guides and Rangers are asked to wear their uniforms to school in order to form a guard of honor at the Government House gates at 3.15 p.m. for HRH the Princess Royal.

West Victoria—A first anniversary party was held recently by the West Victoria Company. Dawn Moist and Elizabeth Poole who were joint hostesses for the evening, earned their hostess badges. Guests included Mrs. R. Hamlin and Mrs. C. F. Hunter who presented first class badges to Morlene Booth and Carol Hunter. Games were played and refreshments served and a sing-song enjoyed. Three second class, five swimmers and two pioneer badges were also presented.

Pollock-Mileson Wedding In First Baptist Church

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pollock who exchanged vows recently in First Baptist Church are spending a honeymoon in Seattle and Portland before returning to Victoria to make their home.

The bride is the former Miss Patricia Norma Mileson, daughter of Mr. P. E. Mileson, 2569 Cranmore Road, and her groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pollock, Ladysmith, B.C.

Rev. G. R. Easter officiated at the ceremony amid a setting of fall-toned chrysanthemums. Mrs. F. H. Mileson accompanied the soloist, Miss Elizabeth Mileson, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Love's Remembrance."

A white strapless gown of nylon sheer was chosen by the bride. It was fashioned with a full three-quarter-length skirt, topped with a lace jacket with long lily-point sleeves. Her chapel-length veil was caught to a headdress of white beads. White and bronze chrysanthemums were in her bridal bouquet, and her only jewelry was a pair of pearl earrings, a gift of the groom. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Betty Bartram was maid of honor, in a turquoise acetate gown with three-quarter-length skirt, and a white stole. Her headdress was of light bronze chrysanthemums, and her bouquet was of matching blooms.

Chris Reay was best man, and Kingsley Marshall was usher.

At the reception at Glenshiel Lodge, F. H. Mileson proposed the toast to the bride, his niece. A two-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table.

For her going-away outfit, the bride wore a red jersey dress topped with a grey coat. Her accessories were red, and her corsage was of red carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollock will live at 2569 Cranmore Road when they return.

Easier to Do Than to Think?

CLEVELAND (AP)—Today's housewife works much harder than her grandma did, says Ohio's director of home economics. She gives this example:

"It was easier for grandma to make an iron kettleful of soap than for us to do the thinking required in making decisions about which of the many kinds of soap we should buy."

In a pseech Tuesday before the Cleveland Heart Society, Mrs. Davis Whitfield said modern women "are faced with making decisions all day long, especially when they go to the supermarket and choose among 3,500 different items. . . . By such decisions, women shape the lives of their families."

NAMED WOMAN OF YEAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce Wednesday night was awarded a gold and bronze plaque as "woman of the year" and praised by President Eisenhower as "an outstanding diplomat." Mrs. Luce, who is in Rome, received the award in absentia from the Lido Civic Club of Washington, an organization of professional and businessmen of Italian descent.

Times Crossword Contest

$150

NO WINNER LAST WEEK

THE RULES

Solve the clues as you would any crossword puzzle. Clip out the dotted form and mail it to The Victoria Daily Times.

You can send in as many entries as you like in one envelope, but they must be on the form printed in the paper. Facsimiles will NOT be permitted. This puzzle will be printed on Friday, Saturday and Monday.

All answers must be received by the morning mail of Wednesday.

Be sure to clip on the dotted line. This is for the convenience of tallying entries.

EARLY MAILING WILL BE APPRECIATED

The answer will be printed in Friday's paper each week. It will be a good idea to keep a record of your solution and compare it with the answer.

PRIZES

Anyone may enter with the exception of employees of Victoria Press Ltd., and their families. A prize of $25 will be paid for solving the puzzle. If there is more than one winner the prize will be divided.

BONUS

If the winner is a regular daily subscriber to The Times by carrier or mail a special bonus will be paid in addition to the regular prize of $25 (Agents and dealers are not classified as carrier subscribers.) When there is no winner the bonus will increase at the rate of $25 per week until a winner is found. When there is more than one winner the current bonus will be divided.

This week's prize is $25, plus a $125 bonus.

Study the clues carefully before you write down your answers. There is always one answer which is best. The decision of the judges in the contest will be final and all contestants taking part agree to abide by their decision.

BEAUTY HINTS
Scrap your facial treatments and try a new and better method of acquiring an ideal complexion. NOVA-KELP, providing food iodine and trace minerals, will help to remove the cause of such facial blemishes as skin eruptions "hickeys," and even acne, the bane of teen-agers. Mothers can do their children a great service by providing NOVA-KELP during "adolescence," the period when food "iodine" is most urgently required. At all druggists. Two months' supply $1.19.

ELECTRO THERAPY AT HOME
Sufferers from arthritis and rheumatism can now have the benefits of electrical treatment, simply and cheaply, at home. Write for free pamphlet Medical Electricity versus Aches and Pains. You will be glad you did.

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1½" Stock in 8, 10 and 12-inch widths, "FOREST" Siding is a new type of Siding obtained from specially selected Cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

HOW IS IT GRADED?

IN A SELECT GRADE for home and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired, enhanced by heavy shadow lines. Sound intergrown knots ranging in size from 2-inch in 6-inch widths to 4-inch in 12-inch widths add to the rustic appearance of this grade.

IN A UTILITY GRADE intended for use on summer homes, barns, or industrial buildings where lowest cost construction is required with pleasing rustic appearance. Each grade comes in two finishes, rough faced or smooth faced. The rough face has a sawn finish and smooth face is planed.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?

"FOREST" Siding, with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume adds to the structural strength and solidity of the building.

The design of "FOREST" Siding ensures a tight weather seal of the lap which, together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle, makes excellent material from the insulation standpoint.

"FOREST" Siding represents an economy to home-builders. Costing less than most other types of Siding the lap design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor cost.

HOW IS IT APPLIED?

As easily and quickly as common shiplap. Each piece of "FOREST" Siding fits snugly on the one below and requires only one mitre cut.

HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED?

If a natural finish is desired, use equal proportions of raw linseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This not only protects the wood surface, but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and grain. If a colored finish is desired "FOREST" Siding can easily be painted.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

MONDAY, OCT. 17, 1955

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Now you can ferret out ways to replace those frustrations with constructive activity that will solve your worries and bring greater co-operation from others as well as more material resources for yourself. Be practical.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Looking directly at commitments you've made to others brings out best in them for they then see you are mindful of your obligations and may lessen effort, amount to be expended by you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—You now have it in your power to get rid of all chores that are tiresome or that seem unproductive or ineffective but which must be done sometime. Start week right by putting them in back of you.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Thinking in terms of longtime attachments, best way to maintain harmony for all recognizable future brings solution for continuing happiness. Fine for long range investments as well. Enjoy pleasures that have proven satisfactory.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Now you have chance to prove that devotion to those close to you even though it means some toil that doesn't especially appeal to you. Make sure you show others you appreciate their co-operation. Then it's much easier.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—This is your day to get that shopping finished that you've been putting off. Decide what you want. Stop returning articles or being so vacillating. Now you can show character and decision. Isn't it about time?

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22)—Getting down to brass tacks about the debts you owe and the funds that are coming your way brings your material affairs to better set of circumstances. Be sure to study outlets that can increase your holdings, possessions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—This is your day to decide just what you do want from life. You've been shifting from one to another interest long enough. Fine day to make up your mind. Then put into active operation at once the conclusions reached.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—At last you have done, when you can stop yacking so much and can put into practice, quietly but efficiently some of those wonderful ideas with which you are so talented and endowed. Aid those less fortunate, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Basically sound, experienced but demanding well-wisher, has the answer to your concern. Be sure you listen to understand and follow the suggestions given you by this problem-solver. It makes your existence more secure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Keep your attention today focused strictly upon worldly, public and civic responsibilities. Your place in the community is of prime importance to you and it can be greatly enhanced by your conscientous actions today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—This is your day to gain better perspective where you are headed, how you can best get there. Make sure you do study newspaper, etc., carefully to uncover better methods. Make acquaintance of experienced newcomers who can help you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY . . .

Monday's child is one of those very astute and deep-seated youngsters who will be very hard to know since he, or she, will never tell all that may be in the mind, even though it will aid any situation that may exist with anyone else. It is therefore of prime importance that you early teach that co-operation is essential if one is to have the greatest benefits from life, as it now exists. Good for vocations connected with laboratory, research, investigations and all pertaining to uncovering information hard to secure.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

"What's going on here?" asked East at a certain stage of the play in today's hand. He knew that something peculiar was happening, but he somehow failed to work out the obvious answer.

West opened the singleton jack of clubs, and South won with the ace. South slyly led the jack of spades, as though for a finesse, but West stepped right up with the ace of spades and returned the queen of hearts.

South quickly played the 10 of hearts from dummy instead of putting up the king, and this was when East wondered out loud what was going on.

The answer should have been perfectly clear. South couldn't afford to let East get the lead, for then a club return would give West a ruffing trick.

East should have overtaken with the ace of hearts even though dummy's king had not been played. A club return and the ace of diamonds would then have defeated the contract.

Instead, sad to relate, East fell into the trap. He played a low heart, and the defence collapsed with this play.

South ruffed the next heart and drew trumps. He then cheerfully conceded the ace of diamonads, making his game contract.

If East had saved his breath and put the energy into more brainwork, he might have come up with the right answer.

Queen Telephones Margaret From Balmoral; Aide Rushes With Message From Queen Mother

BINFIELD, Eng. (CP) — Queen Elizabeth talked to her younger sister today in a lengthy priority telephone call to the country mansion where Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Townsend are guests for the week-end.

Reliable sources said the Queen had telephoned from Balmoral, her Scottish summer residence, and that telephone lines from nearby Reading were cleared for the call.

In another development today, the Queen Mother left Clarence House, the London residence where she and the princess live, for the first time since the meeting there Thursday night between the princess and Townsend after his arrival from Brussels on home leave.

She drove to the royal lodge at Windsor, about 10 miles from where the princess and Townsend are staying, to spend the week-end.

(United Press reported from London that just before dusk the Queen Mother sent her secretary, Capt. Oliver Dawnay, to see the princess. What message he carried could not be learned. Capt. Dawnay stayed half an hour. Police escorted his car both ways.)

OFF FOR A GALLOP

Townsend got up early this morning and went for a gallop through Windsor forest. There was no sign of the princess.

After the ride Townsend returned to the estate, trailed by reporters who waited on he chance that he and the princess might leave the estate later in the day to visit friends in the district.

He was smiling but non-commital to the reporters, saying merely that he would be staying here until Monday, when he will return to London.

Townsend was wearing a sweater and riding breeches when he first emerged this morning. He called out a cheery "Good morning" to the newspaper men as he got into his car.

The 41-year-old war hero drove directly to a riding stable and took a brown mare named Juliet Jones out on exercise with the regular string from the stable.

Despite a royal plea on Friday for privacy, a crowd had gathered when Townsend emerged from the house. But he chatted with the grooms and jockeys at the stable and met reporters.

SECRET MEETING

The princess and Townsend arrived separately Friday night at the nearby house of the princess' cousin, Mrs. John Lycet Wills. Mrs. Wills is a daughter of Lady Elphinstone, sister of the Queen Mother. The house, Allenby Hall, is a stately brick mansion some 10 miles from Windsor Castle and about 25 miles west of London.

The rendezvous set the seal on the mounting conviction that the only thing left to be fixed for the wedding is the date.

The Royal Family's press secretary Friday night issued from Clarence House, the London residence of the princess and Queen Mother, a plea for privacy.

Two of London's big morning newspapers say the 25-year-old sister of the Queen plans to marry the divorced father of two children and fighter-pilot hero of the Battle of Britain.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail declares flatly in a front-page article: "Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend plan to marry. That is the deduction drawn from the Clarence House statement."

Townsend arrived at Binfield early in the afternoon, and went for a ride with Mrs. Wills while waiting for Margaret.

Meanwhile, the princess had slipped out of Clarence House by a little-used side entrance. She drove off in her black Rolls-Royce, with the shades down, and arrived at Binfield about three hours after Townsend. With her was her lady-in-waiting, Iris Peake, who some sources say received Townsend's letters and passed them on to Margaret during the two years he has spent in "exile" as air attache in Brussels.

ALL SMILES, Group Capt. Townsend drives into London for his first meetings with Princess Margaret since his "exile" two years ago to air attache post at Brussels. (NEA Radio-Telephoto.)

Court Conviction Seen Bar to Scott Candidacy

Indictable Offence Rules Out Eligibility for Mayor's Office

Municipal legal authorities said today that William A. Scott, an announced candidate for mayor of Victoria, may have become disqualified as a candidate through a conviction in Oak Bay police court Friday on a charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

The Municipal Act of B.C. provides that a person who has been convicted of an indictable offence which makes him liable for two years' imprisonment, cannot stand for office unless he is pardoned or a five-year period has passed after sentence is served.

Mr. Scott was fined only $40, but Oak Bay police said he was charged under section 231 of the Criminal Code under which a convicted person can be sent to prison for up to two years.

The question of disqualification will arise when and if Mr. Scott files his nomination papers. The returning officer will then have to make a ruling.

If Mr. Scott were to win an appeal in the meantime, he would automatically restore his status.

Told of the possibility today, Mr. Scott stated:

"I don't doubt it. They'll pull everything they can. I know this is a frame-up. I am writing a prepared statement to Magistrate (H. C.) Hall—a very serious statement too.

"Magistrate Hall is violating the United Nations declaration of human rights. I am standing on that as a defence. That is supreme to any Municipal Act or small-town magistrate, or any other public official of our courts.

"This rises supreme above the courts. If they disqualify me they are placing themselves higher than the UN."

Mr. Scott was convicted of assaulting electrical inspector Charles Waggett, Oct. 5.

When the $40 fine was imposed, he shouted charges of a corrupt court, frame up, vicious persecution. "The truth is never admissable in these courts," he shouted.

"I think this man is not responsible or I would not permit such language," said the magistrate.

Inspector Waggett said he and a deputy fire chief introduced themselves to Mr. Scott and went with him into his basement to inspect new wiring. He found work done without permit and work which Mr. Scott had been previously warned would have to be changed.

Mr. Scott allegedly lost his temper, called the inspector a liar and "pounded" him in the face, "at least two times." Mr. Waggett suffered a swollen jaw and cut lip.

Mr. Scott admitted striking the inspector but said he was struck first. "He punched me on the chest, then I walloped him."

Road Mishaps Take 2 Lives

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) —Raymond Thibault, 18, of North Vancouver, died early today when the car in which he was riding struck a telephone pole here and was completely wrecked.

One man was killed and three others injured Friday night in a crash on the road leading to the Vancouver International airport.

Richmond RCMP identified the dead man, a passenger in the B.C. car, as Lloyd Schalm of Vancouver.

Princess Flying Here For 5½-Day State Visit

People of Victoria, home of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), will be able to see the famous unit inspected by its colonel-in-chief at a mass ceremonial in Royal Athletic Park Sunday afternoon.

The Princess Royal will walk down ranks of the 500-man battalion shortly after 3 p.m. in a ceremony which will see both battalion and Queen's colors paraded together by the Scottish for the first time since 1946.

Princess Mary arrives at Patricia Bay airport today at 5.30 p.m., and after meeting military, civic and government dignitaries will proceed to Government House, her "home" in Victoria during the next five and one-half days.

BELLS TO RING

En route to the lieutenant-governor's residence, she will hear the bells of Christ Church Cathedral rung in special greeting as they were for the 1951 visit of the present queen, then Princess Elizabeth, and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Princess Royal's first appearance at a public function will be Sunday when she attends the morning service at Christ Church, when the cathedral bells again will peal.

Another first will be established at that time, since it will be the first service of worship at Christ Church attended by a member of the British royal family since consecration of the cathedral in 1929.

Service will be conducted by Very Rev. Brian Whitlow, new dean and rector, assisted by cathedral clergy. Sermon will be delivered by Archbishop Harold Sexton, who as curate of St. Margaret's, Westminster, from 1925-27, is himself a former Londoner.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, accompanied by Mrs. Bennett, will be present along with Mayor C. L. Harrison. In the princess' party will be Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, an honorary colonel of the Canadian Scottish.

Arriving at the west doors of the cathedral, after the short drive from Government House, the princess will be greeted by the archbishop.

Tickets have been issued to the regular members of the congregation to ensure they will have seats. All ticketholders must be in their places by 10.30 a.m. If any seats remain, the general public will be admitted.

Hon. Col. R. W. Mayhew, of the Scottish, and Lieut.-Col. Jack Fawcett, commanding officer of the regiment, will be in the congregation, as will be other officers of the armed forces in Victoria.

As she leaves the cathedral the princess will be met at the main doors by Col. Mayhew and Lieut.-Col. Fawcett, who will accompany her to Pioneer Square, where she will lay a wreath on the Vimy Cross, Canadian Scottish memorial.

The Royal Salute will be first order given to the Scottish at the 3 o'clock ceremony at Royal Athletic Park, barring heavy rainfall, in which case the inspection will take place in Bay Street Armory.

Inspection of the regiment and cadet march-past follows, with the band playing Princess Mary's own march-past, "Daughter of the Regiment," in Royal Scots tradition.

The Princess will return to Government House after the inspection about 3.45 p.m., then go to Bay Street Armory for a reception in Scottish officers' and sergeants' messes.

Monday at 11.20 a.m. the royal party leaves Government House for Royal Roads Canadian Services College, where at noon she will open cadets' new barracks block.

Mayor Confirms Letter To Forests Minister

Mayor Claude Harrison has offered Goldstream and Elk Lake parks to the provincial government.

This offer was made in a letter to Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers within the past week, and was confirmed today by the mayor.

"I made the suggestion so that the salt-water park at the head of Goldstream will be developed," said the mayor. He said that several years ago, when the government was about to take over Goldstream, "they would not take in the foreshore."

SWIMMING BEACH?

Mayor Harrison said that if the provincial parks service wants Goldstream they will have to develop the foreshore as a saltwater swimming beach.

He said "it's the work of a bulldozer" to deepen the head of the inlet for swimming.

"Elk Lake? It's the same idea," said the mayor. "They would have to develop the beach."

Parks service officials are known to look with favor on the development of Goldstream as a provincial park. Several hundred acres, extending up the stream, are involved.

Elk Lake, on the Patricia Bay Highway, is popular as a summer recreation area.

Mathews Back; Blackpool in Stride Again

LONDON (Reuters) — Blackpool, with star winger Stanley Mathews back in the line-up after being sidelined with an injury, hit its stride again today to swamp Charlton Athletics 5-0 and take over the clear leadership of soccer's English League First Division.

After last week's games, Blackpool was tied with Manchester United and West Bromwich Albion on points but led on goal average. Manchester tied Aston Villa 4-4 and now trails by a single point as does Sunderland which defeated West Brom 2-1 and dropped Albion to fourth.

SWANSEA TOWN ON TOP

In the Second Division, Swansea Town nipped Bristol Rovers 2-1 to win the league lead from Fulham—downed 1-0 in a fiercely-fought battle with Nottingham Forest on the Woodsmen's home grounds.

Northampton Town, currently on top of the pile in Division III Southern, was blanked 2-0 by Southern United.

Gas Stations Found Guilty

VANCOUVER (BUP) — An assize court jury has found 26 lower mainland gas station operators guilty in a price-fixing charge but returned a strong recommendation for leniency.

The service station operators were remanded by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson on their own recognizance until Oct. 24 sentence.

Adenauer Abandoned

KASSEL, Germany (Reuters)—The Refugee party, fourth largest in the West German legislature, today officially quit the government coalition of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and declared itself to be in opposition.

UNACCOUNTABLE MISHAP

2 B.C. Forest Men Drown on Mainland

Two young B.C. Forest Service men were reported dead today, following a puzzling accident in isolated Knight Inlet, on the mainland coast.

Forest Service officials announced that Ranger W. H. Bell, 25, of Chatham Channel, and dispatcher Roy Neil, about 21, of Haney, died, "presumably by drowning, in the course of their duties."

Here is the story of the tragedy, as told by a Forest Service officer:

"Bell and Neil put off in a dinghy from the Forest Service launch Western Yew, to carry out timber cruising duties in the northwest arm of Knight Inlet on the northern mainland coast.

"They left the Western Yew on Thursday morning, and when they had not returned by 10 a.m. on Friday, the launch engineer of the Western Yew became seriously concerned and reported by radio to district headquarters in Vancouver.

PLANE SPOTS DINGHY

"Immediately a Forest Service charter aircraft, already working near Knight Inlet, commenced an air search, and spotted the dinghy at the northwest end of the inlet.

"It was still right-side up, and one pair of cork boots was still aboard. The air search party also found the body of Roy Neil. All forest service launches in the area, four in all, have now converged on the search area, and under the direction of D. B. Taylor, district forester at Vancouver, are carrying out an extensive search for Ranger Bell.

"We have no facts yet as to just how the tragedy occurred.

"However, those who know the area, brand it as very treacherous, and it is possible a storm blew up quickly, and funnelled right down the inlet, catching the small boat.

"One theory is that the boat's motor conked out, one of the men stood up to start it, and fell overboard in the high waves, and the other jumped in to help him."

A spokesman said Neil's body will be flown out to Vancouver. Ranger Bell was married, and had a son one and one-half years old.

HOT NEWS FROM THE TRYST'S MOUTH

Impish 7-Year-Old 'Wushes' To Peach on Her Princess

BINFIELD, England (AP)—A seven-year-old girl played an impish informant today to the romance of Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

She was Marilyn Wills, blonde and perky daughter of Maj. and Mrs. John Lycet Wills, owners of Allenby Hall, where Margaret and Townsend are week-end guests.

Skipping along the gravel driveway from her home to a picket fence, little Marilyn was bursting with news.

When she reached the fence, around which more than 100 reporters and photographers were massed, she winked and began to speak.

"What did the princess do this morning?" she was asked.

"I saw her wushing upstairs," said the girl.

Half a hundred pencils raced across half a hundred notebooks.

"Did you say washing upstairs?" asked a chorus of reporters.

"Yes wushing," she answered.

"With soap and water?"

"No, silly—wushing—to run fast," replied Marilyn.

"You mean rushing, not washing?"

"Yes," grinned the little girl.

"How did Princess Margaret look?"

"Okay."

"Was she happy?"

"Yes—very happy."

Having delivered this news, little Marilyn wushed back to the lodge.

MARGARET'S DECISION MAY REST ON TRYST

Week-End May Be Love's Final Test

By ADRIAN BALL

BINFIELD, Eng. (Reuters)—Princess Margaret may decide this week-end how strong her love is for Group Capt. Peter Townsend, handsome commoner whose divorce is a major roadblock on the road to royal marriage.

High society sources offered the theory that the 25-year-old princess, 15 years younger than Townsend, will make her decision here in a closely-guarded mansion in which they are week-end guests.

They suggest that this meeting between Margaret and Townsend is to find out whether their love has endured through two and one-half years in which they have been separated. If it has, then the marriage will be on, they say.

These sources also say this explains why Townsend — divorced father of two sons—was suddenly removed from his post as a court equerry and sent to Belgium in 1953 in the relatively minor job of air attache.

ARRANGED AS TEST

They declare that royal advisers arranged the parting as a test of whether the princess was really in love or merely infatuated with Townsend.

Meanwhile, Margaret received a priority telephone call from Queen Elizabeth. All telephone lines from the nearby town of Reading were cleared for the lengthy call from Balmoral Castle in Scotland.

Queen Mother Elizabeth arrived at nearby Windsor this afternoon. But she did not go immediately to the luxurious home of her niece, Mrs. John Wills, where the princess and Townsend are staying until Monday.

Later a car drove up with a woman inside and it was thought it might be Townsend's mother, Mrs. Gladys Townsend, who had left her Somerset home earlier.

The princess and Townsend spent most of the day inside the 50-acre estate of park and woodland owned by Maj. and Mrs. Wills, hidden from the searching eyes of scores of newspaper men clustered outside the police-guarded gates.

(United Press reported from London that just before dusk the Queen Mother sent her secretary, Capt. Oliver Dawnay, to see the princess. What message he carried could not be learned. Capt. Dawnay stayed half an hour. Police escorted his car both ways.)

OFF FOR A GALLOP

Townsend got up early this morning and went for a gallop through Windsor forest. There was no sign of the princess.

After the ride Townsend returned to the estate, trailed by reporters who waited on the chance that he and the princess might leave the estate later in the day to visit friends in the district.

He was smiling but non-commital to the reporters, saying merely that he would be staying here until Monday, when he will return to London.

Townsend was wearing a sweater and riding breeches when he first emerged this morning. He called out a cheery "Good morning" to the newspaper men as he got into his car.

The 41-year-old war hero drove directly to a riding stable and took a brown mare named Juliet Jones out on exercise with the regular string from the stable.

Despite a royal plea on Friday for privacy, a crowd had gathered when Townsend emerged from the house. But he chatted with the grooms and jockeys at the stable and met reporters.

SECRET MEETING

The princess and Townsend arrived separately Friday night at the nearby house of the princess' cousin, Mrs. John Lycet Wills. Mrs. Wills is a daughter of Lady Elphinstone, sister of the Queen Mother. The house, Allenby Hall, is a stately brick mansion some 10 miles from Windsor Castle and about 25 miles west of London.

The rendezvous set the seal on the mounting conviction that the only thing left to be fixed for the wedding is the date.

The Royal Family's press secretary Friday night issued from Clarence House, the London residence of the princess and Queen Mother, a plea for privacy.

Two of London's big morning newspapers say the 25-year-old sister of the Queen plans to marry the divorced father of two children and fighter-pilot hero of the Battle of Britain.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail declares flatly in a front-page article: "Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend plan to marry. That is the deduction drawn from the Clarence House statement."

Townsend arrived at Binfield early in the afternoon, and went for a ride with Mrs. Wills while waiting for Margaret.

Meanwhile, the princess had slipped out of Clarence House by a little-used side entrance. She drove off in her black Rolls-Royce, with the shades down, and arrived at Binfield about three hours after Townsend. With her was her lady-in-waiting, Iris Peake, who some sources say received Townsend's letters and passed them on to Margaret during the two years he has spent in "exile" as air attache in Brussels.

Scott Convicted May Be Barred From Mayoralty

Municipal legal authorities said today that William A. Scott, an announced candidate for mayor of Victoria, may have become disqualified as a candidate through a conviction in Oak Bay police court Friday on a charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

The Municipal Act of B.C. provides that a person who has been convicted of an indictable offence which makes him liable for two years' imprisonment, cannot stand for office unless he is pardoned or a five-year period has passed after sentence is served.

Mr. Scott was fined only $40, but Oak Bay police said he was charged under section 231 of the Criminal Code under which a convicted person can be sent to prison for up to two years.

The question of disqualification will arise when and if Mr. Scott files his nomination papers. The returning officer will then have to make a ruling.

If Mr. Scott were to win an appeal in the meantime, he would automatically restore his status.

Told of the possibility today, Mr. Scott stated:

"I don't doubt it. They'll pull everything they can. I know this is a frame-up. I am writing a prepared statement to Magistrate (H. C.) Hall—a very serious statement too.

"Magistrate Hall is violating the United Nations declaration of human rights. I am standing on that as a defence. That is supreme to any Municipal Act or small-town magistrate, or any other public official of our courts.

"This rises supreme above the courts. If they disqualify me they are placing themselves higher than the UN."

Mr. Scott was convicted of assaulting electrical inspector Charles Waggett, Oct. 5.

When the $40 fine was imposed, he shouted charges of a corrupt court, frame up, vicious persecution. "The truth is never admissable in these courts," he shouted.

"I think this man is not responsible or I would not permit such language," said the magistrate.

Inspector Waggett said he and a deputy fire chief introduced themselves to Mr. Scott and went with him into his basement to inspect new wiring. He found work done without permit and work which Mr. Scott had been previously warned would have to be changed.

Mr. Scott allegedly lost his temper, called the inspector a liar and "pounded" him in the face, "at least two times." Mr. Waggett suffered a swollen jaw and cut lip.

Mr. Scott admitted striking the inspector but said he was struck first. "He punched me on the chest, then I walloped him."

Mayor Confirms Writing Minister With Suggestion on City's Parks

Mayor Claude Harrison has offered Goldstream and Elk Lake parks to the provincial government.

This offer was made in a letter to Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers within the past week, and was confirmed today by the mayor.

Road Mishaps Take 2 Lives

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) —Raymond Thibault, 18, of North Vancouver, died early today when the car in which he was riding struck a telephone pole here and was completely wrecked.

One man was killed and three others injured Friday night in a crash on the road leading to the Vancouver International airport.

Richmond RCMP identified the dead man, a passenger in the B.C. car, as Lloyd Schalm of Vancouver.

Gas Stations Found Guilty

VANCOUVER (BUP) — An assize court jury has found 26 lower mainland gas station operators guilty in a price-fixing charge but returned a strong recommendation for leniency.

UNACCOUNTABLE MISHAP

2 B.C. Forest Men Drown on Mainland

Two young B.C. Forest Service men were reported dead today, following a puzzling accident in isolated Knight Inlet, on the mainland coast.

Forest Service officials announced that Ranger W. H. Bell, 25, of Chatham Channel, and dispatcher Roy Neil, about 21, of Haney, died, "presumably by drowning, in the course of their duties."

Here is the story of the tragedy, as told by a Forest Service officer:

"Bell and Neil put off in a dinghy from the Forest Service launch Western Yew, to carry out timber cruising duties in the northwest arm of Knight Inlet on the northern mainland coast.

"They left the Western Yew on Thursday morning, and when they had not returned by 10 a.m. on Friday, the launch engineer of the Western Yew became seriously concerned and reported by radio to district headquarters in Vancouver.

PLANE SPOTS DINGHY

"Immediately a Forest Service charter aircraft, already working near Knight Inlet, commenced an air search, and spotted the dinghy at the northwest end of the inlet.

"It was still right-side up, and one pair of calked boots was still aboard. The air search party also found the body of Roy Neil. All forest service launches in the area, four in all, have now converged on the search area, and under the direction of D. B. Taylor, district forester at Vancouver, are carrying out an extensive search for Ranger Bell.

"We have no facts yet as to just how the tragedy occurred.

"However, those who know the area, brand it as very treacherous, and it is possible a storm blew up quickly, and funnelled right down the inlet, catching the small boat.

"One theory is that the boat's motor conked out, one of the men stood up to start it, and fell overboard in the high waves, and the other jumped in to help him."

A spokesman said Neil's body will be flown out to Vancouver. Ranger Bell was married, and had a son one and one-half years old.
